MARRIED AT HOLY INNOCENTS'

Rev. William M. Barker and Miss
Laura P. Adair Married Yesterday.

BISHOP MORRIS OFFICIATED

Large Assemblage of Friends—The Chapel Decorated With Flowers.

Never did the little chapel of Holy Innocents, which General John Adair built at his own expense, look more lovely than yesterday, when it was profusely decorated with flowers for the wedding of his daughter to the Rev. William Morris, of Duluth, Minn., nephew of Bishop Morris, the venerable prelate who presides with so much distinction over the diocese of Portland.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Morris, assisted by W. S. Short and the Rev. T. A. Hyland. The bride looked charming in a traveling dress of lavender and white and which was in perfect harmony with her fine figure and beautiful complexion. The bridesmaid, Miss Ella Jordan, charmed the eye in her dress of pure white which formed a pleasing contrast to the roses and evergreens. The maids of honor were Hannah Adair and Laura Jordan, two sweet little girls attired in white, whose presence added an additional charm to the groups that stood in the presence of Bishop Morris. Mr. Wistar Morris was best man. The bride and bridegroom having made the responses which the simple and expressive service of the Episcopal church requires, Bishop Morris pronounced them man and wife. Thus was ratified with the holiest vows, a friendship began some years ago, that ripened into love that neither time nor distance could impair.

Of course the church was crowded with friends and neighbors, for the Adair family are greatly esteemed and Miss Laura is a general favorite. The family were represented by Mrs. Mary A. Adair, mother of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Adair, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Adair, Col. and Mrs. John Adair and other relatives. There were present on this happy occasion Mr. and Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. Col. Medell, Mrs. Captain Flavel, Miss Nellie Flavel, Miss Kate Flavel, Mrs. Gilman, Miss Eliza Bowling, Miss Sophia Bowling, Miss Fassett, Mrs. W. S. Short, Mrs. Hyland, Mrs. M. Trenchard, Mr. and Mrs. George, Miss Wheeler, Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Fred Barker, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Morton, Miss Lucy Morton, Mrs. Fossburg, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Chutter, Mr. and Mrs. B. VanDusen, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. VanDusen, Dr. J. and Mrs. J. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Trenchard, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Upshur, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Cherry, Col. and Mrs. James Taylor, Miss Mary Taylor, Mrs. Dr. Strong, Mrs. A. VanDusen, Mrs. F. L. Wadleigh, Mrs. D. A. McIntosh, Mr. and Mrs. Max Young, Capt. C. H. D. Gray, Miss Rodney, Miss Estella Webber, Miss Brater of San Francisco, the Misses Young, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hay, Miss Ella Dickinson, Capt. and Mrs. Granville Reed, Walter H. Seaborg, Miss Lydia Rodney, Mrs. Hustler.

After the ceremony Rev. and Mrs. Barker partook of the wedding breakfast at the Adair homestead in company with the immediate members of the family, Bishop Morris and the clergy. It was observed that there were present the 36th and the 37th representatives of the Adair family. These were the sons of William and Sam Adair, and grandsons of General John Adair who was the first collector of the port of Astoria and whose memory is held in grateful remembrance by the early settlers.

The bride received some beautiful presents.

Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Barker will sojourn here some days before returning to their home near Duluth "the zenith city of the unsalted seas" which stands on the picturesque shores of Lake Superior.

A telegram received in Astoria yesterday conveyed the sad intelligence of the death of Bishop William M. Barker, of the Episcopal diocese of Olympia. Bishop Barker was well known to many Astorians and was prominent in church councils. A wife and child survive him. Mrs. Barker was before her marriage Miss Laura Adair, daughter of the late General John Adair of Astoria. The deceased clergyman was born in Tona-wando, Pa., and was educated at Germantown and Berkeley Divinity school. He occupied pulpits in New York and Washington previous to being called to St. Paul's in Duluth, where his remarkable faculty for organizing and discharging executive duties soon made him a man marked for preferment. When the diocese of Western Colorado was created he was appointed its first bishop and remained there until 1894, when he was transferred to Washington. Bishop Barker was a nephew of Bishop Morris. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Astoria, April 9.—General John Adair died at his residence in Upper Astoria this afternoon. 1888

THE TRENCHARD-VAN DUSEN NUP-

TIALS.—The Astorian of Jan. 1st says:

"In Grace (Episcopal) church, last evening, a wedding took place uniting two of the principal pioneer families of Astoria. The groom, Mr C J Trenchard, son of the late Dr Trenchard, was born in Astoria, and the bride, Miss Cara Van Dusen, daughter of Hon. Adam Van Dusen, was born in Upper Astoria. The church was well filled by a host of the friends of each, and, as the affair has attracted considerable attention in social circles throughout the State, several intimate friends of both the bride and the groom were present on the occasion. We join the many in wishing the happy couple a long and prosperous journey through life." The fair bride, who is a sister of Mrs W I Wadleigh of this city, is well known in Seattle society, where she has always been regarded with great favor. Her many friends here are a unit in the possession of the most kindly feeling toward her and her husband.

Married Last Evening.

Mr. Albert Dunbar and Miss Minna Sherman were married by Rev. Dr. Garner, L. L. D., at the First Presbyterian church last evening. Miss Rozetta Sherman, Miss Dora Thielbach and Miss Katie Thrall were bridesmaids. Mr. H. D. Thing, Mr. Del Moore and E. B. Rogers, groomsmen. The friends and acquaintances of the young couple filled the church, and were profuse in their good wishes. They leave this morning on their wedding journey and are accompanied by the affectionate regards of a host of well wishers.

Miss Burton and Mr. Van Dusen Wed Wednesday

AT THE home of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Irvine in Irvington, Wednesday afternoon Miss Darle Burton, daughter of Mrs. C. B. Harmond of Bend, became the bride of Dr. Arthur Van Dusen, well known Astoria surgeon, and son of Mrs. Brennan Van Dusen of that city.

The ceremony was performed in the living room, with Dean H. M. Ramsey reading the service, and was very simple, with only a few guests present. The bride was gowned in a blue and white afternoon frock and small hat and was attended by Mrs. Lucile Irvine, who wore orchid. Mr. Lloyd Van Dusen was best man for his brother.

After the ceremony Dr. and Mrs. Van Dusen started by motor for Seattle and British Columbia and will spend some time in the Sound country. They plan to go on to Banff and Lake Louise, and then return to Astoria. They will occupy a house at Seaside for the summer.

The bride is a former Oregon Agricultural college student and studied later at the Oregon Normal school and was also a member of the faculty there. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Dr. Van Dusen is a graduate of the University of Oregon where he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity and later studied at the Northwestern Medical school in Chicago.

Alln-Van Dusen Wedding.

The leading social event of the present season was the wedding on Wednesday afternoon of Mr. A. V. Allen Jr. and Miss Maude Genivieve Van Dusen, two of the most prominent young people of the city. The ceremony was performed in Grace Episcopal church in the presence of a large number of invited guess and was followed by a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Allen left on the evening train on a short wedding trip that will include Puget Sound and British Columbia cities.

MARRIED.—When the report came of Dr. J. C. Grasse and wife being among the passengers on the steamship Dakota, his friends here thought there was a joke concealed somewhere, which the arrival of the steamer would disclose, and with that idea uppermost the newspapers made no separate mention of his marriage. The idea of a joke disappeared today entirely, on the reappearance of the Doctor in town, accompanied by his fair and happy bride. She was a Miss Eva Hansbrow, of Sacramento, in which place, at the residence of her mother, they were quietly married last Thursday evening, Sept. 27th. Immediately after an hour's reception, the couple left the town for San Francisco, where they remained over Friday, and from which they came on the Dakota on Saturday. They are staying at the New England Hotel for a few days, but will shortly go to keeping house. Our best wishes are theirs.

FUNERAL OF JUDGE GRAY TODAY

JUDGE J. H. D. GRAY.

ASTORIA, Oct. 27.—(Special.)—The funeral of Judge J. H. D. Gray, who died at his residence in this city Sunday evening, October 26, 1902, will be held Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of Seaside Lodge, No. 12, A. O. U. W., of which lodge he was a member.

Judge Gray was born at Lapwai, Idaho, then part of Oregon, March 20, 1839, and was the first white male child born west of the Rocky Mountains, his father, the late W. H. Gray, Oregon's first historian, having come from New York as assistant missionary with Dr. Whitman in 1836. Judge Gray went to Fraser River in 1858, and there engaged in the steamboat business as mate and pilot until August, 1861, when he returned to Oregon and enlisted in the Washington Guards, expecting to be sent to the front during the Civil War. The Government not wishing troops from this Coast, as they would have to be sent East via Panama, the regiment was disbanded, and he entered the employ of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company in March, 1862, as mate on steamboats, serving until September of the same year, when he was given command of a steamer running from Celilo to Lewiston, Idaho, and from Olds Ferry, now Huntington, to Owyhee Crossing, on Snake River. While hunting prairie chickens with Colonel W. H. Hunt, of the United States Engineers, in 1867, his right hand was so badly shattered by the premature discharge of his gun that it was afterwards amputated at the wrist. In May, 1868, Judge Gray returned to Astoria, and has resided here continuously since that time, first engaging in the transportation business on the lower river, under a contract with the Government, and later conducting a general merchandise store. In 1886 he was elected a member of the Oregon State Senate, representing Clatsop, Columbia and Tillamook Counties, and served in that capacity for four years. Among the measures which he succeeded in having passed was one giving Clatsop County two Representatives and one Senator in the State Legislature. In 1894 he was elected County Judge of Clatsop County, and was re-elected in 1898, his last term expiring on July 1 of the present year. He also held several other positions of public trust, and filled each in an honest and capable manner.

The deceased left a wife and eight children—Mrs. Augusta Fox, Harry D., William J., Charles E., Mary Alice, Sarah and Louise Gray, of this city, and Mrs. R. C. Wright, of Portland. He was a member of Seaside Lodge, No. 12, A. O. U. W., and of the Oregon Pioneer and Historical Society.

CARL A. HANSON DIES.—Carl A. Hanson, who was an Oregon resident for about 30 years, died yesterday afternoon at Everett, Wash. Mr. Hanson was well known in Portland and Astoria, having formerly conducted a store at the latter place. About five years ago he removed to Everett, where he engaged in the merchandising business. He leaves a wife, two sons and three daughters. During his lifetime he was a prominent Y. M. C. A. and church worker. June 28-1906

DIED.

GRAY.—At St. Vincent's Hospital, in this city, July 12, Captain Albert W. Gray, aged 64 years, 14 days. Deceased is survived by two sons and one daughter, of Woodland, Washington; also two brothers and two sisters. He was a member of Ivanhoe Lodge, K. of P. Remains are at the parlors of the Skewes Undertaking Co., corner 3d and Clay. Funeral notice later.

DEATH OF MRS. WRIGHT.

Mrs. Robert C. Wright, daughter of the late Judge J. H. D. Gray, died at the home of her mother in this city at 12 o'clock last night. Mrs. Wright had been a sufferer for a year past, being afflicted with a stomach trouble, and the end was expected. She had been here since last Sunday night. Mr. Wright is an attorney of Portland. He will arrive down this forenoon and until then the funeral arrangements will not be made. Mrs. Wright was Laura Geniveve Gray and was born in this city 26 years ago. Her education was obtained in this city and for some time previous to her marriage she taught in the local schools. Two years ago she was married to Mr. Wright and since then has made her home in Portland. Mrs. Wright did not suffer greatly during her illness, and was conscious until the last.

Oct. 21-1900

Judge Milton Elliott died at his residence in this city on Sunday morning at half past eight of old age. His funeral will be held on Wednesday under the auspices of the Pioneer society and Rev. Wm. Seymour Short will conduct the services. The details of the funeral will be announced tomorrow. Judge Elliott was one of the foremost jurists of Oregon for a number of years, was born in Virginia on March 23, 1815, and came to Oregon in the early 40s and settled in Oregon City, where he practiced in the first court organized under the territorial government. Later he removed to Portland, and has made Astoria his home for the past 30 years. His only known relative on this coast is his sister, Miss Olivia Elliott, who resides here and is over 90 years of age. Oct. 21-1900

Oct. 20-1900

S. T. McKean, one of Astoria's oldest and most respected citizens, died at his home in this city on Saturday evening after a very painful illness of many months. His funeral will be held tomorrow (Tuesday) morning at half past ten o'clock from the Presbyterian church. The interment will be in Olatsop cemetery. The deceased was 60 years of age and leaves a widow, three married daughters and two sons. He had been a resident of Oregon for over fifty years, having crossed the plains with his parents when a child. He was a charter member of Seaside lodge No. 12 A. O. U. W. and also of the Pioneer society. His funeral will be held under the auspices of these two organizations.

HIS LAST RUN ENDED

Dan O'Neil, Old Purser, Closes
Long Life.

WAS PIONEER RIVER MAN

Captain of Famous Little Columbia for a Time, and Afterwards Ran From Portland to The Dalles for Many Years.

OREGON CITY, Or., Dec. 19.—(Special.)—Daniel O'Neil, a well-known pioneer, died last night at the Rose farm, near this city, after a brief illness. A year ago Mr. O'Neil, because of failing health, severed his connection with the O. R. & N. Company, and returned to this city, where he died in the same house that he was married in 46 years ago.

Mr. O'Neil was born at Duanesburg, N. Y., January 6, 1828, and in 1849, when 21 years of age, he crossed the plains, coming to Oregon as Quartermaster Clerk of the First Regiment of the United States Mounted Rifles. This regiment came direct to Oregon City, where they passed the Winter of '49. In 1853 he went to Australia, where he remained for four years, returning to Oregon City in 1858, when he married Miss Minnie Holmes, daughter of the well-known pioneer, William Holmes, at the old Holmes farm near Oregon City. Accompanied by his bride, Mr. O'Neil returned to Australia, where seven years were spent and, after a trip around the world, he returned to Oregon, where they have since resided. He leaves a widow, but no children.

For the last 35 years the deceased was in the employ of the old Oregon Transportation Company, or the O. R. & N. Company, in the capacity of purser on Columbia River steamers. When his health failed him a year ago, Mr. O'Neil was employed as purser between Portland and The Dalles.

The burial will take place Tuesday afternoon in the Holmes lot at the Masonic Cemetery, funeral services being held at the Rose farm at 2 P. M., Rev. P. K. Hammond officiating.

Dan O'Neil was probably more widely known among the traveling public and had traveled more miles on the Columbia than any other man. His last service was on the Bailey Gatzert. Since his resignation he has been abroad but little. His illness was caused by stomach trouble combined with general debility, making him too weak to enjoy travelling.

In July last he came to Portland, accompanied by his wife, and said he wanted to take one more trip, his last, over the line to The Dalles and down to Astoria. He made the trip on the Bailey Gatzert, and he seemed to enjoy it, and took his last look on faces of many old-time friends at the various points along the river.

"He had no enemies," said an old friend. "He never worked for anyone to whom he did not give perfect satisfaction."

Mr. O'Neil arrived at Oregon City, then the principal city in this region, in the Fall of 1849. It was found necessary to transport quantities of stores from Vancouver to Oregon City for the use of the regiment. As there were no steamboats on the river, and good roads had not been opened up, this transportation was accomplished by batteaux belonging to the Hudson's Bay Company, propelled by crews of Indians.

Among the civilians who accompanied the regiment to Oregon was Captain Jim Frost, who suggested building a steamboat. General John Adair, of Astoria, and others joined in the scheme, and in a few

CAPTAIN BOLLES DIES

Was Commodore of O. R. & N. Co.'s
Fleet of Vessels for Many Years.

Word was received here this morning that Captain O. F. Bolles, well known in this city, passed away at his residence in Menlo Park, Cal., Tuesday evening.

Captain Bolles suffered a stroke of apoplexy about three months ago, and though he improved considerably, it finally resulted in his death.

He was born near New Bedford, Mass., and would have been 72 years old next May. He took to the sea at an early age, and was in command of a vessel before he was of age.

For many years he was captain and commodore of the O. R. & N. Co.'s fleet running between Portland and San Francisco, and while in that service brought out the steamers City of Chester and Columbia from New York to this coast. About 15 years ago Captain Bolles was appointed by the government inspector of hulls with headquarters at San Francisco, and he was still holding that position at the time he was stricken.

B. F. and W. E. Stevens, both with the First National bank here, are nephews of Captain Bolles.

THE LATE THOMAS SMITH, PIONEER STEAMBOAT ENGINEER.

Thomas Smith, one of the oldest marine engineers in the Northwest, died in this city early yesterday morning at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. E. S. Jackson, aged 65 years. Mr. Smith was born in Baltimore, and came to this state with his father, the late T. V. Smith, in 1850. In that year he assisted his father in placing the engines in the little steamship Columbia, the first steamer built on the river. He afterwards ran on the same steamer for nearly a year, and went from her to the steamer Lot Whitcomb. He was subsequently engaged as engineer on the pioneer steamers Blackhawk, Multnomah, Eagle, Hoosier, Canemah, Senorita and Mountain Buck. In the '60s he was with the O. S. N. Co. on the upper and middle rivers. He went to Puget Sound with the Wilson G. Hunt in 1868, and remained with the steamer for a year after her arrival there. On his return he was at various times employed as chief engineer on nearly all of the steamers owned by the O. S. N. Co. and its successor, the O. R. & N. Co. He left the river at intervals for engineering work on shore, but always returned again, and, with the exception of the veteran, John Marshall, who is still in the service, probably traveled more miles on a steamboat than any engineer who ever ran on the Columbia and Willamette Rivers. Mr. Smith was for over five years chief engineer on the steamer T. J. Potter, and always took a great deal of pride in the work of that boat. Although suffering greatly from rheumatic gout, which prevented him from moving around except at the cost of severe pain, he went down to take a farewell look at the big sidewheeler less than two weeks ago. His ailment compelled him to give up active work four years ago. His many years' service on the passenger steamers gave him a wide acquaintance, and hundreds of friends will feel the deepest regret at the passing of genial "Tom" Smith, the skilled engineer, the thorough gentleman, and the pioneer who played well his part in the upbuilding of the commonwealth.

DEATH OF PIONEER OF 1847

MRS. SARAH H. JEFFERS.

Mrs. Sarah H. Jeffers, who died Friday morning, March 7, at 1 o'clock, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George L. Hibbard, at Montavilla, was born September 21, 1808, in Pennsylvania. She was married in 1829 to Joseph Jeffers, of Wheeling, W. Va. In 1847 Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers came to Oregon, settling first in Oregon City. In 1850 they moved to a homestead on the Lewis and Clark River, near Astoria, where the only surviving son, E. C. Jeffers, now resides. Mr. Jeffers, more familiarly known as "Judge Jeffers," occupied quite a prominent position in social and political affairs in Clatsop County, having twice been elected as a Representative to the Oregon Legislature on the Democratic ticket. His death occurred January 2, 1876.

From a family of 11, but two survive. Mrs. Jeffers was a prominent member of the Methodist Church, and at the laying of the corner-stone of the present Taylor-street Church her name, with other class leaders, was placed among the records. Mrs. Jeffers to the last retained an active mind. She was a loving mother and a kind and sympathizing friend to all. A noble Christian life was her constant example. Interment will be at Clatsop Plains in the family cemetery beside her husband.

died March 7-1900

Mrs. Martha McCormac, wife of Rev. J. McCormac, of this city, died at the Portland Sanitarium, last evening after a long and painful illness of cancer of the stomach. The deceased was a native of Baltimore, 73 years of age, and had resided in this city for many years. She was a woman of noble Christian character and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. Mrs. McCormac left a husband and three children, Mrs. Duniway of Portland, Dr. McCormac of Coos bay and Prof. J. W. McCormac of this city. The arrangements for the funeral have not been announced, but it is expected the services and interment will be in Portland. died May 5-1905

Died at Midnight—After but a week's illness, superinduced by a bad cold. Miss Effie Huntington died at the home of her sister, Mrs. M. A. Stevens, at No. 565 Franklin avenue, at midnight last night. The remains will be shipped hence to her old home in Cowlitz County, Washington, today, for interment. Jan. 12 1905

died Jan. 12 1905
Mrs. Susan M. Wirt, wife of A. C. Wirt, died at her home in Skipanon yesterday morning, aged 73 years. She was an Oregon pioneer coming to the state in 1847 and was one of the survivors of the Whitman massacre. She came to Astoria in 1848 and has resided in the county almost continuously. The funeral will be held next Sunday and the interment will be at Ocean View cemetery.

Charles Stevens died at his home in this city yesterday morning. The funeral services will be held at the Congregational church this morning and interment made in Clatsop cemetery. Mr. Stevens was 88 years of age. He was born in Hartford county, Connecticut, in 1811, and came to Oregon in 1852. Since that time he has resided almost continuously in Clatsop county. Mr. Stevens was respected by all who knew him. Jan. 2 1900

died May 8-1900

DEATH OF A MINISTER'S WIFE.—Mrs. William Short, wife of the rector of Grace Episcopal Church of Astoria, died late Tuesday evening at the Good Samaritan Hospital from cancer of the heart. Mrs. Short, who was 38 years of age, was well known here, having resided in this section of the country for 13 years. She was born in Bethel, Conn., in 1862, where she lived until shortly after her marriage, 25 years later, when she went to Astoria with her husband, who came to Oregon at the solicitation of Bishop Morris. The deceased left four children, three boys and a girl 12 years of age, who is attending St. Helen's Hall in this city. The remains were sent to Astoria last night and will be interred tomorrow afternoon.

Dec 9 - 1909
PIONEER WHO DIED AT PORT
 TOWNSEND IS BUR-IED HERE.

The Late Mrs. M. J. Fox.

Mrs. M. J. Fox, well known on the East Side as "Auntie" Fox, an Oregon pioneer, died at Port Townsend December 9, aged 83 years. The body was brought to Portland for burial.

Mrs. Fox was one of the early settlers on the East Side, where she lived with her husband, A. Fox, for a number of years. At his death, Mrs. Fox moved to Astoria, where she had since lived with her son. She was known to all old residents in East Portland, especially to the young people. Sickness or distress always found in "Auntie" Fox a sympathizer and helper. She was a member of Centenary Methodist Church. Her husband had run a brickyard where a three-story brick building now stands, on the southeast corner of East Burnside street and Union avenue.

Mrs. Fox is survived by four sons, John and Alsey Fox, of Astoria; George H. Fox, of Alameda, Cal.; Fred T. Fox, of the City of Mexico. Mrs. Mary E. Griffiths, of Port Townsend, Wash., is her daughter, and Miss Laura Fox, residing at 395 Tenth street, is a granddaughter. Mrs. Fox was born at Toronto, Ontario, July 22, 1826, and married March 12, 1842. She came to the Pacific Coast in April, 1863, and to Portland in June, 1870. She was a charter member of the W. C. T. U. and was a member of the Eastern Star. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at Taylor-street Methodist Church, and she was buried beside her husband in Lone Fir Cemetery.

SUTHERLAND—In this city, May 14, at late residence, 58 Lucretia st., Jane Sutherland, aged 84 years, mother of Mrs. Jane Smith, J. D. Sutherland. Funeral announcement later. 1907-

Portland DIED.

HOLMAN—At her residence, in this city, Aug. 3, 1900, at 9 o'clock P. M., Rachel Hixson Holman (relict of James D. Holman), aged 77 years. Notice of funeral hereafter.

DIED.

PANGBURN—At Seattle, Wash., Jan. 1, 1898, Mary W. Pangburn, aged 72 years, 6 months and 21 days; native of New York; mother of Mrs. Alice P. Hanson and E. L. Pangburn.

OLD RESIDENT OF ASTORIA.

THE LATE MICHAEL NOWLEN, PIONEER OF 1851.

ASTORIA, Or., March 5.—(Special.)—Michael Nowlen, one of the oldest residents of this section, and an Oregon pioneer of 1851, who died in Astoria, February 27, 1903, was born in Dublin, Ireland, in May, 1815, and came to the United States in 1836, settling in New Jersey. Later he went to Springfield, Ill., where he was married to Mrs. Nancy Bowman Orders in May, 1839. In 1851 the family came to Oregon, locating first at Nowlen's Mills, now known as Scotts, near Silvertown, and in July, 1856, they moved to this city, where they have since resided. Mr. Nowlen owned the first blacksmith shop in Astoria, built the first city water works here, and for years was actively identified with the commercial development of the Lower Columbia River district. He left a widow, who is now 89 years of age, three daughters, Mrs. M. J. Badollet, Mrs. Grenville Reed and Mrs. R. N. Carnahan, and one son, John F. Nowlen, all of whom reside in this city. He also left 15 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

PIONEER OF 1851.

Death of Mrs. Nancy Bowman Nowlen, of Astoria.

ASTORIA, Or., July 4.—(Special.)—Mrs. Nancy Bowman Nowlen, widow of the late Michael Nowlen, and an Oregon pioneer of 1851, died very peacefully at her residence in this city at 4 o'clock this morning of old age. Mrs. Nowlen was 90 years of age and was born on December 28, 1813, near Columbus, O., where she was married in 1831 to Job Orders. The family moved to Illinois in 1835, where Mr. Orders died in the following year, and on May 20, 1839, the deceased was married to Michael Nowlen at Springfield, Ill. She and her husband then moved to Peoria, where they resided until April 14, 1851, when they started across the plains for Oregon, arriving in Portland on October 1 of that year. After residing in Portland and Salem for a short time, Mr. Nowlen purchased a flouring and sawmill at Silvertown, where they lived until 1856, when they came to Astoria. Mr. Nowlen died here February 27, 1903.

Mrs. Nowlen was a conscientious Christian woman, loved and respected by all who knew her, and was an active member of the Methodist Church for 75 years. She was a descendant of an old pioneer American family, her ancestors being the Bowmans, of Massachusetts, who participated in the Revolutionary War. She is survived by four children: Mrs. J. Badollet, Mrs. Granville Reed, Mrs. R. N. Carnahan and J. F. Nowlen, all of whom are residents of this city. She also left 15 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. The funeral will be held Wednesday and the interment will probably be in the Old Pioneer Cemetery.

KAMM—At his residence, 488 Main street, December 14, 7:45 A. M., Jacob Kamm, aged 89 years. Funeral will be held Monday, December 16, at 1:30 P. M., the First Presbyterian Church. He will lie in state at the First Presbyterian Church from 11:30 A. M. until 1:30 P. M.

Died Dec. 14 - 1912

Suprise Party.

A pleasant sheet and pillow-case party was given by Miss. Casa Van Dusen and Miss Ella Crellin, last evening. Dancing was kept up until about 2 A. M. Among those present were the following: Misses Ella and Elvira Crellin, Casa Van Dusen, Allie and Myra Salter, Miss Hopkins, Nellie Hook, Jessie L. Patton, May Burnham, Frankie Bracken, Nellie McGillivray, Mrs. Salter and Mrs. J. Crellin. Gents—George Gaskill, Harry Blazdell, William Booth, Geo. Morgan, Geo. Simmons, Henry Agard, L. Agard, Edgar Boardman, E. A. Heron, W. J. Burwell, J. Marsh, J. Irwin, E. Gorch, J. McGillivray, J. Crellin and A. Crellin.

A large party of young ladies adopting the suggestion that early rising is conducive to health and happiness, appeared on the streets at a very early hour yesterday morning, enjoying a walk together. It must be understood that early retiring is about as essential as early rising, for a continuation of this plan.

There is a certain Don Juan in town who has two strings to his bow—one in Canada the other in Seattle. The PROMPTER is very anxious to learn which is the one the fickle youngster is after.

BORN.—In this city today, (March 8th) to the wife of Mr. W. I. Wadleigh, a bouncing, laughing, 9½-pound boy.

Born March 8th - 1909

News was received in the city today by Mr. and Mrs. B. Van Dusen of the arrival of fine baby boy at the home of Dr. Millrd Wadleigh, of Ely, Nevada. The mother and child are reported to be doing well.

A YOUNG DENTIST.

Dr. W. M. Wadleigh is now the proud father of an eight pound boy, the youngster having arrived early yesterday morning. As Wadleigh, Jr., made his debut on the anniversary of his father's birth, Wadleigh, Sr., had two good excuses for not being at his office yesterday. Both mother and son are doing nicely.

Good Bye.

We hope that we shall not be accused of any baby-ism, as a community, when we say that when Rev. and Mrs. T. A. Hyland departed from home yesterday on their long voyage tears were shed by not a few of their many steadfast friends in Astoria. Mr. Hyland has been here as Rector of St. Paul parish for 14 years. That is a longtime—but, in all that long time, nobody can bring to his door an action performed that was not calculated to ennoble life, make mankind better. Mrs. Hyland, as the instructress of our youth, some of whom are now grown to the estate of manhood, or womanhood, the educator of children who are to-day fathers or mothers themselves, has won for herself a distinction more lasting than temporal triumphs. We shall all miss them, sadly miss them; but may God in his divine way be with them, and again restore them to us, is the universal wish of all Astorians. Bon voyage, kind friends.

HAPPY FATHER.—We congratulate our friend C. J. Trenchard and his wife, of Astoria. It is a girl baby, and the father is the happiest man in that place. We will not mention that letter business.

BISHOP B. W. MORRIS RECENTLY DISCOVERED, while on a visit to the Coquille country, in Southern Oregon, an old copy of the Bible, which has a remarkable history. It was printed in London in 1728, and was used in Trinity church in New York before the Revolution. Besides the Bible and English prayer-book, it contains Sternhold and Hopkins' version of Psalms, with metrical versions of the Te Deum, Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments. It has also a form of family prayer in which the words "so mote it be" take the place of the ordinary amen. It is bound in thick oak boards, with heavy brass clasps, and bears many evidences of its age and hardships. This old sacred book was thrown out when Trinity church was destroyed by fire soon after New York was captured by the British in 1776. After a long and interesting history the Bible was brought to Oregon by Mrs. Judah Parker, in whose possession it is now.

STORK'S ARRIVAL.

April 17 - 1906
Last night a son was born to the wife of Charles Heilborn of this city. All are reported to be doing well.

Invitations have been received for the graduating exercises at the Good Samaritan Hospital training school for nurses at Portland, which will be held on Friday evening, June 15. Among those who will graduate is Miss Anita Cara Trenchard of this city.

EASTER SERVICES.

Attendants at Grace Church yesterday were delighted with the floral decorations which surpassed anything of the kind ever before witnessed in Astoria, perhaps in Oregon. This was made possible by the receipt of a bountiful supply of beautiful lillies, and other flowers rare in this region, from the magnificent gardens of Oakland, California, friends of this parish. The impressiveness of the solemn Easter Service was certainly heightened by the surroundings. There was a very large congregation present in the forenoon, but the grand feature of the day was the Children's Carol Service, at 6 p. m. The procession formed in the order of classes and marched to the music of the following hymn:

To Mark An Historical Spot.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21.—Bishop Nichols, of the Episcopal church, has received a letter from George W. Childs, of Philadelphia, offering to defray the expenses of erecting a suitable monument near Point Reyes, the place where Sir Francis Drake's chaplain read the Episcopal service in 1579. It is understood the monument will take the form of a memorial chapel.

This is the first day of the new year, the first day of the working week, the first day of the month, the first day of the new moon, the first day under the workings of the new registration law, and according to some mistaken people, it is also the first day of the new century. With all these new items and a set of regular New Year resolutions, people can make a good square beginning in life on January 1, 1900.

Dr. W. Millard Wadleigh and Miss Carol H. M. Young, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Morris Young of Salt Lake City, were married at St. Luke's church in San Francisco on December 16. Rev. M. D. Wilson, formerly pastor of Grace Episcopal church in this city officiating. Dr. Wadleigh is a grandson of Mrs. A. Van Dusen of this city.

PORTLAND-ASTORIA.

F. R. Strong Married to Miss Mary Taylor, Daughter of Col. Taylor. ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 16.—F. R. Strong, of Portland, and Miss Mary Taylor, daughter of Colonel James Taylor, were married this afternoon at the family residence of the bride, the Rev. Dr. Garner officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Strong left on the evening steamer for Portland, where they will reside in future.

Baby Boy Arrives.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Van Dusen of this city are receiving the congratulations of their many friends on the arrival at their home yesterday morning of a handsome baby boy, weighing 9 1-4 pounds. The mother was before her marriage, Miss Constance Fulton. The happy grandparents of the youngster born yesterday are Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. Brenham Van Dusen. Everybody is happy at both homes and Dr. Arthur Van Dusen reports mother and son doing nicely.

At 7:30 o'clock last evening Mr. Irdell Jourdan, of Newton, Ill., and Mrs. A. M. Perrie, were married at Trinity church, Santa Barbara, California, by the Rev. William Hugh Ramsey. No cards were issued.

Word has been received that a son was born on last Monday to the wife of Harold Chutter of Seattle. The new arrival is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Chutter, formerly of this city, but who now reside at Seattle.

Fifteen years ago, May 16, 1898, the first passenger train out of Astoria was operated into Portland and a special excursion of businessmen made the trip. The train was run into the heart of Portland, Fourth and Yamhill streets, to commemorate the occasion.

Dr. Ambrose L. Fulton died at his residence on Franklin avenue at half-past six o'clock this morning. The immediate cause of his death was Bright's disease which followed a severe case of grip with which he suffered last spring. Dr. Fulton was born in Allen county, Ohio, on October 12, 1851. He removed with his parents to Nebraska and was married there on March 26, 1878. Later he moved to Astoria, where he resided for over seventeen years. He leaves a widow and a son, two years old. The details of his funeral have not yet been arranged but it is expected that it will take place on next Monday morning from his late residence with the interment in Ocean View cemetery. His mother left her home in Omaha yesterday to be at his bedside and is expected to arrive in Astoria tomorrow evening. The funeral will not take place until her arrival. Dr. Fulton was one of the best known and most popular citizens of Astoria. In his profession he had the respect of his associates and the confidence of the public. He was a peculiarly affable and approachable man who endeared himself to all with whom he came in contact. It might be said with perfect truth that he died without having had an enemy and the announcement of his death caused universal sorrow. Nov 11

DEATH OF MRS. J. W. CONN.

Suddenly Stricken While Chatting With Friends.

Mrs. Valinda Conn, wife of J. W. Conn, the druggist, died suddenly Sunday evening, while in the apartments of friends in the Page building. Death was due to apoplexy, and though she had been ill for several days, her sudden demise was totally unexpected.

Mrs. A. C. Kinney, Fulton and Henderson were immediately summoned but medical aid was unavailing. Mrs. Conn was a native of Ohio and was sixty years of age. Besides the husband there survives a daughter, Mrs. V. Harris, of Oregon City, who arrived in the city last night. The funeral will be held from the Episcopal church at 10:30 this morning and services at the grave will be private. The members of Beaver Lodge, No. 35, I. O. O. F., will assemble at their hall and attend the funeral in a body.

MRS. ESTHER BROWN DEAD.

Widow of Clatsop County Pioneer Dies After Long Illness.

Mrs. Esther Brown, widow of the late Captain Hiram Brown, died last night shortly after 8 o'clock at the family residence on Franklin avenue. Mrs. Brown had been ill for some time and her death was not entirely unexpected. The arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made but it will be held Thursday and the details will be announced later.

Mrs. Brown was a pioneer of Clatsop county, having lived here for upward of half a century. Four children survive, C. S. Brown, Hiram Brown, Mrs. Annie Wilkinson and Mrs. Ida Mitchell, of San Francisco. All of the children except Mrs. Wilkinson, who is now in Europe, were present at the bedside when death intervened.

account for his despicable act. He was a spare man of some 30 years, and always wore glasses. His antecedents are unknown. Norberg left a card on his office door yesterday morning, saying: "Have gone out of town; will be back Saturday noon."

MRS. JOHNSON DEAD.

She Passed Away After a Long Illness.

May 30 - 1898

Mrs. Mary Ann Davis Johnson, widow of the late Philip Johnson, died shortly after noon today from valvular disease of the heart after an illness of several months duration, aged 72 years. The deceased was a native of Liverpool, was married in San Francisco and came to Astoria in 1849. She leaves two grandchildren, Esther Johnson, aged 12 years, Mary Johnson aged 18 years. The funeral will be held on Wednesday with interment at Greenwood.

died Oct 28 - 1897.

Mrs. Charles Ward the wife of one of the most respected citizens of Clatsop county died last night of nervous prostration. She was 75 years of age and a native of Devonshire, England, where she married her husband, who survives her, before coming to this country in the early sixties. For the past two years she has not been in good health but her death was not expected at this time. On Sunday evening last she appeared to be in good health but that evening she suddenly had a relapse and did not recover consciousness. She leaves a husband, two sons, John Ward, and Ben L. Ward and a daughter, Mrs. G. Wingate. Her funeral will take place on Saturday from the residence of her son Ben L. Ward and the interment will be in the old Clatsop cemetery. Oct 28

Died Oct. 29 - 1897.

Thomas G. Boelling one of the oldest residents of Astoria although still quite a young man died early this morning after a prolonged illness. He was 41 years of age and until a few months ago when he suffered a paralytic stroke he was an active figure in business and social life. He was born in Astoria and is survived by his mother, three sisters and one brother. His funeral will take place on Sunday and the interment will be in the new Clatsop cemetery. Oct 29

Died Feb. 1898.

Mrs. P. Boelling, who has been ailing for some time past, died at 11 o'clock last night. Mrs. Boelling was in her 80th year, having been born in May, 1818, in Bavaria, Germany, and was a pioneer of 1847. She settled in Astoria with her husband in 1849. Since then she has been one of Clatsop county's foremost citizens and through all the early days of colonization and building up at the mouth of the Columbia was a prominent figure in every movement for advancement. Mrs. Boelling leaves surviving her four children; three daughters, Mrs. M. C. Flavel, Sophie and Eliza G. Boelling, and one son, V. Boelling.

Died Nov. 12, 1897.

Joseph Gorman, aged 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gorman, formerly well-known residents of Astoria, now residing in Tacoma, was killed on a train out from Tacoma the latter part of last week.

CAPT. BROWN DEAD

OLDEST RIVER PILOT IN OREGON EXPIRES IN ASTORIA.

Handled Ocean Vessels Between Astoria and Portland for 32 Years - Sketch of His Life.

ASTORIA, Or., March 9.—Captain Hiram Brown, a pioneer, the oldest river pilot in Oregon, and one of Astoria's wealthiest citizens, died early this morning, after years of sickness. The immediate cause of death was dropsy. The funeral services will be held at Grace church at 1 P. M. tomorrow. The Masons, Pioneer Society and Columbia Pilots' harbor, No. 22, of which deceased was a member, will assist. Captain Brown left a widow, and two daughters and one son.

(Captain Hiram Brown was born in Cayuga county, New York, December 14, 1823. His first experience in steamboat life was obtained on the Mississippi river from 1844 to 1848. He came to the Pacific coast shortly after the discovery of gold in California, and in 1851 resumed his preferred calling and ran the steamer Lot Whitcomb on the Willamette and Columbia rivers. In March, 1857, he was engaged to pilot ocean steamships between Astoria and Portland, and acted most successfully in that capacity for 32 years, resigning his position in 1889, since which time he had enjoyed a well-earned retirement. He was an exemplary citizen and gained the respect of all who knew him. He was the oldest member and a past master of Temple lodge, No. 7, A. F. & A. M., of Astoria, his membership dating from February 5, 1856.)

Alexander Campbell died at his residence at 10 o'clock this morning. He has been suffering for several years with Bright's disease but the immediate cause of his death was heart failure. Yesterday his physician told him that his end was near and he resignedly waited the end. He was conscious until shortly before he passed away and to his family he spoke in a courageous and happy way. He was a Canadian by birth and was born in Kingston, Ontario about 66 years ago where he has several sisters still living. In his early life he was engaged in steamboating on the Mississippi and later came to the Pacific coast and was for a number of years connected with the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's boats between San Francisco and Panama. He has been a resident of Astoria for the past sixteen years and had probably as many personal friends as any other man in Astoria. He had personal traits that drew people to him and his friendships were lasting. He was a Mason, Elk, Knight, Redman and Odd Fellow. His funeral which will take place on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock will be conducted by the local lodge of Masons. A widow, two sons and two daughters survive him.

Pendleton, Or., May 8.—In the death of Harry D. Gray last Thursday evening, Pendleton lost one of her most prominent and progressive young business men. For nine years he had been the manager and principal owner of Gray Brothers grocery and had been identified with many of the municipal activities. His death followed an illness of several months.

Mr. Gray was a member of one of the oldest of pioneer northwest families, his grandfather, W. H. Gray, having crossed the plains in 1836 with Marcus Whitman. His father, the late Captain J. H. D. Gray, was a well known Columbia river navigator, and was also prominent in Clatsop county politics and business. Harry Gray was born in Astoria December 11, 1872, and lived there until 1908, when he came to Pendleton. He was connected with the Clatsop Mill company for a number of years and was a stockholder in it when he died.

Mr. Gray is survived by his mother, by two brothers, Will J. of Spokane and Charles E. of Portland, and three sisters, Mrs. George Hartman, and Miss Louise Gray of Pendleton and Mrs. A. R. Jones of Portland. Captain W. P. Gray of Pasco and James T. Gray are uncles and Mrs. Jacob Kamm of Portland and Mrs. Sarah Abernathy of Forest Grove are aunts. He was a member of the Elks and Knights of Pythias.

en of a complicated character has been variously pronounced different stages as typhoid fever, intermittent fever and Bright's disease. Funeral services were held in the Episcopal church and were largely attended.

Mr. True was uniformly and agreeable in his behavior and was highly esteemed and liked by all who knew him, who mourn his loss as a friend and gentleman.

DIED.—Miss Anna Booth Mitchell, aged 24 years, died of consumption in this city yesterday, and was buried today. Miss Mitchell was the daughter of Mr. C. L. Mitchell, and the sister of Mrs. David Higgins, as also of the late Mrs. S. L. Maxwell. She had long been a sufferer from the disease which finally carried her off, and by medical assistance, the change of climate, &c., had made without avail every possible effort for her own recovery. She had a large circle of friends here and elsewhere, to whom the announcement of her early death will be one of much sadness.

Obituary.

Mary Augusta Dix Gray, a loved Christian daughter, sister, wife and mother. Born at Balston Springs, N. Y., January 2, 1810, married in Ithaca, N. Y., to W. H. Gray of Utica, N. Y., Feb. 27, 1838; started for Oregon Feb. 28, 1838; proceeded to the Lapwai, Rev. H. H. Spalding's mission station; commenced a mission school of fifty to one hundred native children, under a pine tree, within two weeks after her arrival, which continued during the fall and winter; from the pine-tree school house she entered with her pupils into the log, puncheon-seated and earth-floor school house, till March, 1839. In the fall of 1839, with her husband, son and two Nez Perce Indians in a chinook canoe, left for the Whitman station, where she remained, assisting Mrs. Whitman in teaching her school, till November, 1842; proceeded with husband, one son and two daughters in a Hudson Bay Co.'s batteau, to Celilo, thence in an Indian canoe by Vancouver and Oregon City, to near Butteville, thence to the place selected to build the Oregon Institute. In 1844 moved to Oregon City; in 1846 to Clatsop plains; in 1855, with family, to Astoria; in 1858, her husband and one son having preceded her to Fort Hope, B. C., she, with remaining children, followed; in 1860-61 crossed the Manson mountains to Okanagon lake, W. After burying a younger sister, Mrs. Gadby of Albany, and attending the Oregon Pioneer Association in June last, and visiting her daughter in Olympia, having suffered with a severe catarrhal cough, she gradually commenced failing and on the morning of Dec. 8th took

OBITUARY.

Mr. A. W. Berry, one of Astoria's well known citizens and former businessmen, died at his residence in this city at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, at the age of 55 years.

Mr. Berry was born in Bewster, Mass., and came to Astoria in 1875. For 14 years he was in business here with Mr. I. Bergman. He then went into the canning business in Alaska, where he remained two years, and from there went to Portland, where he was in business a short time, until stricken with paralysis about a year ago, when he returned to Astoria.

At 8:30 yesterday morning Mr. Berry was taken down by a stroke of apoplexy and died from its effects in the afternoon. He leaves a wife, two daughters and a son.

Paul Ferchen, the son of Captain P. E. Ferchen, died last evening after a protracted illness. He was affected with consumption which turned into tubercula meningitis and soon wore his life away. For the past few weeks his life has been despaired of but his last hours were made as comfortable as skillful physicians and nurses could make it. He was of a lovable disposition that his sickness did not mar and it will always be remembered by his parents that he did not fear death when he was told that it was near. His funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from Grace church at 1:30 o'clock and the interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

her seat at the breakfast table as usual, but soon left it for her room, her husband not noticing her leaving, but in a few moments found her in her room vomiting; she suggested remedies which she was accustomed to use, but not having the desired effect she continued to sink; her husband immediately sent for her son, daughter, and a doctor from Astoria. Her husband said to her, "Mother, are you going to leave us? Are you prepared to go?" She replied, "Yes, if it is the Lord's will; I have endeavored to serve Him and care for my family. He will not forsake me now." From that moment she appeared to be relieved, and with but little more conversation in reference to family matters, ceased uttering her prayer that her children and friends might join her in Father's house, not made with hands—"with our Lord and Savior," who had been with her in all her wanderings and trials on earth.

SUDDEN DEATH.

Robert Trenchard, a son of the late Dr. Trenchard, whose widow now resides in Astoria, died at Salem Friday night. He had been living near Salem during the last two years, where he was running a dairy. A few days ago he was taken sick with measles from the effects of which he was rapidly recovering, when through negligence he contracted a severe cold which caused his death. He was born in Astoria where he resided until within about three years ago, and was about twenty years old. He had many friends both at his old home and in Salem, and this city, and has been known since his boyhood as a thoroughly honest, well-behaved young man. His remains were brought to this city yesterday afternoon on the east side train, and will be taken to Astoria this morning on the Fleetwood.

Death of Robt. Trenchard.

The many friends of Robt. M. Trenchard heard with deep regret of his death yesterday morning. He was down here about two weeks ago in the best of health, and went back to his place at Salem full of hope and enterprise. He was a young man of great promise, in the twentieth year of his age, and was a universal favorite. He was so affable; so full of enterprise, so everything that one is apt to admire in a young man that many in this community feel his death as a personal loss. His friends and relatives here have universal sympathy in their sad bereavement.

A BOY DROWNED

ASTORIA, Aug. 28.—Three boys, J. Babbage, R. Prael and Curtis Perry, went duck hunting in this vicinity this morning. About 8 o'clock, at the mouth of a creek, the boat upset. Curtis Perry was seized with a fit and tried to get to shore, but was almost immediately drowned. Deceased was a general favorite, about 16 years old, only son of Mrs. Perry, and a nephew of County Clerk Trenchard. There is general expressions of regret at the sad accident.

All that was mortal of the lamented Curtis Perrie was yesterday given interment in the old cemetery on the hill. The funeral services at the Episcopal church were brief but impressive and the body was borne to the grave amid the sincerest grief of all present.

JUDGE WAITE DEAD.

PORTLAND, Dec. 12.—Judge A. E. Waite, ex-chief justice of the Oregon supreme court, died today at Canby, aged 85. He was editor of the Oregon Spectator, published at Oregon City in 1848.

The funeral of the late William W. Parker, who died Monday afternoon, will be held at 12 o'clock today from his late residence, corner of Bond and Third streets. Rev. Henry Marcotte, of the Presbyterian church, will conduct the services. The interment will take place at the old Pioneer cemetery, on Clatsop plains, members of the Pioneer and Historian Society acting as pallbearers. The funeral will be attended by the members of the society in a body.

Daughter of an Oregon Pioneer.
SEATTLE, July 15.—Eva Wait Hanford, wife of Frank Hanford, died this morning. She was the daughter of the Hon. E. Wait, an Oregon pioneer, was born in Portland and was 30 years old.

DIED.—Robert Trenchard, brother to C. J. Trenchard of Astoria, died near Salem yesterday. He went up there some months ago, and with a young man named Wheeler engaged in the dairy business. A short time since he took the measles, which finally settled in his head causing his death. His remains were brought down on the train last evening in charge of Hon. Rocky Earhart, and were met here by his sorrowing mother who will proceed with him to Astoria, where the funeral will take place.

A Letter from "Chemeketa."

SALEM, May 31, 1882.

EDITOR ASTORIAN.

It is no longer a life on a boundless main,

No brilliant but distant shore,
Where the loved ones who are called away.

Must go to return no more.

The eye that shuts in a dying hour
Will open the next in bliss;
The welcome will sound in a heavenly world

Ere the farewell is hushed in this."

Although somewhat late, it seems but proper to speak a passing word of Robert Trenchard, who lately passed away in this city, to find a last resting-place in his home in Astoria. During his short residence here Mr. Trenchard made many warm friends, and his sudden call to the other land was a matter of regret to all who had known him. Especial sympathy went out for the mother so sadly bereaved.

DIED.

LEINEWEBER—On Monday the 11th inst at his late residence, T. H. Leineweber, aged 24 years and four months. Notice of funeral later.

Earth to Earth.

The last sad tribute that affection can pay to those from whom we all part upon life's pathway was yesterday tendered the remains of Robert Trenchard. The body, which had arrived from Portland Sunday afternoon, was borne from the Episcopal church to the graveyard, where the beautiful liturgy of that faith gave promise of consolation to the mourners, that, though the coffin-lid hid the inanimate form of son and brother from the yearning gaze of those who loved him so well, yet the spirit rose triumphant o'er the tomb to meet and mingle with the souls of those that will some day greet our own, when we, all of us, like streaks of morning cloud, shall have vanished into the infinite azure of eternity.

Nathanial Weld Tallant, who was stricken with apoplexy on Saturday morning, died at 6:30 on the evening of that day, having never recovered consciousness. The deceased was born in Nantucket, Massachusetts, on January 25, 1834. He removed to San Francisco in 1850 and that city has since been his home. He has been associated with the Cutting Packing Company for over 30 years and in 1874 took charge of that company's cannery on the Columbia river. At the time of his death he was president of the Columbia River Packing Company. His brother, Mr. E. W. Tallant of this city, and a sister, who resides in California, survive him. He was unmarried. Mr. Tallant was a progressive and energetic business man and had built up an enviable reputation among the commercial interests of the coast. The remains, accompanied by Mr. E. W. Tallant, were taken to San Francisco this morning for interment.

DR. ROBINSON DEAD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 1.—Dr. Luke Robinson, one of the most prominent physicians in California, died suddenly of heart disease on a Southern Pacific train near Lathrop in the San Joaquin valley. He was a member of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, and ex-president of the State Medical Society, besides being connected with the state university and other public institutions.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The funeral services of the late J. C. Bryce will be held at the Presbyterian church Friday, April 2, at 12 o'clock. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

Interment at Clatsop cemetery. Train will leave from foot of Ninth street.

W. A. L.—At her father's home, near Aurora, Sunday, July 19, Laurens J., wife of Charles N. Wait, aged 31 years, 11 months. Funeral at Canby, Or., Wednesday morning, July 22, on arrival of train from Portland.

Lloyd Van Dusen Dead.

This morning, between 10 and 11 o'clock, the sad news was telegraphed to this city from Seattle that Lloyd Van Dusen had passed away. This news was somewhat expected, yet to the anxious waiting hearts of the sorrowing family it was a hard blow to hear. Only a short time since Lloyd's father was called away by the hand of death, and ere they had recovered from the shock another loved one is stricken down. The tender sympathies of kind friends and loving relatives will now quickly respond to this last sad bereavement, and what consolation the mourning ones can gain from that source will be theirs to the fullest measure.

Lloyd Van Dusen was born in Astoria August 29th, 1860, and was 24 years and 25 days old at his death, which took place in Seattle, Sept. 23, 1884, at 10:10 a. m. He was the second youngest child of the late Hon. A. and Caroline Van Dusen. Lloyd left this city for a visit to Seattle some three weeks since, and on Thursday last was taken suddenly ill on the street, and was removed to the house of a stranger, where he died. The immediate cause of his death was cholera morbus, though his system had been weakened by other maladies. Saturday last his condition was considered to be somewhat alarming, and Dr. Crang, of this city, his mother and a brother, H. G. Van Dusen and wife, went to Seattle, and everything was done in the power of nursing and medical aid to save the sufferer, but without avail. The body will be brought to this city for burial, for which purpose the steamer Alice, with Mr. C. J. Trenchard, D. A. McIntosh and a delegation of Knights of Pythias went to Kalama this afternoon, and will return to-morrow. Deceased was a member of Astor Lodge No. 6, K. of P., and of Rescue Engine Company No. 2. His circle of friends was extensive, and by all he was beloved for his many admirable qualities. By his death a youth of great promise is taken away, and the void so created will be one difficult to fill.

MOHAWK.

Death of Mrs. M. Catherine Van Dusen, an Old Resident.

Mohawk, June 16.—M. Catherine Van Dusen, widow of Gilbert G. Van Dusen, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward L. Prince, shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon. She was the daughter of Dr. James Davis of Connecticut. She had been a resident of Mohawk since 1859. Thus passed a good mother and a kind friend, a woman who had endeared herself to all and her circle of friends was large. Of a sympathetic nature, she always entered into the joys and sorrows of others, both old and young, as if they were her own. She is survived by one brother, James W. Davis of New York city; three children, Mrs. Edward L. Prince, Mrs. Valentine Brown and Frank L. Van Dusen; also two grandchildren, Charles L. Prince and Mabel E. Prince, all of Mohawk. Funeral Thursday, June 19, at 3 p. m., from the home of her son-in-law, Edward L. Prince, corner Marshall avenue and Orchard street. Mohawk. Rev. E. V. Stevens will officiate. Interment at Mohawk.

The Funeral

This afternoon all that was mortal of our esteemed fellow townsman, Lloyd Van Dusen, was laid away forever from the sight of his friends, his memory only kept green by his numberless good qualities, remaining with them. Seldom has a young citizen's loss been so keenly felt in the place where he was best known and respected. From public and private buildings floated the national emblem at half-mast, in mute tribute to the worth of the departed. Many of the prominent business places of the city were closed, and at one time it appeared that the whole population had neglected everything else to pay their last respectful services to their friends. The hearse containing the remains approached Grace Episcopal church through double ranks of the fire companies and Astor Lodge No. 6, Knights of Pythias, the latter with arms presented, the usual badges of mourning being worn by the societies. The hearse was accompanied by six pall-bearers, and was followed by a carriage containing relatives of the deceased, followed by other relatives and a very large concourse of friends. The church was crowded to its utmost capacity, a great many being unable to obtain admittance. The choir rendered in a touching manner the anthem from the 39th and 90th psalms, followed by the beautiful Episcopal service for the dead. After congregational singing of "Nearer, My God, to Thee," the pastor, Rev. M. D. Wilson, selecting the 17th verse, 3d chapter of Joshua, made an address to the bereaved relatives and friends of the departed, delicately offering the only consolation left them to those who felt his loss most keenly. After a reverential repeating of the Lord's Prayer by the congregation and a petition to the Most High for the departed and those who mourned his loss, the body was conveyed to the steamer Clara Parker, followed by a large concourse of people, extending fully three blocks. The body was taken to the Clatsop cemetery and laid at rest. Nothing remains of Lloyd Van Dusen but the fondest memories of a loving, dutiful citizen, son and brother.

DEATH OF LLOYD VAN DUSEN.

ASTORIA, Sept. 23.—[Special.]—Flags have been at half mast to-day, as a token of respect to Lloyd Van Dusen, youngest son of the late Hon. A. Van Dusen. For recreation and pleasure he left here only a few days ago, for Puget Sound. He was taken ill on Friday last, and to-day news came of his death. He was a Knight Pythian, and a delegation from that order chartered the steamer Alice to take charge of the remains to-night, on arrival of the train at Kalama. Young Lloyd was universally esteemed by this community, and the bereaved mother and relatives have our fullest sympathy.

GOD'S FINGER TOUCHED MRS. VAN DUSEN

End. Fri. July 22^d 1910

AND A LOVABLE ASTORIA PIONEER SLEEPS BENEATH THE SOD.

Surrounded by her children, grandchildren and other friends and relatives who were so near and dear to her in life Mrs. Caroline Van Dusen, one of the best known of Astoria pioneer settlers, died at the family home, 711 Franklin Avenue at 4 o'clock yesterday, with natural infirmities due to old age. The funeral arrangements have not as yet been made.

Mrs. Van Dusen emigrated to Oregon 63 years ago, and after a residence of one year in Oregon City, came to Astoria, where she has since resided. She was born in Wayne county, New York, September 3, 1825, and was at the time of her death nearly 86 years old. In 1847 the Van Dusen family emigrated to Michigan, where she was married to Adam Van Dusen, and immediately started for Oregon, arriving at Oregon City the same year. In the spring of 1848 Mr. and Mrs. Van Dusen settled in this city, where they have since resided until the death of Mr. Van Dusen several years ago.

She is survived by five children, 11 of whom are now in Astoria. They are Mrs. F. Westdahl, Mrs. C. J. Trenchard, Mrs. Geo. F. Strowbridge, Braham Van Dusen and Hustler G. Van Dusen.

About one year ago Mrs. Van Dusen, who previous to that time had enjoyed excellent health, was attacked with a general breakdown. She rapidly recovered, however, and until about two weeks since, when the trouble resulting in her death arose, had been exceptionally well, for her age. The children and grandchildren, with the exception of Dr. Millard Wadleigh, of Ely, Nev., arrived last week, and Monday held a family reunion at the old home, which "Mother" Van Dusen by which name she was familiarly known to practically every resident of the city, apparently enjoyed very much. Last Tuesday, however, her condition, which became alarming, changed for the worse until yesterday when the end came.

Mrs. Van Dusen was throughout her entire lifetime an ardent worker in the Episcopal church, of which she was a member and her death will be mourned by many, not only in Astoria, but throughout the state.

Died April 13 - 1903

E. R. Hawes died this morning at half past eleven o'clock after an illness of a number of years during which he suffered almost constantly. The disease with which he was affected was dropsy. Mr. Hawes was born at Union, Maine on February 10, 1842. Shortly after the close of the civil war of which he was a veteran he came to Astoria and has resided here since and until the last few years was actively engaged in business and was a man highly thought of and respected both in his business and private life. He leaves a widow and two children. The arrangements for his funeral have not yet been completed but it is expected that it will take place on Sunday under the auspices of the Masons, Odd Fellows and G. A. R. as he was a member of each of these organizations.

CHARLES THEODORE HEILBORN

Mrs. Fanny Clark Montgomery, wife of Mr. A. Montgomery and one of the pioneer women of Clatsop county, died about noon today after an illness of several months. The funeral will be held from the family residence at 10:30 on Sunday morning, Rev. Dell of the Congregational church officiating, and the interment will be in Ocean View cemetery. The services at the grave will be private. Mrs. Montgomery was 75 years of age and was born in Chelsea, Vermont, on February 4, 1825. She came to Astoria in 1859 via the Isthmus of Panama in company with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Parker. She was married to Mr. Montgomery in this city on May 29, 1859, and has resided here since that time. Mrs. Montgomery was a charter member of the Congregational church and of the Women's Relief Corps and was an active worker in each up to the time of her last illness. She leaves a husband and one child, John A. Montgomery of this city.

Died Oct-16-1902
DEATH OF MRS. NOYES.—Mrs. Sarah Jane Noyes, widow of the late Captain Allen Noyes, died at her residence, 155 North Twenty-second street, some time during Tuesday night, in the 80th year of her age. Captain and Mrs. Noyes came to Oregon in 1870 and lived for a long time at Astoria. In 1886 they built their residence in this city, where Mrs. Noyes lived until the closing scene. She formerly resided at Seaside, and was the daughter of Josiah and Mary Stetson, of Center Lincolnville, Me., of which state her ancestors were among the very earliest settlers. She was a woman of strong character and marked individuality, especially noted for her attention and kindness to the sick. Her end was peaceful. She retired in her usual health and was found lying quietly at rest the next morning. She had died "as one who wraps the drapery of his couch around him and lies hfm down to pleasant dreams."

April 13 - 1901 -

Mrs. Ruth Garner, widow of the late Rev. E. W. Garner, D. D., died during last evening of heart trouble, with which she had suffered for a long time. Her end was as peaceful as could be wished as she passed away during her sleep with a happy and peaceful smile on her face. She was a native of England and 60 years of age. The arrangements for her funeral have not been made but it will probably be held on Monday.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. John Hobson will take place from the family residence at 12 o'clock today. Train leaves at 1 o'clock. The interment will be at Pioneer Cemetery, Clatsop Plains.

MRS. JOHN CRELLIN DEAD.

An Estimable and Well Known Woman Passes Away.

OAKLAND, Aug. 19.—Mrs. Delina Crellin, widow of the late John Crellin, died at her home, 1061 Oak street, this morning. She was a lady of wide acquaintance, genial temperament and charitable heart, whose demise will be deeply regretted. Her death was painless and peaceful. Deceased was a native of Maine, aged 50 years. She was the mother of Mrs. Elvira Cartwright, London, England; Mrs. Ella B. Holman, Portland, Oregon; T. A. Crellin of this city; C. L. Crellin of Ruby Hill Vineyard, Pleasanton, in this county; E. W. Crellin and Mrs. Anita B. Castleman, Paris, France. The funeral will take place next Sunday. Mrs. Crellin had made her home here since 1875. It was here most of her children were married. When the final summons came nearly all the members of the family were at her bedside.

Funeral Took Place This Afternoon From the Family Residence.

Died Nov. 2 - 1902
Dec. 6, 1896 2:58 PM
John Hobson, aged 72, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Clatsop county, died at his home in this city last Sunday morning about quarter past 2 o'clock. He had been very ill for about five months, and his death was expected at any time. He was informed months ago by his physician that he could not live long, and this decision was corroborated by Dr. Kenneth McKenzie, who examined him in Portland three months ago. He died of cancer in the rectum. The last time he was out of his house was on November 3d, when he was taken in a carriage to the polls to vote. He was then very pale, and low in strength.

John Hobson was born in England, December 4, 1824, and was a son of William and Margaret (Hutchinson) Hobson, also natives of England. The mother died when her children were small, and in 1843 the father set sail for the United States.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY CONDUCTS THE FUNERAL

ASTORIA, March 16.—(Special).—The funeral of the late B. C. Kindred was held from the Methodist Church at Hammond this morning, and the services were conducted by Rev. William Seymour Short, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, of this city. The funeral was attended by a large number of the friends of the deceased from this city, and was under the auspices of the Oregon Pioneer and Historical Society. The interment was in the old Pioneer Cemetery, on Clatsop Plains.

The Late B. C. Kindred.

F. R. STRONG DIES SUDDENLY AT HOME

Fred R. Strong, a leading attorney and business man of Portland, died suddenly at his residence yesterday morning. Aggravated nervous prostration affecting the nerve centers of the heart was the cause of death. His illness came upon him two years ago and he has been in poor health since then. A year ago his condition became serious and he was advised to give up his work altogether. He went to southern California to seek rest but grew no better and returned after two months. He improved steadily at home and built up hopes for his recovery until a sudden attack yesterday resulted fatally.

Mr. Strong's father, Judge William Strong, was an early pioneer who settled with his wife at Fort Vancouver in 1850. Fred, their third son was born in the spring of 1851 at Cathlamet, near Vancouver. There he lived for 11 years, when he came to Portland. He attended Portland academy, then completed his education at a law school in Albany, N. Y., graduating with honors. He returned to Portland and with his brother, Thomas N. Strong, entered the law firm of William Strong & Sons. When Judge Strong retired on account of old age, the two brothers continued the firm as Strong & Strong for several years. They finally dissolved partnership and continued their practice separately.

Fred R. Strong after this became actively interested in the steamship business. He was prominent in establishing and operating the old Pacific Coast Steamship company which endeavored to bring to Portland the trade from the smaller coast points.

The management of the Holladay house at Seaside, the Willamette Mills & Lumber Manufacturing company, and the Oregon Transfer company was left with Mr. Strong by the decease of Joseph Holladay.

In 1895 Mr. Strong married Miss Mary Taylor, daughter of Col. James Taylor of Astoria. Mrs. Strong survives him.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon.

There will be a meeting of the Multnomah County Bar association in department 1 of the state circuit court at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning to take action on the death of Attorney Strong. A committee will probably be appointed to draft resolutions of respect to his memory and condolence to his relatives, while arrangements may also be made for the association to attend the funeral in a body.

DEATH OF DR. WHITE

His Childhood Spent in Astoria where His Family was very Prominent.

The sad news of the death of Dr. James Taylor White, at Oakland, Cal., yesterday, has been received by friends in this city. His death was occasioned by typhoid fever, with which he was stricken some days ago. Daily reports have been received by friends in this city for the past week, and only Sunday a telegram was received saying that conditions seemed more favorable which brought hope that the turning point in the case had been reached and probably passed. Dr. White was the eldest son of the late Capt. John W. White, of the U. S. Revenue Marine service, and a grandson of the late Col. James Taylor, of this city, after whom he was named.

He was born at Port Townsend, Wash., but spent the early years of his childhood in this city, removing when still quite young, with his parents, to Oakland, Cal. After graduating in his profession, Dr. White made a number of cruises to Bering sea and the Arctic, as ship's surgeon, in the Revenue Cutter service. He afterwards located in a northern California town, where he practiced his profession for a number of years, until about two years ago, when he located in Oakland, Cal., where he was practicing his profession when taken ill. He leaves a wife, and a son about six months of age, surviving him.

HENRY B. THIELSEN DIES

Sun. April 7 - 1908
PROMINENT SALEM MAN PASSES
AFTER SHORT ILLNESS.

Railroad Man, Who Owned Beautiful Dairy Orchards in Polk County, Survived by Wife and Children.

SALEM, Or., April 7.—(Special).—Henry B. Thielson, prominent resident of Salem, died at his home here today, after an illness of several months. He was born at Marshall, Mich., March 5, 1850, attending school at Burlington, Ia. He had the unique distinction of becoming operator and train dispatcher on the C. B. & Q. at the age of 13 years. He railroaded from then until 1892.

He came to Portland in 1870. He constructed the Portland Roseburg division of the Southern Pacific and was chief engineer of the O. R. & N. under Ben Holladay when that road was constructed.

He was married in 1872 at Cheektowago, N. Y., to Miss Jennie Bennett, who survives him. He is also survived by three sons, H. William, Rick-real, Fred D., Salem, and Edward W., San Francisco, and one daughter, Miss Ellen B., of Salem.

He was one of the leading members of the Masonic Order in the state, being a Knight Templar and member of the Mystic Shrine. He had held all the offices in the Oregon grand lodge, the commandery and the local lodges.

Mr. Thielson was owner of the beautiful Dairy Orchards at Thielson station, one of the finest ranches in Polk County. Funeral arrangements have not been completed, although the interment will be in Riverview Cemetery, Portland.

DEATH OF MRS. M. L. HOYT

Prominent Pioneer Woman of Portland Passes Away.

Mrs. Mary L. Hoyt, one of Portland's most highly respected pioneer women, died last evening at 10 o'clock at her residence, 663 Tillamook street. Mrs. Hoyt has been an invalid for 25 years, having suffered a severe attack of rheumatism, which confined her to her home. Her death at the age of 60 years was hastened by attacks of la grippe within the last two years.

Mrs. Hoyt crossed the plains in the year 1852 with her father, Dr. Justin Millard, one of the first physicians of the city. The party started from Keokuk, Ia., and the journey consumed six months. Of her brothers and sisters who made the trip, Mrs. Harriet N. Morse, of Portland, is the only survivor. In 1861 Mrs. Hoyt was married to Captain Henry L. Hoyt, a pioneer of 1849, and one of the first steamboatmen on the river, who died three years ago. She is survived by a son, Ralph W. Hoyt, cashier of the Merchants' National Bank, and Mrs. Walter M. Cook. Mrs. Hoyt was a loyal member of the First Presbyterian Church, although for many years she was unable to take an active part in the church work in which she took such a faithful interest.

The funeral will take place Friday at 1:30 P. M. from the Hoyt residence, 663 Tillamook street, Irvington.

OLD-TIME PURSER DEAD

W. G. Dillingham, Well Known Here, Passes Away in Maine.

W. G. Dillingham, who died at his home in Bangor, Me., October 26, will be remembered by many Portland residents and particularly by persons residing along the Columbia River.

Mr. Dillingham was purser on the Astoria boats for more than 15 years, alternating every other day with Dan O'Neil. In those days the Dixie Thompson and the Emma Hayward were favorite boats and Mr. Dillingham and Dan O'Neil seemed to be almost a part of them. On account of their uniform courtesy and kindness, they were highly esteemed by the traveling public.

A telegram was received today by R. G. Prael announcing the death of Mrs. H. Du Buisson at Tacoma last evening, after a short illness. The deceased was 74 years of age and a sister of Mrs. Threasa E. Prael of this city and Mrs. Charles Heilborn of St. Helens, Ore. At the time of Mrs. Du Buisson's death she was residing with her son, M. G. A. DuBuisson, who is a resident of Tacoma. The interment will be at that city.

He Is Unable to Help Himself.
Young Woman With Him.

ASTORIA, Or., May 25.—(Special.)—Harry George, only son of George H. George, a Columbia River canneryman, was accidentally drowned in Young's River about 3 o'clock this afternoon. During the afternoon George and Miss Winifred Higgins went for a sail in a small boat. They had been out but a short time, and were just above the Youngs River bridge, when the boat suddenly gave a lurch and the boom swung around, striking George in the head and knocking him overboard. The young man was an expert swimmer, but he must have been dazed from the effects of the blow, as he swam a few strokes, almost in a circle, and sank before help arrived, although a launch was but a short distance away, and hastened to the rescue when those on board heard the young lady's screams. The body has not been recovered, although several people have been dragging for it, and a diver was at work for several hours.

The deceased was 20 years of age, and had just completed his sophomore year at Stanford University, returning home but a few days ago for the Summer vacation. He was a young man of exceptionally fine character, stood high in his studies, and was a favorite among his schoolmates, not only in this city but at Stanford as well.

ASTORIA BOY MEETS DEATH

Son of Judge Bowlby Killed in Accident Sunday

A telegram was received last evening conveying the sad intelligence that Hugh Bowlby, only son of Judge J. Q. A. Bowlby of this city, was killed by a railroad train at Streator, Illinois, Sunday afternoon, but no details of the accident were given. The deceased was a native of Astoria about 30 years of age and left besides his parents, one sister, Mrs. Chessman of Lewiston, Idaho. He was a young man of exemplary habits, most popular among his former schoolmates here and he left a host of warm personal friends who will regret to learn of his untimely end. At the time of his death he was in the employ of the gas light company at Streator. The remains will be brought to Astoria for interment.

MEETS QUEER DEATH.

University Student Burned by Electric Bathrobe.

EUGENE, Nov. 22.—Virgil Nolan of Klamath Falls, a student at the University of Oregon, and a member of the football team was burned to death this afternoon by a fire, which was caused by an electric bathrobe. Nolan put on the garment after his bath and either fainted or fell asleep. The odor of burning flesh led to the discovery that the garment had set the bed afire and caused the death of the young man.

Funeral Announcement.

The funeral services over the remains of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Allen Jr., will be held at 1:30 p. m. today at their residence on Fifteenth street. They will be private. Interment will be at the family plot in Ocean View cemetery.

A FATAL ACCIDENT.

Curtis Perrie Loses His Life on Young's River.

There was a sad accident on Young's river last Sunday morning, resulting in the death of Curtis T. A. Perrie, a young man of extraordinary promise and a general favorite. In company with Otto Prael and Wilbur Babbage, all three being about the same age, they started to go fishing up the Klaskanine early Sunday morning. They were in a small dingy, none too large for one but altogether too small for three occupants. When about a mile above the mouth of the Walluski one of the boys' foot slipped and he lurched against the side of the boat, which tipped over and sent all three into the water. They were cool and realized their position. Curtis Perrie drew Otto Prael from under the boat and put him on its upturned keel and also aided his other companion to get hold of the boat. They were then in the water about six minutes, and he was about to take hold of the boat and attempt to guide it and them to toward the shore, when the horrified pair saw him grow purplish black in the face and with one hand and arm curved in the air and the other pressed close to his breast the poor boy sank beneath the bubbling water which closed over his fair young life forever.

Prael and Babbage screamed for help. Their cries at length were heard by A. H. Sale at his place, and John Sale and A. E. Turlay came as quickly as possible to their rescue. It was then about half past nine: they had been in the water about an hour and a half and were almost dead from exhaustion. It is extremely probable that had aid been delayed a few moments longer there would have been mourning in three Astoria families instead of one.

They were brought to town as quickly as possible and when they told of the sinking of their unfortunate comrade the Lillian was procured and a host of willing workers went to the spot to recover the body. Several boats were engaged in grappling for the body, but not till a quarter to five yesterday morning was it recovered. It was in the same posture as when last seen in life. It was evident from his features and the entire absence of water in his body that he had not been drowned. The most probable theory is that in the excitement of the moment he had burst one of the large blood vessels of the brain. His throat was also gorged with blood, and he must have suffocated before he reached the bottom of the river.

ERNEST EDWARD FERGUSON DEAD

Ernest Edward Ferguson the 21-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Ferguson died at the family residence on Kensington avenue at 1:40 o'clock this morning after an illness of twelve weeks. The funeral announcement will be made later. The young man had been ailing for some time before his last fatal illness and the end was not unexpected.

Seldom has this community experienced more genuine regret than that evinced when it was learned that Curtis Perrie was dead. From every lip flowed expressions of sympathy for his mother and grandmother, whose idol he was. Brave, gentle and affectionate, a handsome, well-formed boy, with every promise of an honorable and useful manhood, it seems hard to realize that his young life has ended, and that nothing is left of him but an aching void in the hearts of those that knew and loved him. Truly may it be said of him: "None knew him but to love him; none named him but to praise."

On his mother, Mrs. Annie M. Perrie, and his grandmother, Mrs. Dr. Trenchard, the blow falls with crushing force. Both ladies are completely prostrated. The plain recital of the facts is a painful duty and if any word could lighten the grief of those to whom in life he was dear, how gladly would it be written.

Curtis T. A. Perrie was born May 19th, 1870. He was a general favorite in this city, his honest face, industrious habits and manly bearing endearing him alike to old and young.

The funeral will be at 10:30 this morning from the residence of Mrs. Dr. Trenchard. Services will be held at Grace Episcopal church, and the interment will be in the family lot in the cemetery on the hill.

DEATH IS ON WEDDING EVE

Astoria Young Woman Dies Following Operation for Appendicitis.

ASTORIA, Or., May 21.—(Special.)—Miss Jeannette Peterson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. I. Peterson, of this city, died today following an operation for appendicitis. She was quite prominent in society circles, was a native of Astoria, 24 years of age, and left besides her parents one sister.

A pathetic circumstance in connection with her death is the fact that she was to have been married during the present week.

Funeral Notice.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Margaret L. Upshur will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow, Saturday, afternoon from the Grace Episcopal church, the Rev. Turrill officiating. The interment will be in Ocean View cemetery.

Funeral Notice

MANY MOURN DEATH OF PIONEER.

MRS. MARION TRENCHARD, OF ASTORIA.

[Telegram Coast Special.]

ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Marion Trenchard, who died in Astoria at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. C. P. Upshur, Sunday, January 24, and was buried Wednesday in Ocean View Cemetery, was born in Ayrshire, Scotland, March 13, 1826. In 1851 she married Dr. C. J. Trenchard in Cathlamet, and a year later went to Astoria to reside. Dr. Trenchard died in Astoria in September, 1867.

Mrs. Trenchard's living children are Judge C. J. Trenchard and Mrs. C. P. Upshur, of Astoria; Mrs. I. Jordan, of San Gabriel, Cal.; George Trenchard, of Victoria, and Mrs. W. T. Chutter, of Seattle. During her long residence in Astoria Mrs. Trenchard led a devout Christian life, that endeared her to all who knew her.

Mrs. Margaret L. Upshur died at her home on 3rd street about 9 o'clock this morning following a long illness with a complication of diseases. The deceased was about 59 years of age and had resided in Astoria nearly all her life. She was a woman of noble character, loving mother and kind neighbor and was beloved by a large circle of warm personal friends. For several years and up to the time of her last illness she was in charge of the Astoria public library, a position which she filled most efficiently. Mrs. Upshur left two daughters and three sons. They are Mrs. Kate Brown of Richmond, Va., Mrs. Gertud Sperry of Topeka, Kans., Parke, Lawrence and Harry Upshur of Basin, Montana. She is also survived by one brother, George Trenchard of Victoria, B. C., and two sisters, Mrs. W. T. Chutter of Seattle and Mrs. Anna Jordan of Los Angeles. Mrs. Sperry has been with her mother for several weeks and was at the bedside when the end came.

THE LATE MRS. TRENCHARD

Mother of County Judge Dies at Home of Her Daughter.

After an illness that lasted over a long period, Mrs. Marion Trenchard died Sunday evening at the home of her daughter Mrs. C. P. Upshur. Mrs. Trenchard had lived in this city since 1851. Her maiden name was Muir, and she was born at Ayrshire, Scotland, March 13, 1826. Miss Muir was married in the old country to a Mr. Turner, and two sons, John and William Turner, resulted from this union. In 1847, Mrs. Turner and her two sons crossed the Atlantic with her parents. They settled at Vancouver island and two years later went to San Francisco. While en route from the Bay City to Columbia in 1850, she met her future husband, Dr. C. J. Trenchard, who was a passenger on the same vessel. They were married at Cathlamet in 1851, and a year later moved to Astoria. Dr. Trenchard died in this city in September, 1867. Dr. and Mrs. Trenchard's sons and daughters, who are still living, are:

Mrs. I. Jordan, San Gabriel, Cal.; Curtis J. Trenchard, Astoria; George Trenchard, Victoria; Mrs. C. P. Upshur, Astoria, and Mrs. W. T. Chutter, Seattle. Another daughter, Mary A. Trenchard, was drowned on Colonel Taylor's place at Clatsop plains in 1862. Miss Trenchard was visiting on the west side with a friend, Mrs. Hodge, and both met their deaths. The indications were that the elder lady lost her life in an ineffectual attempt to rescue her young friend, as the bodies were found locked in each other's arms.

Two sons, Charles and Robert Trenchard, died in this city in 1878 and 1883 respectively. John Turner died in Astoria and his brother William was killed in a southern Oregon logging camp. A younger brother, John Muir, lives at Sooke, a community near Victoria. Mrs. Chutter arrived in the city about two hours before her mother's death. Mrs. Jordan is ill at her California home, so will be unable to be present at the funeral.

The funeral will be held from the Grace church at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow and the interment will be in Ocean View cemetery on the west side. The services at the grave will be private. Rev. W. S. Short will officiate at the services.

Two Men Killed in Runaway.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 29.—John and Andrew Muir, sons of John Muir, a pioneer farmer of Sooke, were killed this afternoon. They were riding on a load of straw, when the team ran away, throwing them off. Their bodies were found within a short distance of one another.

CHUTTER—At Alhambra, Feb. 20, 1902, Mrs. W. T. Chutter, aged 69 years, wife of W. T. Chutter and mother of Mrs. Marion Trenchard, died at her home in Astoria. She was the daughter of John Muir, of San Jose, Cal., and sister of Mrs. Trenchard. Buried in Ocean View cemetery, Astoria, Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. M. J. Ferguson Dead.

ASTORIA, Or., March 25.—Mrs. M. J. Ferguson, one of Astoria's oldest and most highly-respected citizens, died this afternoon of Bright's disease, after an illness of several weeks. She left many children, several of whom are prominently identified with the business interests of this city. The news of her death was received with feelings of profound regret, as she had a large circle of warm friends. Mrs. Ferguson was well-known in Salem and The Dalles, where she passed much of her early life. She was 72 years of age.

HER END WAS PEACE.

Death of Mrs. M. J. Ferguson at Her Home Yesterday.

This city was thrown in a state of profound sorrow yesterday afternoon when the sad news of the death of Mrs. M. J. Ferguson became known. The lady had been ailing some time and her death was not unexpected. All that medical skill and the attention of kind and loving friends and children could do was done, but to no avail, and at 4:45 yesterday afternoon she breathed her last.

The sympathy of the entire community and wherever the lady was known is with the family in this hour of their sorrow. Funeral services will be held in the Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon at 1:30. The remains will be laid to rest in Greenwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Margaret J. Ferguson was born July 3, 1821, in Louisburg, Virginia. She came to Oregon by the Panama route in 1852. She crossed the isthmus on mules when the cholera was raging. The ship on which she was a passenger lay off the Panama coast for ten days, and her two little children, who were with her, took sick and died. All this time they were dropping overboard the dead. She came to Oregon and joined her husband at Salem, where they lived until 1862, when they moved to The Dalles, coming to this city in 1875, where she has ever since made her home.

Mrs. Ferguson was the mother of nine children, seven sons and two daughters, five of whom are living: Mrs. J. N. Griffin, H. B., F. W., J. E. and E. Z. Ferguson.

MISS KATIE FLAVEL IS DEAD

Died Thurs. Aug. 18-1910

POPULAR YOUNG LADY SUC-
CUMBS TO EXHAUSTION
DUE TO RHEUMATISM

After several months of almost unbearable suffering, death called Miss Katie Flavel, the youngest daughter of the late Captain George and Mrs. Mary C. Flavel at the family residence on Eighth street early yesterday morning. She succumbed to absolute exhaustion incident to an attack of sciatic rheumatism of almost a twelve month duration.

The funeral arrangements have not been made, but it was announced last night the services would likely be held from the home Saturday.

To those who have enjoyed a personal acquaintance with Miss Flavel, they can recall a most lovable character. She was a devoted friend whose thoughts were ever uppermost in advancing the best interests of her surroundings; always optimistic in her views and a close observer of conditions that kept her mind active ever since childhood. She was born in Astoria under the most favorable surroundings and devoted her life to the betterment of mankind. Of late years it has been the custom of the family to travel much and while in Europe Miss Flavel perfected her musical education. She possessed a beautiful voice which has contributed to the success of many social functions. She freely gave her talents wherever they would leave a bright spot in the world and her charity has been unbounded and without ostentation.

In the death of Miss Flavel Astoria loses one of its most ardent supporters. Whether abroad or at home she was ever espousing the best interests of the city. Liked in the social circle her presence was felt as her force of character always commanded attention. She has contributed in many ways toward the success of individual effort on the part of her friends and by her patient, earnest application to the principles of life she has left the world better for having lived.

Accompanied by the members of the family Miss Flavel was recently brought home from San Francisco, California, where she was ill for several months.

Funeral of Captain Flavel.

All that was mortal of the late Captain George Flavel was laid to rest yesterday in the Hillside cemetery. At the family residence the funeral services were held in the presence of a large circle of sorrowing friends, Rev. Dr. Garner officiating, assisted by Rev. T. A. Hyland. The funeral procession was the largest ever witnessed in Astoria. It was formed on Benton street, the route taken to the cemetery being by way of Jefferson to Main, down Main to Third, and along Third to West Ninth. The pall bearers were Brothers David Morgan, Hiram Brown, S. S. Gordon, E. R. Hawes, C. J. Trenchard, B. Van Dusen, I. W. Case, and J. Q. A. Bowlby, of Temple Lodge No. 7, A. F. and A. M., while following came the other members of the lodge. After the hearse came the family carriage containing Mrs. Flavel, Mr. George C. Flavel, and Gen. J. B. Wall.

The next carriage was occupied by Mrs. P. L. Cherry, Mrs. George C. Flavel, Miss Boelling and Dr. Chance.

Rev. T. A. Hyland, Mr. M. P. Calender, Mrs. Hustler and Mrs. A. Van Dusen occupied the next carriage, while the following one contained Mrs. G. Wingate, Mrs. Gray and Miss Gray.

The carriage of Mr. S. Elmore was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Elmore, Hon. C. W. Fulton and Mr. J. Hobson. The procession of friends on foot was a long one and bore eloquent testimony to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Rev. W. S. Short, W. M., and P. M., I. W. Case conducted the impressive services at the grave. Upon their return to the lodge-room a committee consisting of Mr. E. C. Holden, Mr. S. S. Gordon, and Mr. B. Van Dusen, was appointed by Temple Lodge to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of the deceased, and report at the next regular communication, and the furniture of the lodge room was ordered draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

Captain Flavel was one of the first members of Temple Lodge, having joined it nearly forty years ago.

Astoria lost one of its best known and most beloved citizens last night with the death at 9:20 p. m. of Mrs. Mary Christine Flavel, 88, at her home at Eighth and Duane streets. Death came quietly following an illness extending over some weeks.

Mrs. Flavel had resided in Astoria for 79 years at the time of her death. The widow of the late Capt. George C. Flavel, she was born in Cincinnati, O., May 19, 1839. In 1847 she crossed the plains in an ox team caravan with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Boelling.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Nellie Flavel; two sisters, Miss Sophia and Miss Elizabeth Boelling; one grandson, Harry C. Flavel; a daughter-in-law, Mrs. George C. Flavel; five grand children and a number of nieces.

died May 8 1900
Mrs. Short, wife of Rev. Wm. Seymour Short, rector of the Grace Episcopal church of this city, died at the Good Samaritan hospital in Portland at eleven o'clock last evening from the result of an operation that was performed on her there a few days ago. The details for her funeral have not been arranged but it will be in this city from Grace church on Friday afternoon with the interment in Greenwood cemetery. Mrs. Short came to Astoria about fifteen years ago with her husband from Connecticut shortly after their marriage and with the exception of a few trips to her early home, has resided in Astoria continuously. She was a woman of a perfect Christian character who endeared herself by her temperament and lovely disposition to every one with whom she came in contact. Not only will her personal friends mourn her death but many who knew of and appreciated her good works. She leaves three sons and a daughter.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

11/20/1896
Mrs. Elizebeth Coe Found Dead This Morning.

Mrs. Elizabeth Coe died very suddenly this morning at the residence of her sister, Mrs. N. Clinton, from apoplexy. Mrs. Coe has been a sufferer for several years from asthma but no immediate danger was anticipated and the announcement of her sudden death was a severe shock to her many friends and relatives. Yesterday she was about the house as usual and last night retired, apparently feeling as well and cheerful as ever. That was the last seen of her until about 9 o'clock this morning, when her sister went to call her found her dead in bed. The body was partially cold and it is thought life had been extinct fully two hours.

The deceased was 61 years of age, a daughter of the late Job Ross and a sister of Mrs. N. Clinton and Mrs. Mary Hall of this city. She leaves eight living children, all but one of whom reside in this vicinity. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon.

Feb. 12/1900 Death of Mr. Edwin Short.

Word has been received here by Frank Spittle, of the death at Miami, Florida, of Mr. Edwin Short, the venerable father of Rev. W. Seymour Short and of Mrs. Frank Spittle. Mr. Short was 73 years of age and was a victim of angina pectoris and his death was not altogether unanticipated. The remains will be taken to his old home at Bethel, Conn., for sepulture. Many Astorians cherish pleasant memories of Mr. Short's several visits to this city and will sympathize with those who mourn his demise.

BELOVED WOMAN DEAD.

1911 - Nov. 27 -
Miss Carrie E. Wheeler, Well Known here, Dies in East

Her many friends in this city will be saddened to learn of the death of Miss Carrie E. Wheeler, who passed away November 27 at the home of her brother, Henry A. Wheeler, in Bethel, Conn., at the age of 57 years, according to advices received here yesterday.

Local persons who knew Miss Wheeler recall her as a beautiful character, and the memory of her tender solicitude for the children of her sister, Mrs. W. S. Short, following the latter's death, will long remain. When the wife of Rev. Short, a local pastor for 30 years, died about 10 years ago, Miss Wheeler took charge of her brother-in-law's family, conducted his household, mothered her dead sister's children, and remained with them until Rev. Short went to Honolulu, when she went out with him to the Hawaiian islands and was for a short time on the staff of the Episcopal board of missions as a teacher.

Miss Wheeler returned to Oregon last March on account of ill health, and visited with the family of Frank Spittle. After returning to her home in Connecticut, last August, she never recovered, and sank by degrees until the end came a week ago last Monday.

Mrs. Jenny Campbell Van Glahn of Sellwood died early Sunday morning at St. Vincent's hospital in Portland, where she had been taken to be operated upon for cancer. The deceased, who was 63 years of age, was formerly Mrs. Alexander Campbell and resided in Astoria for many years. She was a member of Fern chapter Order of the Eastern Star of this city. died Sun. Sept. 24 - 1911 -

Died Jan 3 - 1901 -

Yesterday afternoon a neighbor called at the residence of Captain Henry Kindred to see his wife and found her lying on a bed in an unconscious condition with blood running from her mouth. A physician was summoned but she never recovered consciousness and died a short time afterwards. The cause of her death was hemorrhages of the lungs. When her husband left her at six o'clock in the morning, to go to the dredger W. S. Ladd on which he is working, she was in her usual health and made no remark about feeling different from her ordinary condition. Mrs. Kindred was 51 years of age and had resided in Astoria for the past thirty years. Beside her husband she leaves three sisters and two brothers who reside in California.

A telegram has been received by Frank L. Parker bringing the sad intelligence that Mrs. Anna Brown, wife of C. S. Brown of this city, died at nine o'clock last evening in San Francisco, after a long illness. Mrs. Brown had been a sufferer for several months from stomach trouble and she was taken to California a short time ago with a hope that treatment at the hands of some of the specialists there might bring relief. The deceased was about 42 years of age and besides her husband left one sister, Mrs. Shahower of South Bend, as well as several nephews and nieces. She was a woman of charming personality, who was held in high esteem by a large circle of warm personal friends, who will be pained to learn of her untimely death. It is understood the remains will be brought to Astoria for interment.

Later—A telegram was received this afternoon stating that the remains of the late Mrs. Brown, will arrive here on Tuesday evening's train. The funeral arrangements will be announced later. Fig. Tri. April 28 - 1911

ASTORIA MOURNS PASSING OF MRS. LOUIS KIRSCHHOFF

Beloved Resident of This City for Half Century Succumbs after Illness of Two Years.

General mourning over the city followed the death of Mrs. Louis Kirschhoff, a resident of Astoria for the last 50 years, at the family home, Twelfth and Exchange streets, at 1:30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Kirschhoff was 69 years old, and had been ill for two years. She was for many years one of the most prominent women of Astoria and many of those who had known her felt great grief at her passing.

Mrs. Kirschhoff was born in Germany and came to this city when she was only 19 years old, and had lived here ever since. She was a member of the Episcopal church. As her husband is an Odd Fellow, it is probable that that order will have charge of the funeral services. The funeral will be held from that Episcopal church Tuesday morning and will be private. Rev. Rosemuller, rector of the church, will officiate.

Mrs. Kirschhoff is survived by her husband, Louis Kirschhoff; two sons, Watson and Henry Binder, of this city; and three daughters, Mrs. George Beatty of Fort Stevens, Miss Alwyne Kirschhoff, and Mrs. J. H. Johannsen of Portland.

PIONEER DIES AFTER ILLNESS OF FEW MONTHS

BRENHAM VAN DUSEN DEATH IS BLOW TO ASTORIANS; WAS PROMINENT CITIZEN

Brenham Van Dusen, Astoria resident of the past 70 years, died at his home yesterday after a long illness. Mr. Van Dusen was born here when Astoria was in its infancy as a city, and had spent his entire life here.

As a prominent figure in Astoria business, civic and social life Mr. Van Dusen won the respect and admiration of his fellow citizens. Intimately acquainted with the history of the development of this community he maintained his interest in all phases of community development up until last July when a nervous breakdown confined him to his home and finally resulted in his death.

The Van Dusen family emigrated here fully 79 years ago, coming to Astoria in 1847. Adam Van Dusen, father of the dead pioneer, was one of the northwest's first storekeepers, and later founded a mercantile and ship chandlery business, in which he was joined by Brenham, when he had grown to early manhood.

After the death of the father, Brenham and H. G. Van Dusen, his brother, founded the first real estate and insurance business in Astoria. Mr. Van Dusen had been active head of the business up to a short while ago, when he was taken ill.

Mr. Van Dusen was one of the leading Masons of the Northwest, being past master of Temple lodge, as well as past master of the grand lodge of Oregon. He was also the only thirty-third degree Mason in Clatsop county.

He was married in 1884 to Fanny L. Dickinson. Mrs. Van Dusen survives him, as well as his two sons, Lloyd and Dr. Arthur Van Dusen, both prominent Astorians. He is also survived by three sisters, Mrs. F. Westphal and Mrs. George Strowbridge of Oakland, Cal., and Mrs. C. J. Trenchard of San Francisco. There are two grandchildren, Brenham and Fulton Van Dusen.

Services for Mr. Van Dusen will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday from the Grace Episcopal church, of which he had been a member during his entire lifetime, and a vestryman for the past 20 years. Rev. F. C. Taylor will have charge, with local Masonic orders taking part in the grave-side service. Interment will be in Ocean View cemetery. The services are to be private.

WILSON—At rest, in Oakland, April 2, 1919, Rev. Marion Dewees Wilson, Rector of St. Philip's Church, corner of Capp st. and Nicol ave., beloved husband of Annie Wilson, and loving father of Alice Wilson, a native of Pennsylvania, aged 67 years, 4 months and 14 days.

Funeral services Saturday, April 5, at 11 o'clock, at St. Philip's Church, corner of Capp st. and Nicol ave. Interment, Cypress Lawn Cemetery.

Funeral of Harry F. Van Dusen, well-known Chattanooga who died early Saturday afternoon, will be held from his residence this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mr. Van Dusen died at the home of G. H. Willson, general superintendent of the Marion Extract company, 1406 Bailey avenue, Highland Park, physicians attributing his death to heart trouble, from which he had been suffering for several months. While not acutely ill Saturday morning, the general state of his health and excessively high blood pressure had alarmed his family, and although news of his sudden death came as a profound shock to many friends, the end was not unexpected by those most intimately associated with him.

Members of the family said yesterday that Mr. Van Dusen left his home, 834 Fort Wood, in his automobile, shortly before 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon to go on a business errand in Highland Park. They were notified of his death a few minutes later. Mr. Van Dusen, driving

WOMAN PIONEER IS DEAD

MRS. VAN DUSEN SUCCEUMBS TO INFIRMITIES OF AGE.

Journey Across Plains in 1847 Recalled—Hospitable Hostess Famous in Early Days.

ASTORIA, Or., July 23.—(Special).—Mrs. Caroline Van Dusen, one of Clatsop County's oldest pioneer residents, died at the family home here last night after a long illness, due mainly to the infirmities of old age. She was nearly 85 years old.

Mrs. Van Dusen was born in New York in 1825. She was married to Mr. Van Dusen in 1845, and with him and Judge Aaron Wait and the late Judge Columbia Lancaster and family, left Michigan with two teams on March 4, 1847, to join the emigration from St. Joseph, Mo. On leaving St. Joseph, the party consisted of 48 wagons, with William Meek as guide.

Strife and dissensions occurred causing the party to break up into sections until reaching Fort Hall, where the California contingent branched off, the only persons en route to Oregon were those who started from Michigan together. Although many hardships were endured on the journey and some of the members of the party had narrow escapes, all reached Oregon City safely that Fall and remained there until the following Spring. Mr. Van Dusen took up a donation land claim on the Wallacut River, in Pacific County, Wash., but later relinquished this claim, and in the Spring of 1848 he and Mrs. Van Dusen settled on a claim on the west side of Young's Bay, now known as Sunnymeade, and their log cabin stood on the site of the present Adair home.

The Winter of 1849 was extremely long and cold, and for several weeks the family did not see a human being, until on Christmas morning Chief Waluski, of the Chinooks, fearing they were dead, went across the river from Smith's point and conveyed them to Astoria. In the Spring of 1849, Mrs. Van Dusen moved with her husband to Astoria, which at that time had only two frame houses, and Mr. Van Dusen started the first store here in which goods were sold from shelves, the Hudson Bay Company having always sold its goods from the boxes. They lived in one of the houses built by the survivors from the wrecked sloop Shark, near the present site of the Parker House.

The family built a more comfortable home in Uppertown in 1852, residing there until 1862, when they moved into what is now known as the Van Dusen house on Franklin avenue, a really palatial home for those early times, and one in which many of the early residents, as well as visitors, were entertained by the hospitable hostess.

Mrs. Van Dusen was actively associated with the establishment of Grace Episcopal Church in this city, and was one of the organizers of the Ladies' Guild. She left five children, Mrs. Florence Westdahl and Mrs. Mary Strowbridge, of Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Cara Trenchard and Brenham and Hustler G. Van Dusen, of this city. There are several grandchildren.

VAN DUSEN FUNERAL

Hosts of friends attended the funeral services yesterday afternoon at the Grace church for the late Hustler G. Van Dusen. The services were conducted by the Reverend Taylor and interment was in Ocean View cemetery. The flag at the city hall was flown at half mast yesterday in respect to the memory of the deceased.

AGED PIONEER PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Caroline Van Dusen Died
Last Evening

Mrs. Caroline Van Dusen, widow of the late Adam Van Dusen and one of Astoria's oldest and most beloved residents, as well as an Oregon pioneer of 1847, died shortly after four o'clock Friday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Trenchard, after an intermittent illness of several months, resulting from the infirmities of old age. Mrs. Van Dusen's first serious illness began nearly a year ago, but she soon recovered and was in fairly good health considering her extreme age until within the past two weeks, she suffered a relapse and gradually grew weaker until the end came peacefully last evening. All her children and grandchildren with the exception of one grandson, Dr. Millard Wadleigh of Ely, Nevada, arrived a few days ago and were at her bedside during her last illness.

Mrs. Caroline Childs Van Dusen, was born on a farm in Wayne county, New York, on September 3, 1825, and at the time of her death was nearly 85 years of age. When six years old she moved with her parent to Michigan and in 1845 at the age of 20 years, she was married there to the Adam Van Dusen. Mr. Van Dusen's health not being good, they decided to emigrate to Oregon and the young couple, accompanied by Judge Aaron Wait, as well as the late Judge Columbia Lancaster and family, left their home in Michigan with two teams on March 4, 1847, to join the emigration from St. Joseph, Mo. On leaving the latter place the party consisted of 48 wagons, with Willam Mæek as guide.

Strife and dissensions occurred causing the party to break up into sections, until upon reaching Fort Hall, where the California contingent branched off, the only persons en route to Oregon were those starting together from Michigan. Altho many hardships were endured on the journey and some of the members of the party had narrow escapes, all reached Oregon City safely that fall and remained there until the following spring. During the winter, Mr. Van Dusen visited the lower Columbia river and took up a donation land claim on the Wallacut river in Pacific county, Wash., but later he relinquished that claim and in the spring of 1848, he and Mrs. Van Dusen settled upon a claim on the west side of Youngs bay, that is now known as Sunnymeade, and their log cabin home stood on the site of the present Adair residence.

The winter of 1849 was an extremely long and cold one and for several weeks the family did not see another human being until on Christmas morning, Chief Walluski of the Chinooks, fearing they were dead, went across the river from Smth's Point and brought them to Astoria. In the spring of 1849, Mrs. Van Dusen with her husband moved to Astoria, which at that time had but two frame houses. They resided in one of the houses built by the survivors from the wrecked sloop Shark and located near the present site of the Parker house. In 1852 the family built a more comfortable home in Uppertown, residing there until 1862, when they moved into what is now known as the Van Dusen house on Franklin avenue, a really palatial home for those days, and one in which many of the early residents as well as visitors to this far western city were entertained by the hospitable hostess.

Mrs. Van Dusen was a lifelong member of the Episcopal church and for many years was one of the most energetic workers in its behalf. She was active associated with the establishment of Grace church in this city and was one of the organizers of the Ladies Guild, as well as being interested in various other worthy projects whose object was the betterment of the moral and social conditions of the community.

She left five children, Mrs. Florence

CLATSOP COUNTY PIONEER

Mrs. Caroline Van Dusen,
Deceased.

ASTORIA, Or., July 30.—(Special.)—Mrs. Caroline Van Dusen, who died here July 22, was born in New York in 1825. She married Mr. Van Dusen in 1845, and with him came West in 1847, settling on Young's Bay in 1848. The next year they moved into Astoria, Mr. Van Dusen establishing a store. Mrs. Van Dusen was actively associated with the establishment of Grace Episcopal Church in this city, and was one of the organizers of the Ladies' Guild. She left five children, Mrs. Florence Westdahl and Mrs. Mary Strowbridge, of Oakland, Cal.; Mrs. Clara Trenchard and Brenham and Hustler G. Van Dusen, of this city. There are several grandchildren.

H. G. VAN DUSEN SUCCUMBS TO ILLNESS AFTER THREE SCORE YEARS IN ASTORIA

Hustler G. Van Dusen, one of Astoria's best known pioneer citizens, died about 9:15 last evening at his home, 536 Harrison avenue, following an illness of several months.

The deceased was born in Astoria on October 3, 1858, 62 years ago, had resided here practically all his life and was associated with his brother in the Van Dusen Investment company. In former years he took an active interest in public affairs, was a member of the water commission as well as of the city cemetery commission and was one of the officers of the old Astoria Progressive Commercial Club, which was the sponsor of the artificial propagation of salmon on the Columbia river.

As a direct result of his activities with that organization, Mr. Van Dusen was appointed as Oregon state master fish warden, a position he filled most efficiently and he was the one official of the department who courageously advocated the prohibiting of commercial fishing for salmon on the natural spawning grounds of the upper river.

Mr. Van Dusen was a member of the vestry of Grace Episcopal church and had long been identified with the work of that church. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jane Van Dusen, and two daughters, Mrs. A. V. Allen, jr., and Miss Winnifred Van Dusen of this city. He also left one brother and three sisters. The latter are: Brenham Van Dusen, Astoria; Mrs. C. J. Trenchard, Mrs. Ferdinand Westdahl and Mrs. George Strowbridge, San Francisco.

The funeral will be held at 2 o'clock on Friday afternoon from Grace Episcopal church, the Rev. F. C. Taylor conducting the services, and the interment will be in Ocean View cemetery.

MY VISITORS.

A DREAM OF HALLOW E'EN.

'T'was dark—for o'er Earth's sleeping form
Night's mantle close and thickly lay,
Sleep folded all in sweet repose
But left me wakeful as the day.

Erewhile there came a gentle tap—
I roused me with an eager bound—
The portal, open wide, I threw
And welcome visitors, I found.

A youth first entered, clad in gray,
And, to his hand, a sweet child clung—
The sight of brothers lost so long
Enraptured heart and silenced tongue.

The next dear form, when I beheld,
I forward rushed with eager start—
Ah! Many years since I had been Close folded to my Father's heart!

My earth-worn form, he scanned with care
And said, with eyes where shone a tear,
"With me oh! come and sweetly rest
My weary child—Why tarry here?"

Just then a cooing sound I heard—
So sweet unto a mother's ear—
And looking down, with joy beheld
Upon each arm, an infant dear;

Above them bent a female form
Of all my kin, the favorite one,
She said—"This sweet charge, I'll resign
But when your life work's fully done."

Beside her stood an aged form
Which I had known and loved for years—
He said "My friend—be patient still
And all will end—e'en parting's tears."

At gently opened door awhile
Two much loved faces did appear;
"We merely paused to look within"
Said voices, like a sister's dear.

And following them came other two
With youthful smiling faces bright—
"We'll not come in, they said, for we Much dearer ones must see to-night."

And then there vanished from my sight
These creatures of a sweet, sweet dream,
And all may see that spirits bright
Do still appear on Hallow e'en.

Tribute to a Noble Life.

Mrs. Mary Ann Adair, widow of the late Gen. John Adair of Astoria, Oregon, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. T. Welcker, at Berkeley, California, on the 8th day of April, 1893. She was a little over seventy-seven years of age. Mrs. Adair, who was born Mary Ann Dickinson, was the grand-daughter of Col. Elliott, who took the part of the colonists in their struggle against the British crown in the war of the Revolution. And under the administration of Washington he was stationed with the garrison at the Falls of the Ohio, since known as Louisville, Kentucky. Elizabeth Elliott, his daughter, married Samuel Dickinson. These were the parents of Mrs. Adair, who as Mary Ann Dickinson, was married to John Adair, January 2nd 1834.

Her husband, John Adair, was son of Gen. John Adair, Governor of Kentucky, and United States senator from that state. He too, had served the colonies in their seven years struggle against Great Britain, and also in 1812 against the British and Indians, rising to a high rank and command.

The subject of this notice, with her husband and children, came on the "California," which was the first American steamship that ever entered the "Golden Gate." They afterwards went, early in 1849, to Astoria, Oregon. They continued throughout life to reside there, and were closely identified with the interests of Oregon. Gen. Adair was the first United States Collector of Customs on the Northwest coast, having been selected for that position by President Polk.

Mrs. Adair was the mother of thirteen children, the survivors of whom are Mrs. Ellen Mendell, the wife of Col. G. H. Mendell, of the United States Engineer Corps; Mrs. Katy Welcker, wife of William T. Welcker of Berkeley, California; Col. John Adair of Clatsop County, Oregon; Mrs. Mary Ann Jordan, wife of Col. William H. Jordan of the United States Army; Samuel D. Adair of Clatsop County, Oregon; William B. Adair of Astoria, Oregon, and Mrs. Laura P. Barker, wife of the Rt. Rev. William M. Barker, Bishop of Western Colorado.

She died as she had lived, a faithful and devoted Christian Woman, and communicant of the Episcopal Church. Her character was placid because of its depth the accidents of life, prosperity, adversity and misfortune, and she saw life in all its phases, rippled the surface but left the depths unstirred. Her patience was sufficient for all trials; her serenity was never clouded; her gentleness never foiled; her faith never distrusted and her charity covered the failings of all. No child ever received from her a rebuke that left a sting; no misbehavior gained currency by her report no reputation suffered at her hands. The radiance of her character was calm, strong, soothing, peaceful: an influence for good to all whom it reached, an education for many. The father, who knew her for near forty years, never heard a harsh judgment from her lips, nor, indeed, did she appear to think of passing judgment upon others.

Her life was for the most part bounded by her home, in which she moved, the center of love and admiration. She came to Oregon at the age of thirty-four, with a flock of young children, who were dependent upon her for care of mind and body. Some received at her hands all education necessary to form accomplished women. In the early days of Oregon there was little opportunity for girls elsewhere than in their homes. The best of education was loving association with her.

The writer has known several men of prominence, who in their early days partook of the unstinted hospitality dispensed at the table of Gen. Adair, and has heard from their lips an account of the impressions which Mrs. Adair made upon them by her sweetness, calmness, power and simplicity. The story was always the same. During the present year the writer received an account from a gentleman in New York of his association with her family in the years of '49 and '50. He described himself, and those who were with him, as having been dazed by the spectacle of this refined home in the midst of the rudeness which abounded on the western shore in those early days.

These impressions were made upon many men, who have repeated the story of her patience and gentleness in many a home.

Who can measure the wideness and depth of the beneficent influence which this story, read daily by her neighbors and repeated in many places, has exerted in forming characters, who in turn, in ever widening circles, have transmitted and yet transmit a gentle force through human lives.

The power of goodness is unspeakable and immeasurable Christianity yet lives.

the public purse and could not have been avaricious, or else he would not have been trusted with his fund for the poor, for which he rendered no account to any one, yet he betrayed his master for $3.90. I had always thought that "thirty pieces of silver" meant some large amount, and the statement astonished me when I read it, but on referring to a work on numismatics I saw that the "piece of silver" of Jerusalem was about the same value as the "ore piece" of Denmark, which is just 13 cents, so I suppose the statement is true."

In one of the six existing manuscripts of the ancient Saxon chronicles occurs the following: "Bedwig was the son of Shem, who was the son of Noah, and he, Bedwig, was the only one born in the Ark."

PEONS' TREACHERY COSTS ADAIR LIFE

Portland Boy, Distinguished in Army Service, Killed at Carrizal.

With a letter just received by his parents telling of his scout duty across the Mexican border, the news arrived yesterday that Lieutenant Henry Rodney Adair was killed Wednesday in the surprise attack on the 10th cavalry at Carrizal. The report has not been confirmed officially. Lieutenant Adair was born in Astoria 34 years ago, and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel D. Adair, 488 East Eleventh street North, who are pioneers of Oregon.

At the age of 15 Lieutenant Adair entered Bishop Scott academy, remaining in that institution for two years. From there he went to the Astoria high school, where he was graduated in 1904, soon after receiving his appointment to West Point. He completed his course at West Point in 1907 and since that time has been engaged in active service in the army, both in the United States and in the Philippines.

Lieutenant Adair was a well known horseman and has a great many trophies taken in the United States and Europe. In competition with British, French and Belgian cavalry officers he won the water jump at the horse show at Madison Square Garden, New York, several years ago, breaking the record with a jump of 18 feet, which is the record today. Lieutenant Adair was an expert polo player belonging to the 10th cavalry team. On his return from the Philippines he played in Egypt and Gibraltar and was on the winning team in many tournaments throughout Europe.

Samuel D. Adair, his father, is ill at the Good Samaritan hospital, not expected to live. Those who survive Lieutenant Adair besides his parents are: W. Morris Adair, assistant secretary Security Savings & Trust company; Alex G. Adair, clerk for Balfour, Guthrie & Co.; Mary A. Adair, who lives with her parents at 488 East Eleventh street North, and Mrs. F. C. Rogers, of New York.

Captain Charles T. Boyd, in command of the 10th cavalry, who was also reported killed in the same fight, is an uncle of Mrs. Wilfrid P. Jones, 335 East Thirteenth street North. W. P. Jones is vice president of the Northwestern National bank. Captain Boyd was also an excellent horseman.

CAPT. GRENVILLE REED IS DEAD AT ASTORIA

Died Jan. 22 - 1913

(Special to The Journal.)

Astoria, Or., Jan. 23.—Captain Grenville Reed, for 30 years a pilot on the Columbia river and later postmaster of Astoria, died at his home in this city yesterday morning at the age of 74 years. He was born in Freeport, Maine, and served in the war of 1812. He was enterprising, public spirited and liberal, and prominent throughout the entire community.

Politically, Captain Reed was Republican, and for three years served as councilman. Fraternally, he was a member and past noble grand of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. For many years he was an active member and the presiding officer of the Masters' and Pilots' association.

AGED COUPLE DIE CLOSE TOGETHER

After 65 Years' Married Life Captain Scammon and Wife Pass Away.

After having been married 65 years, Captain Chas. M. Scammon, a veteran in the Revenue service, and his wife died within a day of each other. Mrs. Scammon died yesterday at her home in this city, her husband's death following this morning. In both cases death was due to old age, Captain Scammon being 85 and his wife 81.

Scammon was married in Maine and brought his bride to Oakland in the early days. Three sons, Charles, Alex and Lawrence, survive him.

Nathan D. Raymond, a pioneer resident of Clatsop county and one of the best known civil engineers in the lower Columbia river district, died here at 5 o'clock this morning as the result of a partial stroke of paralysis, which he suffered on the morning of January 28, last. The deceased was born on the family homestead at Clatsop Plains in 1850 and was thus past 62 years of age at the time of his death. He resided in this county all his life, following the profession of civil engineer. He served as county surveyor for several terms, was connected with the city surveyor's department for a number of years and was also connected with various engineering projects in this section of the state. Mr. Raymond was a man of sterling qualities, honest and upright in all his dealings and he won and retained the friendship of all who knew him. He was never married and his only immediate relatives are two sisters, Mrs. George Hume of Oakland, Cal., and Mrs. James Christie of Everett, Wash., as well as several cousins, nephews and nieces residing in this vicinity. The relatives have been notified of his passing away and the arrangements for the funeral will not be decided until they are heard from. April 21 - 1913

Reese Thomas Dies.

Reese Thomas for the past 15 years chief engineer at the Schmidt and Co. Cold Storage plant in this city, died yesterday in Portland after a lingering illness. The deceased is survived by a wife, and was a native of Scotland and 64 years of age. His funeral will be held in the metropolis under the auspices of the Masons.

MINISTER'S WIFE DEAD

Mrs. Henry Marcotte Dies From Tuberculosis in Southland.

Jan 31 - 1912
Mrs. Henry Marcotte, wife of Rev. Henry Marcotte, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, died yesterday afternoon from tuberculosis at the sanitarium of Dr. F. M. Pottenger, at Monrovia, Cal., near Los Angeles. Mrs. Marcotte had been ill for the past four years. In a telegram yesterday Rev. Mr. Marcotte, who was at his wife's bedside when death came, said that he would arrive here with the body Sunday.

When the approach of the disease first became apparent four years ago, Mrs. Marcotte lived outdoors in this city in the hope of recuperating. When Mr. Marcotte went to Europe two years ago she went to the home of her sister in Washington, D. C., where for a time she seemed to improve.

One night on her visit at Washington the house in which she was living burned down, and the contact with the night air caused a relapse. In October, 1910, she returned to Portland with her husband. She went to California January 22 of last year.

Mrs. Marcotte was born in Eureka, Cal., and was 34 years old. Nine years ago, while a school teacher in Astoria, she married Mr. Marcotte, who was then pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at that place. A year later she came with him to Portland. She leaves

Thomas Benton Morrison died at his home in this city Monday night, at the advanced age of 71 years. Mr. Morrison was born in Wynn county, Missouri, February 16, 1841. He crossed the plains to Oregon in 1844 with his parents, the late R. W. and Mercy Irvin Morrison, who settled on a donation land claim on Clatsop Plains shortly after their arrival in the state. He has lived in Clatsop county and Astoria ever since that time, and has ever been among the front rank of those who have worked for the welfare and progress of the commonwealth. Mr. Morrison married Mary Elizabeth Lattie daughter of the late Captain Alexander Lattie, on May 1, 1872. He is survived by his widow and three children, Mrs. James Gilbrath, James H. Morrison, Irwin F. Morrison, and one grandchild, Harriet E. Morrison. Two sisters and one brother also survive him: Mrs. Mary Ellen Carnahan, Mrs. Hannah Marguerite Hamlin and William I. Morrison. In the death of Mr. Morrison, Clatsop county, Astoria and the state of Oregon lose one of their earliest pioneers and a man of sterling worth and integrity. The funeral will be held from the old pioneer church on Clatsop Plains, and the services will be conducted by Rev. W. S. Gilbert, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The interment will be in Ocean View cemetery. Died July 9 - 1912

Louis Kirehloff, an old and honored resident of Astoria, died at his home in this city Friday at 4 p. m., at the advanced age of 85 years. He had been ill only a few days, and the immediate cause of death was pneumonia. Mr. Kirehloff was a native of Germany. He came to America over 50 years ago, having spent the greater portion of that time on the Pacific coast and 40 in Astoria. He was a widower, his wife having died some time ago. He leaves two daughters, Miss Alwyne Kerehloff and Mrs. George Beatty, both of this city, and three stepchildren, Mrs. J. H. Johansen of Seaside and Watson J. Binder and Henry C. Binder of this city. The deceased was a member of Beaver Lodge No. 35, I. O. O. F. of this city, under the auspices of which the funeral will be held Sunday at 1:45 p. m. from Grace Episcopal church, Rev. Geo. F. Rosenmuller officiating. The interment will be in Ocean View cemetery and will be private. Friends of the deceased who wish to view the remains will be given the privilege of doing so at the residence. The deceased was a man of excellent character, and was much esteemed by his friends and neighbors.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Carnahan died at the home of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Taylor in this city Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, at the advanced age of 79 years. Mrs. Carnahan was the daughter of R. W. Morrison, one of the earliest of the Oregon pioneers to settle in Clatsop County, coming with her parents to the state in 1884. She was a sister of the late Thomas B. Morrison and the late Mrs. John Minto. A brother and sister, William I. Morrison of Clatsop and Mrs. Hamlin, who is in California, survive her, as well as two sons and three daughters, Mrs. E. A. Taylor of this city, Miss Florence Carnahan and Mrs. Mercer of Los Angeles, Cal. She was the widow of the late Hiram Carnahan, who was one of the best known residents of this section in the early days. Mrs. Carnahan was a woman of fine character and her death will be mourned by a host of friends as well as her own family and relatives. The funeral arrangements are being made, but the time has not been decided upon, as it is desired to have as many of the absent relatives present as possible. The two sons are R. M. Carnahan, Portland and Frank Carnahan, Aberdeen, Wash.

Died Dec 25 - 1912

Thomas Ryrie, who for many years was actively identified with Astoria commercial circles and was one of the city's most respected citizens, died suddenly at 12:15 Sunday morning at the residence of Frank L. Parker, as the result of a stroke of apoplexy. His sudden passing away was wholly unexpected as he was about town Saturday evening, apparently in the best of health, and he was not stricken until about 10:30 that evening, after he had retired. The deceased was born at Wick, Scotland, in 1850 and was thus 63 years of age at the time of his death. He came to Astoria about 30 years ago and until that time retired from business was manager of the C. H. Cooper drygoods store. Mr. Ryrie left a widow but no children, one brother, Alex Ryrie, residing in Alaska, and a large circle of warm personal friends in and about Astoria who will regret to hear of his sudden death. The funeral will be held from the First Presbyterian church at 1:30 tomorrow, Tuesday, afternoon with the interment in Ocean View cemetery. The services at the grave will be private.

died Sun Sept 7 - 1912

The sad news was received in this city this morning of the death at the Oregon Sanitarium in Portland yesterday of Mrs. Ellen Hare O'Connor, oldest daughter of the late W. D. Hare, at one time collector of customs of this port, and for many years a prominent citizen of Hillsboro. Mrs. O'Connor was 48 years of age, and leaves three children, one son and two daughters, her husband having died some time ago at Seattle. She was a granddaughter of Mrs. Frances Ellen Hare, of this city, who was 101 years of age on the 5th of February last, and the niece of Mrs. Gilman and Mrs. Cornelius. The funeral arrangements have not yet been perfected, but it will be held either at Seattle or Hillsboro.

MR. LIENENWEBER TO BE BURIED HERE

SERVICES TO BE HELD THIS MORNING AT CHURCH

Died Sept. 21-1912

The funeral of Thomas Frederick Lienenweber, of Portland, who died at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland Saturday, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning from the First Presbyterian church, with Rev. William S. Gilbert, pastor, conducting the services.

The services at Greenwood cemetery, where the body will be interred, will be private. The casket will not be opened at the church, but an invitation is extended by the relatives of the deceased to his friends to view the remains any time before the funeral hour at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Mary H. Lienenweber, 425 Exchange street, where the body is resting.

The death of Mr. Lienenweber is causing profound sorrow to a vast circle of friends in Astoria.

"He was one of the most warm-hearted friends I ever met," said a prominent citizen yesterday. "His geniality went out to everyone, and he was never too engaged to speak a peasant word to anyone he knew."

Mr. Lienenweber was born in Astoria 36 years ago, and his early life and education were received here. Later he went to Germany where he spent three years at a university, completing his education. For the last 12 years he has lived in Portland, but he frequently came to Astoria to keep the flame of old friendships alive. His last visit here was July 4.

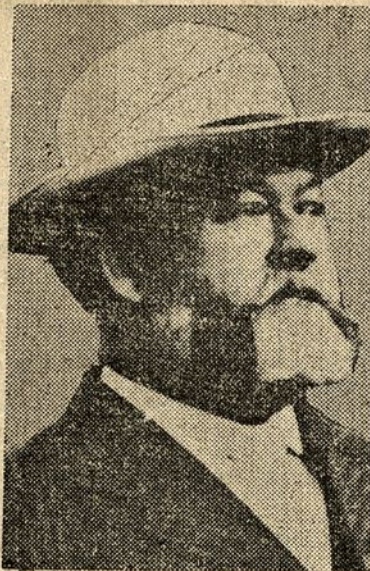

Mr. Lienenweber was a partner in the Northwestern Lime & Plaster Company and also acted as its sales manager.

Fifteen years ago Mr. Lienenweber married Miss Alice Haskell, of this city, who survives him.

The body was brought to Astoria Sunday night, accompanied by his widow, his brother, Hiram, and his sister, Mrs. Harry Van Tuyl, of South Bend, Washington. Mr. Lienenweber is survived by his mother, of this city, his widow, a sister and a brother, the former of South Bend, and the latter manager of the Standard Oil Company, in Astoria. His father, Christian Lienenweber, has been dead for some time. Councilman Lienenweber is a cousin. The business partner of Mr. Lienenweber will arrive today for the funeral.

Mr. Lienenweber was a member of the B. P. O. Elks and of the Hoo-Hoos, being affiliated with the Portland lodges of both orders.

LATE WELL-KNOWN LUMBER-MAN WAS NATIVE OF
SAN FRANCISCO.

Died Jan. 20-1913
Ralph B. Dyer.

ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 25.—(Special.)—Ralph B. Dyer, vice-president and general manager of the Clatsop Mill Company, who died here this week following a stroke of apoplexy, was one of the most widely known and highly respected lumber men on the Pacific Coast. He was president of the Northwestern Box Manufacturers' Association, which maintains its headquarters in Portland, as well as actively identified with various other lumbermen's organizations. Mr. Dyer was born at San Francisco, Cal., on January 16, 1864. He came to the Columbia River district when a young man and for a number of years was associated with M. P. Callender in the Knappton sawmill, across the river from Astoria. In 1882 he was married to Miss Anna Callender, daughter of M. P. Callender and sister to Charles H. Callender and Mrs. George Flavel, of this city. Later, he went to South Bend, Wash., with the Simpson Lumber Company, remaining there until nine years ago, when he returned to Astoria and assumed the management of the Clatsop Mill Company's plant. Besides his widow, Mr. Dyer left three children, Joseph, Wiona and Curtis, aged 14, 11 and 8 years, respectively, as well as a brother, residing in Alaska, one sister at Oakland, Cal., and one sister in Honolulu.

Charles Sherman Wright, an Oregon pioneer of 1862, an Indian war veteran and for many years one of Astoria's most revered citizens, died at his home in this city at four o'clock this morning after an extended illness with the ailments incident to advancing years.

KNAPPA PIONEER GONE

W. H. TWILIGHT DIES AT THE
HOME OF DAUGHTER

Died April 9-1913

W. H. Twilight, a highly respected citizen of Knappa, former resident of this city and at one time sheriff of Clatsop county, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. W. Douglas, at 422 Duane street, at 10:30 o'clock last night. Death was caused by throat trouble from which he had been a sufferer for several months.

Deceased was born in the state of Vermont and was 74 years of age at the time of his death. He came to Astoria in the year 1858, coming by the way of the Isthmus of Panama and California. Mr. Twilight first worked for Captain Flavel and during the 70's served three terms as sheriff of this county. In the year of 1883 he moved to the Knappa district where he resided on a farm until coming to Astoria in February. Deceased was known to every pioneer in the Lower Columbia river district and was always held in high esteem by his acquaintances. Besides his daughter he is survived by one son, Harry Twilight of Knappa and a sister in Massachusetts.

The body will be taken to Knappa this evening. The funeral will probably be held at that place Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment at Knappa. died April 9-1913

Clatsop Pioneer Dead.

ASTORIA, Or., May 1.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary E. Carruthers, a pioneer of Clatsop Plains, died here last night in St. Mary's Hospital.

Died April 30-1913

LAST SUMMONS WAS SUDDEN.

Dir. March 16-1912
Mrs. Anna Gratke Found Dead on Couch in Her Residence.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon Mrs. Anna Rosina Gratke was found lying on a couch in her residence, apparently asleep, but a closer inspection disclosed the fact that the aged lady was dead. She had passed away without the slightest struggle and her German bible, which she had been reading, lay beside her where it had fallen when the nerveless fingers relaxed their hold. Up to the very hour of her death Mrs. Gratke had been a very active woman, although troubled with an affection of the heart in recent years. Neighbors had seen her in the yard shortly after noon but several hours later noting that the door of her home stood open entered and found her lifeless form.

Mrs. Gratke was the widow of the late Charles Gratke who died in Astoria April 14, 1889. For years she had lived alone in her own home at 636 Irving avenue declining all invitations to live with any of her children. For about two months during the holiday season she visited with her three married daughters in California. Mrs. Gratke was born at Trebnitz, Germany, February 17, 1839, and was, therefore, 73 years of age.

Mrs. Gratke is survived by six children, three sons and three daughters. The latter all live in California and they are Mrs. James A. Macomber, and Mrs. George H. Burch, of Oakland, and Mrs. Preston H. Raine, of Berkeley. The sons are W. F. and J. E. Gratke, proprietors of the Daily Budget of this city, and George C. Gratke, of Ilwaco, Wash.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed last night but the services will likely be held from Grace Episcopal church Tuesday morning.

WOMAN DIES AT AGE OF 104

Mrs. Frances Ellen Hare, Native of Virginia, Leaves Seven Children.

1915
ASTORIA, Or., Dec. 29.—(Special).—Mrs. Frances Ellen Hare, the oldest woman in Clatsop County, died here last night from the ailments incident to advancing years. Mrs. Hare was a member of the Davenport family of Virginia, was born in that state on February 5, 1811, and at the time of her death was aged 104 years and 326 days.

She is survived by seven children. They are Mrs. Flora Gilman and Mrs. R. R. Hoagland, of this city; C. C. Hare, C. R. Hare, R. N. Hare and Mrs. M. E. Mitchell, all of St. Paul, Minn.; and Joseph Hare, of Bismarck, North Dakota.

CAPTAIN KEATING SINKS

ASTORIA HARBORMASTER ACCIDENTALLY DROWNS.

With Rescue Almost Accomplished
Veteran Seaman Disappears Under Waves in Fast Current.

ASTORIA, Or., May 15.—(Special).—Captain James Keating, harbormaster of the Port of Astoria and one of the best-known and most popular men in the local shipping circles, was accidentally drowned in the lower harbor at noon today and his body was recovered about four hours later.

Captain Keating had gone in his launch to the barkentine Amazon, which was lying in the quarantine grounds, to take Captain Hayes, master of the Amazon, and Captain Bremer, former master of the craft, on board. After discharging his two passengers Captain Keating bade them goodbye and stepped onto his launch to return to the city. Captain Hayes says he had just reached his cabin when he heard the cabin boy cry out, "Man overboard."

With Captain Bremer, he rushed on deck and saw Captain Keating floating downstream on the swift running ebb tide.

A fishing boat, occupied by George Haggren and C. Hammar, was a short distance away. It was hailed. Captain Bremer and the cabin boy jumped aboard the launch and rushed to give assistance. The launch was about 20 feet away from him and the fishing boat was so near that those on board were reaching out when Captain Keating suddenly raised both arms into the air and sank. The two boats cruised about for several minutes in a vain hope that he would come to the surface again, but no trace of him could be found.

It is supposed Captain Keating was walking along the rail of the launch when he either slipped or tripped and fell overboard.

Captain Keating was born near Belfast, Ireland, 50 years ago and went to sea as a lad. When 20 years old he came to San Francisco. About 26 years ago he came to Astoria and for ten years has operated launches. He was also harbormaster of the port. He was married, and left a widow and four sons, the oldest being about 15 years of age. They are James, Fred, Jack and Kenneth Keating.

Captain Keating was a member of the Woodmen and Elks.

Mrs. Elizabeth K. Turney, widow of the late James M. Turney, died this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ammon J. Taylor, after a short illness. Mrs. Turney was born at Black Rock, Conn., 82 years ago and until the death of her husband resided at Flavel for several years. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ammon J. Taylor, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Charles Woolsey. The funeral will be held from the family home tomorrow afternoon and the remains will be shipped Wednesday morning to Portland for interment.

MRS. LENA WELCH DIES

END COMES QUIETLY AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Lena F. Welch, wife of D. H. Welch and a resident of Oregon since 1883, passed away at her home in this city at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning after an illness of several years. The end came peacefully, while the deceased was asleep, the result of a complication of diseases which every science known to the medical profession, and the tender care of friends and family had failed to eliminate.

Possessed of a kind and generous disposition and a peculiar wholeheartedness that won her the esteem and friendship of every one who knew her, Mrs. Welch occupied a position in the social sphere if the city that will not easily be re-filled. The news of her death was received with profound sorrow by a multitude of personal friends and acquaintances.

Mrs. Welch was born in Pictou county, Nova Scotia, on November 20, 1862, and was thus slightly over 50 years of age at the time of her death. She came to Oregon in 1883 and had resided in Clatsop county ever since.

Besides her husband the deceased left one daughter, Miss Nancy M. Welch, of this city, as well as four sisters and one brother. The latter are: Mrs. James Chisholm, Calgary; Mrs. Katherine Almy and Mrs. D. C. McLellan, Portland; Mrs. F. J. Scheidnager, Astoria and W. Ross, of Portland. The remains are at the Gilbaugh chapel where they may be viewed by friends and the funeral will be held from the First Presbyterian church at 1:00 tomorrow afternoon, with the interment in Ocean View Cemetery.

DUNIWAY BURIAL TODAY

FUNERAL OF LATE STATE PRINTER IN PORTLAND.

PORTLAND Aug. 6.—Funeral services for Willis Scott Duniway, for several years State Printer of Oregon, who died yesterday, will be held at the Unitarian Church tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. T. L. Elliot, pastor of the church, will officiate. It is expected that practically all the members of the state printing office will be in attendance, together with several state officials, Elks and city officials. Mr. Duniway was a charter member of the Salem Lodge of Elks. The burial will be in River-view Cemetery.

JUDGE TAYLOR VICTIM OF AN ASSASSIN

Died Sun. Sept. 14-1913

ED CITIZEN

COWARDLY MURDER
COMMITTED SUNDAY

OSWALD C. HANSEL PERPE-TRATES DASTARDLY AND
WANTON CRIME

VICTIM WAS ONE OF ASTORIA'S
MOST REVERED RESIDENTS
—HAD HELD MANY PUBLIC OFFICES AND IN EVERY IN-STANCE HAD DISCHARGED HIS DUTY FAITHFULLY

Astoria was the scene Sunday of one of the most terrible tragedies in the criminal history of the north-west. It was enacted about 8:35 in the morning on Commercial street, a short distance from the S. P. & S. depot, when Judge Frank J. Taylor, president of the state board of pilot commissioners, ex-circuit court judge and one of the leading members of the legal fraternity in Western Oregon, was murdered in cold blood by Oswald C. Hansel, a Clatsop plains rancher.

The shooting came as the climax of a fancied grievance which Hansel had held for years against his victim, for what reason no one knows, and the further fact that four years ago, the Judge acted as attorney for Mrs. Hansel in filing a suit for divorce, an action that was later withdrawn.

The awful crime was committed as Judge Taylor was en route to the depot to take the train for his ranch at Carnahan station, where he planned to spend the day. About 50 feet before reaching the corner at the entrance to the depot, Judge Taylor, who was carrying a light valise, crossed the street and just as he stepped onto the sidewalk met Hansel, who was apparently waiting for him, without a word or a moment's warning, Hansel whipped out a 32-calibre revolver and fired, the bullet striking his victim above the right eye, passing through the brain and causing instant death. Throwing his arms to his head as tho to ward off a blow, Mr. Taylor fell to the sidewalk on his face, while his assassin fired two more shots at the prostrate body, both of them taking effect.

The sudden and tragic death of Judge Taylor cast a pall of gloom over the entire city. Everywhere groups of men could be seen discussing the terrible affair and frequent threats to take summary vengeance on his assassin were heard about the streets. A friend of everyone, an esteemed and honored citizen, Judge Taylor's loss was keenly felt by the entire community.

Judge Frank J. Taylor was a native of Oregon. He was a son of the late Colonel James Taylor, an Oregon pioneer, was born on the family homestead at Clatsop Plains on May 11, 1851, and was thus slightly over 62 years of age at the time of his death. He received his early education in the public schools at Astoria and later attended the Albany, New York, Law school, graduating from that institution in 1873. Returning to Astoria, he was appointed deputy district attorney and later was elected city auditor and police judge, a position he held for three years. In 1880 he was elected a member of the lower house of the Oregon legislature and in 1884 elected circuit judge of the Fifth judicial district, serving two terms in that position. He always took an active interest in public affairs, served 12 years as a member of the city board of education, was elected mayor of the city in 1896, was one of the members of the board of directors of the Astoria Centennial Committee and at the time of his death was chairman of the state board of pilot commissioners, a position to which he was appointed by Governor Chamberlain and reappointed twice by Governor West.

Judge Taylor was married in this city on December 23, 1886, to Miss Mary E. Anderson and he is survived by his widow and two daughters. The latter are Miss Margaret Taylor, teacher of music at the Berkeley, Cal., college, and Miss Helen Taylor, who was her father's private secretary. He also left one brother and three sisters. E. A. Taylor of Carnahan station, Mrs. J. W. White of Oakland and Mrs. George Taylor and Mrs. Fred Strong of Portland.

ROYAL K. WARREN TO BE BURIED MONDAY

The funeral of Royal K. Warren, one of the best known educators of Portland, who died yesterday at his home, 334 Montgomery street, probably will be held from the First Presbyterian church Monday afternoon. Burial will be at Salem.

Mr. Warren, who had resided in Portland since 1866, was 73 years old. Death was caused by angina pectoris. He was closely identified with the activities of the First Presbyterian church, of which he had been a member for almost 40 years. He gave much of his time to Sunday school work and particularly interested himself in the musical programs.

Mr. Warren was the first principal of the Harrison school. He held the position two years, resigning to accept the presidency of Albany College at Albany, a position which he occupied for six years. Later he returned to Portland, and accepted the position of principal of the North, now the Atkinson school.

He was elected principal of the Portland high school in 1876, an office he held for 12 years. In 1896 he was elected school director and he succeeded himself several terms.

Mr. Warren was a native of New York, having been born at Bath. He was the youngest of six children. A widow and a brother, Dr. Ford Warren, survive.

SHIP MASTER IS DEAD

CAPTAIN WILLIAM H. HOBSON
PASSES AT ASTORIA.

Career in Shipping Circles Is Long and Well Known on Willamette, Columbia and Puget Sound.

ASTORIA, Or., Sept. 11.—(Special.)—Captain William H. Hobson, one of the most widely known ship masters in the Columbia River district, died at his home here today following a 10 months' illness with stomach trouble. He was born near Melbourne, Australia, October 6, 1858, was a son of the late Captain Richard Hobson, and came to Astoria with his parents when but 11 months old.

Captain Hobson entered the employ of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company when a young man, and during practically all his life was engaged in steamboating on the Columbia and Willamette rivers and Puget Sound, with frequent trips to Alaskan waters. His first command was the tug Katata in 1882, and during 16 years he was with the Columbia Contract Company. His last command was of the tug Biddle on one of her recent trips to Cordova.

Captain Hobson was married in this city April 28, 1894, to Clara Parker Johnson, who survives him. He also left his mother, Mrs. K. K. Hobson, of this city; two sisters, Mrs. John Phair, of Oakland, Cal., and Mrs. W. F. Prael, of Astoria, and one brother, Charles Hobson, of this city. He was a member of the Oddfellows' and Elks' lodges of Astoria and the Workmen's lodge of Seattle. The funeral will be held under the auspices of those orders.

H. B. Parker, Aug. 5

ASTORIA, Or., Aug. 11.—(Special.)—H. B. Parker, who died at his home in this city Sunday, was one of the oldest residents of this section and an Oregon pioneer of 1852.

He was born in Orange County, Vermont, in 1825 and was thus 92 years of age at the time of his death. Among other enterprises he inaugurated the first independent steamer line between this city and Portland and was also proprietor of the old Parker House.

Of Mr. Parker's five children, only three are living. They are: Captain E. P. Parker, Lincoln Parker and Clara Parker.

OLD PIONEER PASSES

MRS. HANNAH PEAS CALLED TO GREAT BEYOND.

Mrs. Hannah Peas one of Oregon's oldest pioneer's and for 63 years a resident of Clatsop county, passed away at the home of her grand daughter, Mrs. George Schmidt in Warrenton at 7 o'clock last night at the ripe age of 88 years. Death was caused by diseases incident to old age. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. C. H. Parker of Warrenton with whom she has made her home for a number of years.

Deceased was born in England, September 16, 1825 and came to America when she was four years of age settling in Jersey City, N. Y., later moving with her parents to Jersey county Illinois. In March 1845 she was united in marriage to David Egbert Pease, and the young people went to housekeeping on a farm in Jersey county. In the spring of 1849 they crossed the plains and after many trying experiences finally landed in Clackamas county, September 2, 1849.

The same fall the Pease family came to the Columbia river, and remained there while Mr. Pease constructed a saw-mill on the Lewis & Clark river. Soon after he bought a residence in Skipanon and opened his hotel and livery business, so successfully conducted for two score and two years. Mr. Pease died June 5, 1896 and his widow continued to reside in Warrenton until her demise.

Being of a kind and generous disposition, Mrs. Pease was known to practically every one in Clatsop county and the news of her death will bring regret to a host of friends who have long admired her for the excellent qualities she possessed.

Funeral services will be held from the Methodist church at Warrenton, Tuesday afternoon at 1:30. Interment in Ocean View cemetery.

MAGNUS CHARLES CROSBY.

Expired Suddenly at His Home in this City Last Evening.

Magnus Charles Crosby, one of Astoria's leading business men, died suddenly at his home on Bond street at 10:30 o'clock last evening, aged 54 years.

For several years past Mr. Crosby had been suffering from heart failure and Bright's disease, and lately had been confined to his bed. Yesterday, however, he was up and around the house, apparently much improved, and he expected shortly to be able to attend to his business interests. About 16 o'clock last night he had a relapse, and, before the arrival of Dr. Bishop, who was hastily summoned, he expired surrounded by his wife and children.

The death of Mr. Crosby, while sudden, was not wholly unexpected, as he had been a sufferer from a vital disease for several years and was slowly dying. He had often said he would die suddenly, and the end came as he had prophesied. He rested easily Wednesday night, and was in the best of spirits yesterday. His sudden death will be a sad blow to his many friends, while robbing Astoria of one of her most honorable citizens.

Magnus Charles Crosby was born in Philadelphia, Pa., March 21, 1841, and was 54 years of age. He was one of five children, three of whom, two sisters and a brother, are now living. He came to this city sixteen years ago, since which time he has been engaged in the retail hardware business, owning the largest establishment in the city. He was twice elected mayor and was held in high esteem by the citizens of Astoria. His father is dead, but his mother, who is 78 years of age, is living and residing in Astoria. Mr. Crosby served through out the civil war, acquitting himself with bravery. He leaves a wife and four children, three sons and a daughter, to mourn his loss. His children are: Cornelius T. Win, Magnus and Kinney. Mr. H. T. Crosby, his only living brother, is a prominent lawyer of this city. The date of the funeral will be announced later.

SHIPYARD WORKER KILLED

Mishap at McEachern Plant Ends
Robert Taylor's Life.

ASTORIA, Or., Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Robert Taylor, an employe at the McEachern shipyards, was accidentally killed while at work there about 4 o'clock yesterday. A donkey engine was pulling a scow ashore when the cable parted and struck Taylor in the back of the head, fracturing his skull. He died on the way to the hospital.

Taylor was about 25 years of age and a son of E. A. Taylor, of Clatsop Plains. He had worked in the yards for several months. When war was declared the young man attempted to enlist in the Third Oregon Regiment, but was rejected on account of defective eyes.

CLATSOP PIONEER IS DEAD

Mrs. Mary A. Hall Dies at Home of Daughter at Knappa.

ASTORIA, Feb. 6.—(Special.)—Mrs. Mary A. Hall, a Clatsop County pioneer of 1852, died yesterday afternoon at the home of her daughter in Knappa. Mrs. Hall was born in Illinois 79 years ago. In 1851 she started with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Job Ross, across the plains.

While on the way the party was attacked by Indians and all its equipment was stolen. The following year, however, the party completed the journey to Oregon and Mrs. Hall has made her home here since that time. She is survived by two sons and two daughters. They are William and Ralph Hall, of this city; Mrs. E. Brock, of Knappa, and Mrs. J. C. Ross, of Texas.

GEORGE H. GEORGE DIES

SALMON MAN AND BANKER PASSES AT ASTORIA HOME.

Head of Packers' Association and National Bank Succumbs to Nervous Breakdown.

ASTORIA, Or., Oct. 9.—(Special.)—George H. George, vice-president of the Columbia River Packers' Association, president of the Astoria National Bank and one of the most widely known salmon men and financiers of Western Oregon, died at his residence here tonight after a few weeks' illness, following a nervous breakdown. Mr. George was born at Milwaukee, Wis., October 10, 1859. In 1874 he went with his parents to San Francisco and for several years was in the employ of the late Robert Hume at Rogue River. In 1882 he came to Astoria. Later he and W. H. Barker purchased the Point Adams Canery in this city and the Eureka and North Shore plants.

When the Columbia River Packers' Association was formed these properties were absorbed by it and Mr. George became the Association's first secretary. Later he was elected vice-president and general manager. Mr. George was married in this city in January, 1886, to Miss Winifred C. Crang, who survives him. His only other immediate relative was an aged mother, who has made her home with him for several years.

CLATSOP EX-JUDGE DIES

CURTIS J. TRENCHARD SUCCUMBS TO STROKE OF APOPLEXY.

Death Occurs While Victim Is Seated in Hotel Conversing—Widow and Daughter Survivors.

ASTORIA, Or., Dec. 4.—(Special.)—Curtis J. Trenchard, ex-judge of Clatsop County, died today from apoplexy as he was sitting in the office at the Astor House conversing with the proprietor.

Mr. Trenchard was one of the best-known men in this part of the state, having been identified with public life for many years and active in the commercial development of the Lower Columbia River district. He left a widow and one daughter, Miss Anita Trenchard, of Portland.

Curtis J. Trenchard was born in Astoria on June 4, 1853. His father died when he was 14 years of age, and he was compelled to leave school and assist in supporting the family by working in sawmills and logging camps.

From 1872 to 1876 he was in the employ of Mr. West at Westport, and then embarked in the mercantile business in Astoria. His store was destroyed by fire. He then followed bookkeeping until 1882, when he was elected County Clerk, being re-elected four successive times. In 1890 he became local agent for the Wells-Fargo Express Company, and in 1902 he was elected County Judge, being re-elected in 1906 and serving eight years. He was also a member of the Water Commission for a number of years, and belonged to the Masons, K. of P. and A. O. U. W. lodges.

BERGMAN—At Astoria, Oregon, Dec. 13. Mrs. Ida Bergman, widow of the late Isaac Bergman. Remains will be brought to Portland and placed in care of the Edward Holman Co. 1914

VETERAN PILOT IS DEAD

CAPTAIN GEORGE W. WOOD, 71, PASSES AT ASTORIA.

Mariner, Who Served as Columbia Bar
Guide for 48 Years, Succumbs to Pneumonia—Four Bereaved.

ASTORIA, Or., Jan. 18.—(Special.)—Captain George W. Wood, 71 years old, veteran Columbia River bar pilot and tugboat man and one of the best-known mariners on the Pacific Coast, died from pneumonia at his home here shortly before noon today after a week's illness.

Captain Wood was born in Watertown, Mass., March 1, 1844. He was graduated from the Comes Navigation School at Boston May 10, 1862, and immediately thereafter began his seafaring life on the Atlantic. In 1867 he came to Astoria on the Geodetic Survey steamer W. M. Marcy, and had made his home here since that time. He was one of the pioneer pilots and was managing owner of the schooner J. C. Cousins when she was used as an opposition pilot boat, and almost continuously until his last illness he was in the service as a pilot or tugboat captain. In 1889 he was detailed to make the trip to San Francisco as mate with Captain R. E. Howes on the steamer Alaskan, which was wrecked in the voyage, 30 of those on board losing their lives.

For a time Captain Wood was an officer on the old barkentine Jane A. Falkenberg, plying between Portland and Honolulu. Other vessels on which he served were the steamers R. P. Elmore and Geo. W. Elder. Captain Wood was married in this city December 15, 1869, to Sarah F. Welch, who survives him. He is survived also by a daughter, Miss Alice Wood, of this city, a son, Dr. George A. Wood, of San Francisco, and a brother, Charles Horace Wood, of Boston, Mass.

Captain Wood was a member of the Astoria Lodges of Masons and Elks and the funeral will be held Wednesday morning, under the auspices of those orders.

ASTORIA, Or., Nov. 19.—(Special).—Captain John W. Babbidge, an Oregon pioneer of 1864 and for many years one of the best-known and highly respected marine men and citizens of the lower-river district, died suddenly about 10 o'clock this morning as the result of a stroke of apoplexy. He had been about town as usual and had gone aboard the dredge Clatsop, which was lying at the O.-W. R. & N. wharf, to see one of the engineers, and while conversing with him sank to the deck and expired.

The deceased, who was past 75 years of age, was born in Maine October 31, 1842. When a young man he went to sea, and after cruising on the Atlantic for several years came to the Columbia River in 1864 as second man of the bark Cambridge.

Leaving that vessel here, he shipped on the schooner Alfred Crosby, then in the Coast trade between the Columbia River and Victoria. A year later he took command of the Government sloop Belle, running between Astoria and Fort Stevens, operating her until 1867, when he joined the crew of the steamer John H. Couch.

A short time afterwards he entered the employ of the Oregon Steam Navigation Company, first as captain of the steamer Fannie Troup and subsequently as master of various other steamers, remaining in the employ of that company until 1887, when he began piloting deep-water vessels on the Columbia and Willamette rivers.

Two years later he left that work to take command of the cannery steamer City of Astoria, continuing in that service until 1891, when he built the steamer R. Miller and operated her between Astoria and points on the lower river.

On selling the Miller to the Knappton mills a few years ago, Captain Babbidge retired from active service and devoted his time to the management of his personal estate.

He is survived by a widow and four sons. The latter are Captain Wilbur W. Babbidge, of Portland, and Captains Edward, Alfred and James Babbidge, of this city. The deceased was a life-long member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge, and the funeral will be under the auspices of that order.

HEILBORN FUNERAL SUNDAY AFTERNOON

The funeral of Mrs. Alma Heilborn will be held tomorrow afternoon at one o'clock. Services will be held at the Portland Crematorium. Mrs. Heilborn was a pioneer resident of Astoria, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. Morton, at St. Helens, Oregon Thursday morning after a brief illness brought on by advancing age. The deceased was born on Nov. 9, 1839 and has many friends in Oregon where she spent the greater portion of her life. Charles Heilborn, her husband, died in Astoria on April 13, 1903, after a long and successful business career here. Mrs. Heilborn leaves to mourn her one sister, Mrs. Theresa Prael, daughters, Olga, Rosa Morton who reside at St. Helens. Charles Heilborn a son of Portland; Otto Heilborn in California and Laura Bierback residing in Honolulu.

BOELLING FUNERAL TO BE HELD MONDAY

Pall bearers were chosen yesterday to assist at the funeral services of the late Captain Voelmeton Boelling, the well known Columbia river pilot and shipping man who died in Portland last Thursday afternoon. Two of the gentlemen chosen were closely connected with the late Captain in his business and two were chosen from the deans of the Columbia harbor pilots, and two from the Columbia river pilots. They are as follows: Captain Frank Sweet, Austin Osburn, Captains Langkilde, Rankin, Pearson and Babbidge.

The funeral services will be held at the Episcopal church on Monday, March 26 at 1:30 o'clock, with the Rev. Taylor officiating. Interment will be held at Oceanview cemetery.

GEORGE C. FLAVEL PASSES SUDDENLY; FUNERAL TUESDAY

George C. Flavel, one of Astoria's most widely known residents and a son of the late Captain George Flavel, the pioneer tugboatman on the Columbia river, died about 2 o'clock on Sunday morning at his home 357 Fifteenth street, following a short illness with bronchial pneumonia.

Although suffering with a severe cold, Mr. Flavel had been about town as usual on Saturday and was apparently improving, but about 9:30 that evening he was stricken with pneumonia, passing away a few hours later.

The deceased, who was 57 years of age, was born in Astoria in January, 1856, and had resided here practically all his life. When a young man he was engaged in steamboating on the Columbia river. During recent years he had devoted his time to looking after his extensive property interests and the affairs of the First National Bank of which he was vice-president.

Mr. Flavel is survived by his widow Mrs. Winona C. Flavel; one son, Harry M. Flavel; his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Flavel, and one sister, Miss Nellie Flavel.

The remains are under the charge of Karlson and Son and the funeral will be held from the family residence at 1:30 on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. W. S. Gilbert conducting the services, and the interment will be in the family plot at Ocean View cemetery. The service at the grave will be private.

MRS. MARY BADOLLET, PIONEER RESIDENT, IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Mary Jane Badollet, an early pioneer resident of Astoria, died yesterday at the age of 85 at her home, 106 Commercial street. Coming to live in Astoria with her parents in 1856, Mrs. Badollet resided in one of the few homes of the outpost of civilization that then formed one of the sparsely settled communities of the territory of Oregon.

She was born in Peoria, Ill., June 4, 1840, and started west with her parents in 1851, when 11 years of age. Traveling across the plains in the covered wagon of the western pioneers, drawn by teams of oxen, the journey to Oregon took six months.

Arriving in Oregon, Mrs. Badollet's family first settled in Portland. Later they took up their residence in Silverton and in 1856 moved and settled in Astoria. Mrs. Badollet attended one of the early schools of the territory, Miss Lincoln's, in Astoria.

In 1861 Mrs. Badollet married John Badollet at the family home at Ninth and Franklin streets. The newly married couple took up their residence in a home on Ninth, near Commercial street, the present site of the Larson dairy. This house was destroyed in the great Astoria fire of December, 1922. In this residence all of the four children of the Badollets were born. Mr. Badollet died in 1881.

Surviving Mrs. Badollet are three daughters, Miss Dora Badollet, Mrs. W. G. Howell, Mrs. Thad Trullinger; one son, J. P. Badollet; six grandchildren, and seven great grandchildren.

Funeral services for Mrs. Badollet will be held from the family home, 106 Commercial street, at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Rev. D. J. Ferguson will officiate. Interment will be in the family plot at Ocean View cemetery, where private services will be held. Arrangements are under the direction of the Hughes mortuary.

Pallbearers will be Charles W. Halderman, Herman Prael, E. M. Master-son, Dr. William Logan, George Stevens and J. N. Griffen.

Pioneer Woman Dies At St. Mary's Hospital After An Illness Of Three Months.

Exhausted with a complication of lingering ills, Mrs. Hannah Trullinger, widow of ex-Mayor John C. Trullinger, passed away on Tuesday evening at St. Mary's hospital after an illness of three months. Everything possible had been done to restore the sufferer to health, but without avail and the end came peacefully, her daughter, Mrs. T. T. Geer, and three of her sons being present.

The funeral services will be conducted at her late residence at 10:30 o'clock today by Rev. Wm. Seymour Short. The services at the grave in Ocean View cemetery will be private.

Hannah Boyle was born in Vermillion county, Ind., on October 12, 1837, and crossed the plains by oxteam with her parents in 1852. Mr. Boyle died on the way at Chimney Rock, Wyoming, and his family settled at Ames Chapel near Portland, Ore., where Miss Hanna was married in 1853 to John C. Trullinger. They came to Astoria in 1876 and Mr. Trullinger became a prominent business man, building the West Shore saw mill and putting in the original electric lighting plant. He served a term as mayor of the city, and his death occurred in April, 1900.

Mrs. Trullinger leaves two sisters, Mrs. W. A. Lewis of Portland and Mrs. Noble of Newberg; and eight children: Mrs. Mack of Olympia, Mrs. T. T. Geer of Salem, Perry A., Thomas O., S. Grant, Thad S., John H. and Wm. T. Trullinger, all of whom are here except John who is studying art in England.

Mrs. Trullinger was an excellent woman and a devoted mother, and her death will be mourned by many friends.

Mrs. William L. Trullinger died in San Francisco last evening after a long illness. Her body was shipped from there this morning for Astoria and upon its arrival the arrangements for the funeral will be made. Mrs. Trullinger was, before her marriage, Miss Hallie Raymond and a daughter of William Raymond of Young's river. She leaves beside her husband, one son who is six years old.

ANOTHER PIONEER GONE.

Death of Mrs. Lucinda Hastings at Port Townsend.

Mrs. Lucinda Hastings, one of the first settlers of Portland, and the first white woman who set foot in the wilderness of Western Washington, died at Port Townsend yesterday, aged 69 years. She and her husband, Loring B. Hastings, were in the first regular emigrant wagon train which started for Oregon in 1842, consisting of 16 wagons and 109 people. Among those who comprised the party were Dr. Elijah White, A. L. Lovejoy, Captain Medorem Crawford, J. R. Robb, F. X. Matthieu, S. W. Moss and many others prominent in the early history of this region. No wagon wheel had cut the sod of the country over which they proposed to go. With infinite difficulty the party advanced as far as the old trapping rendezvous on Green river, where half the wagons were dismantled, and the other half were abandoned at Fort Hall, on Snake river. Mr. and Mrs. Hastings arrived here soon after the city was founded by Frank W. Peitzygrove, and remained till 1852, when they went in wagons over to Puget sound, and settled in the wilderness where the city of Port Townsend now stands, and where Mrs. Hastings has resided ever since. She was greatly beloved and respected, and was an active worker in religious and temperance circles, and very charitable. She owned some of the finest business blocks and inside residence property in Port Townsend. Her funeral will take place tomorrow, under the auspices of the Good Templars, of which order she was an active member.

OBITUARY. 1897.

Yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Mrs. Frank Spittle, nee Miss Annie Woodfield, passed away at her residence on 10th street, after a short and painful illness. The immediate cause of death was blood poisoning.

Mrs. Spittle was 22 years of age, and was born in Plymouth, England, but has lived the most of her life in this city. Four months ago today she was married to Mr. Frank Spittle, one of Astoria's young lawyers, and made a happy honeymoon trip to the Sound country. Today her friends and relatives mourn a young life gone out only too soon. Mrs. Spittle leaves parents, brothers, and sisters, and hosts of friends living in Astoria.

The funeral services will take place at Grace Church at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

PIONEER WOMAN GOES TO HER FINAL REST

Jane Wornstaff.

Jane Wornstaff, a resident of Oregon since 1852, died Sunday morning at the home of her son and daughter at 335 East Eleventh street. She was 79 years old and leaves five sons, two daughters, 12 grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Her sons and daughters are: Mrs. N. C. Hilleary and Etny Wornstaff, of 335 East Eleventh street; C. W. Wornstaff, of Centralia, Wash.; Mrs. W. J. Heckard, of Watsonville, Cal.; and W. J., Elmer and Albert Wornstaff, of Bend, Or.

Mrs. Wornstaff was born at Laffette, Ind., January 11, 1833. In 1849 she was married to John Wornstaff. The couple crossed the plains with an ox team, locating in Portland October 2, 1852. In 1854 they moved to Astoria, where they lived until the death of her husband, March 3, 1907. Since then she has been living with her sons and daughters. For the last seven years she was totally blind.

Interment will be made in the Greenwood cemetery, near Astoria, Wednesday afternoon.

T. W. Eaton one of best known and most respected citizens died last Sunday morning at 5 o'clock. Sunday morning the flags throughout the city were at half mast and the one general expression was one of regret at his untimely end and sympathy for his wife to whom he had been married but a few months. Deceased was a Mason and at 12:30 yesterday afternoon the members of Temple Lodge No. 7 met at their hall and proceeded to his late residence. From there the body was taken to the steamer Westport where with sincere grief and accompanied by a sad array of mourners was confined to his final resting place at Clatsop.

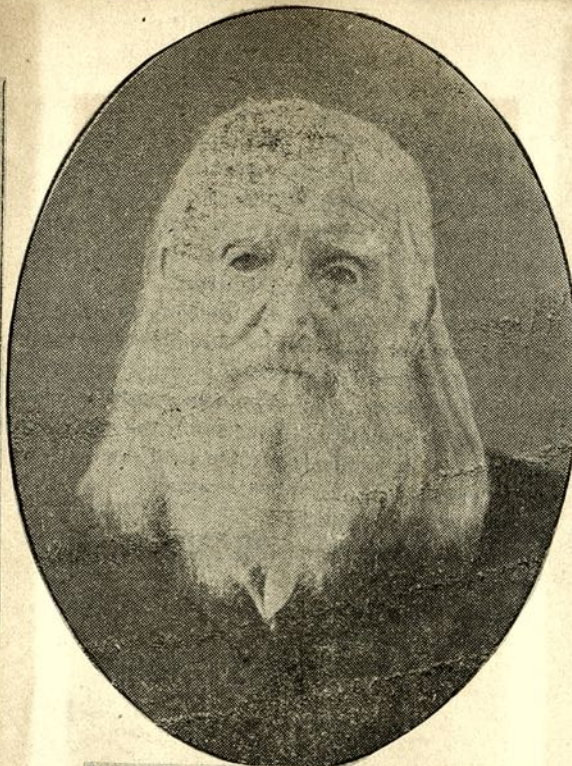

did Sept 5 - 1882

Robert Sturgeon MacEwan, the oldest male resident of this section of the state, the first clerk of Clatsop county and an Oregon pioneer of 1846, died at the hospital shortly before noon today of old age, altho he had been suffering during the past few days from bronchitis, following a slight cold.

Robert Sturgeon MacEwan was born in the county of Pictou, province of Nova Scotia, on November 10, 1813, and had he lived until next November he would have been 97 years of age. In 1821 he moved with his parents to the province of New Brunswick, where he resided until 1836, when he entered the employ of the government as a civil engineer and aided in making the surveys of the disputed boundary line between the American and British territory on the headwaters of the St. John and Restigouch rivers, near the southwest corner of New Brunswick. Four years later he came to the United States, sailing on the steamship Unicorn, the pioneer mail steamer of the Cunard line. He immediately settled in Missouri, where he was married in 1844 to Miss Cordelia Noland.

This was before the days of romantic tales of gold discoveries in California, but many emigrant trains were crossing the plains to Oregon, and in the spring of 1846 he purchased an ox team and wagon and with his wife joined one of the numerous trains and started for the Beaver state. His party had several skirmishes with the hostile Indians, but fortunately there were no fatalities, and the following fall reached Oregon, locating in Clackamas county near the mouth of Eagle creek at what was known as Foster's place. Two years later he went to the newly discovered gold fields in California, but sickness compelled him to turn back and he came to Astoria, which was then a Hudson Bay trading post. In 1849 he took up a donation land claim on Clatsop Plains. On the arrival of the United States sloop of war Fal-mouth at Astoria in August, 1850, bringing Hon. William Strong, United States circuit judge for Oregon, Mr. MacEwan, in company with Colonel

James Taylor, William H. Gray, Solomon H. Smith and R. W. Morrison, went on board to greet the visitors and at their request he was appointed by Judge Strong as the first clerk of Clatsop county, with authority to select suitable persons to fill the other county offices, a position he held for four years. In December, 1852, he made a trip to his former home in the east, by the way of San Francisco and the Nicaragua route to New York and thence to Miramichi. After a short visit he again started westward and with his father, mother, sister and three brothers, 2000 head of sheep, 50 cattle and 20 horses, crossed the plains to Oregon for the second time.

Mr. MacEwan had the distinction of having built the first vessel of any size in the lower Columbia river district. The craft was the schooner Pioneer of 40 tons, which he built on the Skipanon, and loaded with a cargo of hand-sawed lumber, which he took to San Francisco. He sold the lumber at prices ranging from $100 to $200 per thousand. Afterwards he sold the schooner to the government for $5000 and for a number of years she was used as a revenue cutter.

For 15 years Mr. MacEwan was a justice of the peace in Clatsop county at a time when its jurisdiction was much broader than it is now, and his record as such officer is favorably remembered by the old residents of the community. His wife died in 1860, after five children had been born to them. Until about three years ago he resided on his Clatsop Plains ranch but when old age began to creep on he moved into the city, where he could have more of the comforts of life.

Mr. MacEwan was a pleasing conversationalist and was able to relate many an interesting anecdote of early days. He remembered distinctly all the presidents of this country, with the exception of Washington, Adams and Jefferson, as well as the reigns of several of the British monarchs, and up to the time of his death was able to read his daily paper without the aid of glasses.

PROMINENT PASTOR DEAD.

Rev. William McEwan Passes Away at Portland on Friday Evening.

Died—At Portland, April 6th, 1895, of mumps, Rev. William McEwan.

The Reverend William L. McEwan, rector of St. Mark's Church, Portland, died Friday evening after a brief illness.

His many friends here were unaware of his illness until the news came of his death.

He was a son of Mr. Robert S. McEwan, a former resident of Clatsop, and a pioneer of this state, and in fact, of the Coast.

The Rev. Mr. McEwan was born in California but came to Oregon in his childhood, receiving his early training in this city. After graduating at the Berkeley Divinity School at Middletown, Conn., he was ordained deacon by Bishop Williams, and after he was ordained priest spent all of his minis-

PIONEER WOMAN IS DEAD

MRS. SARAH SOPHIE MUNSON
PASSES AT WARRENTON.

Victim of Long Illness Well Known as Survivor of Whitman Massacre
by Indians in 1847.

ASTORIA, Or., Aug. 18.—(Special).—Mrs. Sarah Sophie Munson, an Oregon pioneer of 1847 and one of the survivors of the Whitman massacre, died Monday night at her home in Warrenton, following an illness of about two weeks with heart trouble. By her death Clatsop County loses one of its most widely known and revered citizens.

Mrs. Munson was born on a farm near La Porte, Ind., March 25, 1841. When she was 6 years old her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Scofield Kimball, with their family started on the long trip across the plains to Oregon. The Kimball family was at the Whitman Mission, near Walla Walla, when the massacre by the Indians took place, November 19, 1847, in which Dr. and Mrs. Marcus Whitman and 12 others, including Mrs. Munson's father, were slain.

Mrs. Munson was ransomed from the Indians with other women by the Hudson's Bay Company. She came to Clatsop County when a young woman, married and resided on a Clatsop Plains farm. Later she resided at the Point Adams Lighthouse, of which her husband was keeper. Several years ago the family removed to Warrenton.

She is survived by one daughter and one son, Miss Clara Munson and Fred S. Munson, both of Warrenton; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Surprenant and Mrs. Mina Kimball Megler, of Astoria, and one brother, T. S. Jewett, of Hammond.

Grace Episcopal church was crowded to its utmost capacity last evening, to witness the wedding of Mr. Brenham Van Dusen and Miss Fannie L. Dickinson. Owing to late bereavement in Mr. Van Dusen's family, it was decided to have a private wedding without the slightest attempt at display, but so great is the circle of warm friends and acquaintances of the bride and groom that the church was filled. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. D. Wilson in a most impressive manner, and seldom has a marriage been performed with more kindly interest manifested by many who know and esteem the contracting parties. Mr. Van Dusen is an Astoria boy and one of our business men filling positions of trust and honor and with a brilliant future before him. Miss Dickinson has long been one of Astoria's favorite young ladies, and is held in high regard by all. The young couple have every promise of a long and happy life and that such shall be their lot is the sincere wish of those who have known and loved them from their childhood.

B. Van Dusen, Astorian For 70 Years, Dies

Brenham Van Dusen, whose life of 70 years in Astoria made him one of the longest living residents of this city passed away peacefully at his home this morning after an illness of several months, following a nervous breakdown suffered in July and from which he gradually declined to his death.

Born in Astoria April 16, 1856, of pioneer parents who had crossed the plains to Astoria, Mr. Van Dusen had been a resident of this city for his entire life and was active in business and civic affairs.

33-Degree Mason

His connections with the Masonic orders were particularly close. He was the only 33-degree Mason in Clatsop county, was a past master of the grand lodge of Oregon, and a past master of Temple lodge, A. F. and A. M. of this city.

Mr. Van Dusen was the son of Adam and Caroline Van Dusen, Oregon pioneers of 1847, who established themselves at Astoria, setting up a merchantile business. He was associated with his father in business for years, conducted general merchantile and ship chandlery store, as well as the Wells-Fargo agency of this city.

Pioneer Merchant

Mr. Van Dusen's father was the first store-keeper in Oregon to sell goods from shelves. Prior to the establishment of his store other pioneer merchants followed the practise of the Hudson's Bay company in selling all goods from boxes on the floor. The Van Dusen store stood on the site of the present Van Dusen building.

Later the merchantile business was sold and Mr. Van Dusen became associated with his brother, the late H. G. Van Dusen in an insurance and real estate business, the oldest in Astoria, and of which he was head at the time of his death.

He was married in 1884 to Miss Fanny L. Dickinson, who survives him, as do two sons, Dr. Arthur Van Dusen and Lloyd Van Dusen of this city. He also leaves two grandchildren, Brenham and Fulton Van Dusen, and three sisters, Mrs. C. J. Trenchard of San Francisco, Mrs. F. Westdahl and Mrs. George Strobbridge of Oakland, Cal.

Funeral Saturday

Mr. Van Dusen was a life-long member of Grace Episcopal church of this city and a member of the church vestry for more than 20 years.

The funeral services will be held at Grace Episcopal church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. F. C. Taylor officiating. The services at the grave will be in charge of the Masonic orders, and will be private. Interment will be in Ocean View cemetery.

NING, JUNE 16, 1895.

CLOSE OF A PURE LIFE

J. P. Dickinson Has Gone to His Long Rest.

HOSTS OF FRIENDS TO MOURN

A Consistent Christian During a Long Life—Death Found Him Ready for the Call.

Death ended a long and useful life yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. J. P. Dickinson, well beloved by all who knew him, has passed into that long sleep which is the common lot of man. In but a few hours, stricken down by apparently trivial causes, it is difficult to realize that one so recently seen in the midst of his fellows is no more. His end was a quiet passing away, unconscious from first to last he knew no pain. The family and physicians were with him to the last, and all that science knew was used in an effort to prolong life, but to no avail.

Mr. Dickinson was well known and respected by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and his life record remains a clean and unspotted history. Always kind-hearted and charitable, never ostentatious, the good he did on all sides during a busy life will never be known. For fifty years a member of the Christian church, he carried his religion with him to his office or field of labor and its principles dominated his daily life. His word once given it was scrupulously kept and no amount of outside influence could make him deviate from a course he believed to be right.

All have lost a good neighbor and many have lost a kind friend and benefactor. The citizens of Astoria generally join their own sorrow with the bereaved family in heartfelt mourning for the departed friend and brother.

John Pendleton Dickinson was a native of Virginia and born in Caroline county of that State May 24, 1819, and hence at the time of his death was 76 years of age. His parents, Samuel C. and Evellina (Pendleton) Dickinson, were also natives of the same state, his father being a physician, and passed his life in Caroline county, where he engaged in his professional and agricultural pursuits. Mr. Dickinson secured his academic education in Caroline county, continuing the scientific and legal studies in the William and Mary college, from which he was subsequently graduated, shortly afterward locating in Bowling Green and commencing the practice of law. In 1848 he removed to King William Courthouse, Va., and continued in the practice of law until 1850, when Secretary Stewart appointed him clerk in the pension office at Washington, D. C. Removing to that city he performed the duties of that office for four years, afterward being engaged in prosecuting claims before the several departments. In 1861 he returned to Virginia, and locating in Goochland county, followed agricultural pursuits, giving his services during the war to the Southern Confederacy.

In 1871 he came to Oregon, remaining in Portland in the insurance business until 1880, when he came to Astoria where he has since resided, being occupied at first as chief bookkeeper for M. J. Kinney, and from 1886 until 1894 as County Clerk Trenchard's chief deputy. He has occupied many positions of influence and trust as a citizen while here, and at the time of his death was a school director for the district.

The Van Dusen store stood on the site of the present Van Dusen building.

Later the merchantile business was sold and Mr. Van Dusen became associated with his brother, the late H. G. Van Dusen in an insurance and real estate business, the oldest in Astoria, and of which he was head at the time of his death.

He was married in 1884 to Miss Fanny L. Dickinson, who survives him, as do two sons, Dr. Arthur Van Dusen and Lloyd Van Dusen of this city. He also leaves two grandchildren, Brenham and Fulton Van Dusen, and three sisters, Mrs. C. J. Trenchard of San Francisco, Mrs. F. Westdahl and Mrs. George Strobbridge of Oakland, Cal.

Funeral Saturday

Mr. Van Dusen was a life-long member of Grace Episcopal church of this city and a member of the church vestry for more than 20 years.

The funeral services will be held at Grace Episcopal church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with Rev. F. C. Taylor officiating. The services at the grave will be in charge of the Masonic orders, and will be private. Interment will be in Ocean View cemetery.

Death ended a long and useful life yesterday morning at 4 o'clock. J. P. Dickinson, well beloved by all who knew him, has passed into that long sleep which is the common lot of man. In but a few hours, stricken down by apparently trivial causes, it is difficult to realize that one so recently seen in the midst of his fellows is no more. His end was a quiet passing away, unconscious from first to last he knew no pain. The family and physicians were with him to the last, and all that science knew was used in an effort to prolong life, but to no avail.

Mr. Dickinson was well known and respected by a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and his life record remains a clean and unspotted history. Always kind-hearted and charitable, never ostentatious, the good he did on all sides during a busy life will never be known. For Fifty years a member of the Christian church, he carried his religion with him to his office or field of labor and its principles dominated his daily life. His word once given it was scrupulously kept and no amount of outside influence could make him deviate from a course he believed to be right.

All have lost a good neighbor and many have lost a kind friend and benefactor. The citizens of Astoria generally join their own sorrow with the bereaved family in heartfelt mourning for the departed friend and brother.

John Pendleton Dickinson was a native of Virginia and born in Caroline county of that State May 24, 1819, and hence at the time of his death was 76 years of age. His parents, Samuel C. and Evellina (Pendleton) Dickinson, were also natives of the same state, his father being a physician, and passed his life in Caroline county, where he engaged in his professional and agricultural pursuits. Mr. Dickinson secured his academic education in Caroline county, continuing the scientific and legal studies in the William and Mary college, from which he was subsequently graduated, shortly afterward locating in Bowling Green and commencing the practice of law. In 1848 he removed to King William Courthouse, Va., and continued in the practice of law until 1850, when Secretary Stewart appointed him clerk in the pension office at Washington, D. C. Removing to that city he performed the duties of that office for four years, afterward being engaged in prosecuting claims before the several departments. In 1861 he returned to Virginia, and locating in Goochland county, followed agricultural pursuits, giving his services during the war to the Southern Confederacy.

In 1871 he came to Oregon, remaining in Portland in the insurance business until 1880, when he came to Astoria where he has since resided, being occupied at first as chief bookkeeper for M. J. Kinney, and from 1886 until 1894 as County Clerk Trenchard's chief deputy.

He has occupied many positions of influence and trust as a citizen while here, and at the time of his death was a school director for the district. In 1846 he was married to Sally T. Woolfolk, who was his life's companion, and who died in this city six years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickinson both became members of the Christian Church before their marriage and lived consistently in the faith to the last, a period of about 50 years.

Of his brothers and sisters there are still living, Charles W. and Samuel C. Dickinson, living in Washington, D. C.; W. F. Dickinson, living in Alabama; Mrs. Elizabeth Row, living in Georgetown, Texas, and Mrs. Belle G. Hart, living in Marshall, Texas. He leaves three children, all residents of this city; Miss Helen W., who is a teacher in the Shively school; Louisa P., wife of Dr. Alfred Kinney, now mayor of Astoria, and Fannie L., wife of B. VanDusen.

The funeral services will be held at the residence this afternoon, between the hours of 1:30 and 2:30, at which time the casket will be opened that all friends may have an opportunity of taking a last look at the face of the departed. The Rev. Garner and Rev. Short will officiate. The remains will be buried in Clatsop cemetery, where the services will be private.

J. P. Dickinson Dead.

A loyal life has gone out. J. P. Dickinson is dead. After but a few days of illness and suffering his soul left its earthly tenement and took its eternal flight this morning at 4 o'clock.

Death is as old as life, but it is still the awful mystery and speechless terror which startled the first children of our race when the Edenic curse had fallen and the pale signet of the destroyer was stamped on the curl-swept brow of Abel. We can never become reconciled to the grim messenger whose coming we cannot delay, whose mandate we cannot ignore. He may take and hold our brightest and our best as hostages in his pallid temples of repose, but we turn with dismay from his retreating steps and cling to our windy tents on the narrow ridge of life. In the palaces of the great and the huts of the poor alike he is never a bidden guest to share the royal banquet or the humble crust and cup. Yet he will not forego his gloomy visits, and tears and prayers will not bribe him to depart without the costly tribute for the payment of which no appointed day or hour is known. We see on the sunny threshold the sudden shadow of the despot's trembling plumes, and laughter dies away and song is turned to wailing. In this, since the world began, there has been no change. There is no truce there—no hope of parley or recall. We may surround our anointed dead with funeral pomp and cover them with flowers, but the pale cheek will not flush at the tender flattery, the drooped lashes will not be lifted in gentle recognition of the clinging garlands. They are farther from us than the farthest star, and out of the eternal silence into which they have passed, our heart-rending cries return to us in empty and appalling echoes.

These reflections are called forth by the sudden ending of one of Astoria's most highly respected and honored citizens. Mr. Dickinson was a man of decision. He was frank and outspoken, but he was always considerate of the feelings of others. His was as kindly and genial a nature as it has ever been the writer's good fortune to meet with. He was above the small bickerings and petty strifes of quarrelsome men. His was a broad, deep, wholesome nature. If he were to come where men were in angry dispute or bitter contention his presence seemed to drive away the bitterness as a fresh wind would sweep away a mist. Men liked him, and the longer and better one knew him, the more he was thought of. He was rich in—

"That best portion of a good man's life,
His little, nameless, unremembered acts
Of kindness and of love."

He never lived in a community that was not better for his life and conduct there. He was a good neighbor, a loving husband, a kind father, a good citizen, and that is a heritage of more value to his family and his friends than countless wealth would be.

The cause leading to his death has already been published, and is well known to the readers of the Budget.

John P. Dickinson was born in Caroline county, Virginia, May 2d 1819; secured his academic education in Caroline county, continuing in the scientific and legal studies in the William and Mary College, where he subsequently graduated. He located in Bowling Green and commenced the practice of law. He continued the practice until 1850, when Secretary Steward appointed him clerk of the pension office at Washington, D. C. In 1858 he bought a farm near Washington and followed farming until 1861, when he moved to Goochland county, Virginia, and continued in the same pursuit until 1864, when he entered the army and served until the close of the war. Returning to his farm he followed the line of agricultural pursuits until 1871, when he came to Portland, Oregon. There he engaged in the life insurance business and continued in the same until 1880, when he came to Astoria and engaged as book-keeper for the Astoria Packing Company, performing the duties up to 1886. He was then appointed deputy clerk by C. J. Trenchard and continued in that office until the expiration of Mr. Trenchard's term last July, having held that position for eight years. He was one of the organizers of the Astoria Building and Loan Association, in 1887, and filled the office of president for five years.

He has three children, all of whom live in this city—Mrs. Louise P., wife of Dr. Alfred Kinney; Fannie L., now Mrs. Brenham Van Dusen, and Miss Helen W. Dickinson. His wife died in this city six years ago. Mr. Dickinson was a true Christian, and for over fifty years was a member of the Christain church.

The funeral will take place from the family residence tomorrow afternoon and the interment will be at the Clatsop cemetery, where his wife was buried. Requiescat in pace.

Dickinson Funeral

Funeral services for the late Miss Helen W. Dickinson will be held at her residence, 586 Franklin street, today at 1:30 o'clock, with the Rev. W. S. Gilbert of the First Presbyterian church officiating. Services at Oceanview cemetery will be private.

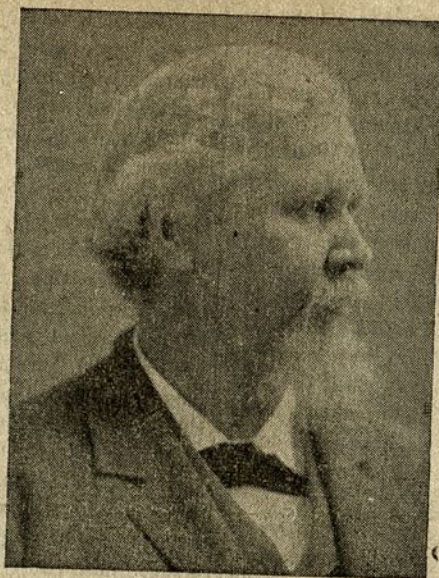

DR. A. C. KINNEY PASSES AWAY

Prominent Astoria Physician
Died Last Night

Telegrams were received shortly after 7 o'clock last evening conveying the sad intelligence that Dr. August C. Kinney, the well known physician of this city, had died at the Fabiola sanitarium in Oakland, Calif., where he had been under treatment for several weeks. Death was the result of complications arising from a tumor of the bladder, with which the deceased had been suffering for months and to remove which a critical surgical operation was performed about two weeks ago. Dr. Kinney was en route home from an extended trip to Europe, where he consulted some of the leading specialists concerning his malady but without any permanent benefit resulting, and on reaching Oakland his condition was such that an operation was considered absolutely necessary. Every possible care and attention was given him but despite these he gradually grew weaker until last evening, when he passed peacefully away. At his bedside at the time were his devoted wife, Mrs. Jane Kinney, Dr. Alfred Kinney of this city, Marshall J. Kinney of Portland and Mrs. Peyton of Redlands, a sister. The remains will be shipped north this evening and the funeral will be held at Salem with the interment in the Odd Fellows cemetery, where the deceased's parents and two of his brothers were buried.

Dr. August Crouch Kinney was born at Muscatine, Iowa, in July, 1845, and at the time of his death was 62 years of age.

He came to Oregon in 1847 with his parents, who resided in Chehalem valley, Yamhill county, until 1867 when they moved to Salem. Dr. Kinney received his early education in the schools at Forest Grove and McMinnville and began his medical education by taking the course at Willamette University. Later he studied medicine in New York and graduated in 1868 from the Bellevue Hospital Medical College of that city. During the succeeding two years he was a member of the house staff of the Charity Hospital at Blackwell's Island. In 1870 he came to Portland where he entered upon the practice of his profession and remained there for seven years, when he moved to Astoria, which has been his home since that time. After coming to this city he continued in the general practice of medicine for some time, but about 16 years ago, he began devoting his entire attention to the study and treatment of tuberculosis. So successful was he in his work, that he soon became a recognized authority on tuberculosis, among the medical fraternity, not alone in this country but in Europe as well and numerous articles by him on this subject have been printed in the leading medical journals throughout the world. In fact, he but recently returned from a trip to Europe, where he went partially for the benefit of his health, but more particularly to confer with the leading specialists at Berlin, regarding the subject to a study of which he had devoted many of the best years of his life. Dr. Kinney was not only a successful practitioner, but a man in the broad sense of the word and he won and retained the honor and respect of everyone who knew him. A devout Christian, he took an active interest in all matters that tended to a betterment of the moral or commercial conditions of the community and he leaves behind a record of a well spent and useful life. He was sympathetic and charitable and, though never ostentatious in his giving, want and suffering never appealed to him in vain, when he had power to aid.

Dr. Kinney was married when about 21 years of age to Miss Jane Welch of Clackamas county, but no children were born to them. He left beside his widow, two brothers and three sisters, M. J. Kinney of Portland, Dr. Alfred Kinney of Astoria, Mrs. Jane K. Smith of Astoria, Mrs. J. G. Walker of San Francisco and Mrs. J. E. Peyton of Redlands, Calif.

MRS. LOUISE GEORGE RESIDENT 17 YEARS DIES AT HOME HERE

Mrs. Louise J. George, 89, mother of the late George H. George, formerly secretary of the Columbia River Packer's association, died yesterday afternoon at her home at 442 Seventeenth street where she had been living with Miss Sadie Crang. Mrs. George has made her home with Miss Crang since the death of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George H. George, who died ten years ago.

Mrs. George was born in New York City on March 29, 1839. In 1911 she and her husband, Henry W. George who died here in 1913, came to Astoria and she has been here ever since. She leaves many friends here who regret her death.

Rev. E. W. Hughes will officiate at private funeral services at the home of Miss Crang tomorrow afternoon at 1:30. Services will also be held at the grave in the Ocean View cemetery. The Hughes mortuary will be in charge.

P. A. STOKES, WELL KNOWN ASTORIAN PASSES SUDDENLY

No funeral arrangements have been made, as yet, for Philip Arthur Stokes, 65, well known resident of this city, who died suddenly at his home at 694 G and avenue, late yesterday.

Mr. Stokes was born in San Francisco. He came to Astoria in 1884 where he was engaged in the mercantile business. Ill health caused him to retire from business in 1916. During his business career in Astoria Mr. Stokes was actively engaged in countless civic as well as business affairs and his sincerity of purpose won him countless friends.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Emily Stokes, a daughter, Mrs. Grace Stone of Tampa, Fla., eight brothers, Walter of Astoria; F. R. of Bucoda, Wash.; James and Harold of Nome, Alaska; Henry, Guy, Thomas and Edward Stokes, all of San Francisco, and a sister, Mary Stokes of San Francisco.

Funeral services will be under the direction of the Hughes Mortuary of this city.

WELL KNOWN PIONEER RESIDENT OF ASTORIA IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Allen, widow of the late A. V. Allen Sr., and one of the most beloved of Astoria's pioneer residents, died about 1 o'clock this morning at the family home, 503 Franklin avenue following an illness of over nine years. Mrs. Allen was born at Salem, Oregon, on January 12, 1863, and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Gilbert. Her early girlhood was passed in California and in Portland and on July 1, 1881, she was married in this city, making her home here continuously since that time. She is survived by four sons, J. T., A. V. Jr., and Lr. Anson G. Allen of this city and Harvey A. Allen of San Francisco. She also left four sisters and two brothers, Miss Anna Gilbert and Mrs. Louis Nunan, San Francisco; Mrs. F. J. Streibig, Portland; Miss M. J. Gilbert, Astoria; George Gilbert, San Diego, Cal., and Charles Gilbert, Seattle.

Mrs. Allen was a devout Christian woman a devoted wife, loving mother and kind neighbor, active in religious and charitable work and left a host of warm personal friends, especially among the older residents of the city. The remains are at the Hughes mortuary and the funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Captain T. H. Crang Veteran Riverman Dies in Washington

Captain Thomas H. Crang, veteran riverman on the Columbia and well known not only in Astoria but all along the river, died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at his home in Port Townsend, Washington, according to word received by his sister, Miss Sadie Crang of this city. Funeral arrangements have yet not been definitely completed.

Captain Crang spent more than 50 years in service on the Columbia river. Coming to Astoria with his parents in 1875 from Centerville, N. Y. where he was born in 1858, he first engaged in newspaper reporting work here, soon abandoning it, however, to begin a long career as a riverman. For a good many years he served with the White Collar line which operated the old river steamers Telephone and Baily Gatzert, and later served as a pilot from Astoria to Portland for the Union Oil company's tankers. He retired from active life in 1922 due to ill health and moved from Portland to Port Townsend where he had since lived.

Captain Crang is survived by his widow, his mother, who lives at Forest Grove, three sisters Mrs. Mary McKenzie of Forest Grove, Mrs. H. G. Van Dusen and Miss Sadie M. Crang of this city, and two brothers, Frank Crang of Portland, and Ed Crang, who is living in California.

MRS. MARY ADAIR DEAD

Mother of Victim of Carrizal Massacre Succumbs in East.

Mrs. Mary Rodney Adair, mother of Henry Rodney Adair, Portland member of the 10th U. S. cavalry, who was slain by Carranzistas troops at the Carrizal massacre in July, 1916, died in Newcastle, Del., Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. R. Rogers. She was 66 years old and had lived in Portland and Astoria since 1869. Death was due to a stroke of paralysis several weeks ago, and her son, W. M. Adair, assistant bank superintendent of Oregon, was called east to her bedside. He returned to Portland a week ago, when Mrs. Adair seemed to be improving.

Mrs. Adair was widely known in Portland and Astoria. Her husband, the late Samuel D. Adair, came to Oregon in 1849 and lived for many years in Astoria. Mrs. Adair was the daughter of the late Bishop B. W. Morris. She was born in Philadelphia, Pa., where she received her early education. She was graduated here from St. Helen's hall.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Rogers and Mary A. Adair of this city; two sons, W. M. Adair of this city and Captain Alexander Adair of Camp Meade, Md., and two brothers, William E. Morris of this city and B. W. Morris of New York.

Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

Ethel Merriman

Mrs. E. M. Bailey.

Funeral services were held Wednesday, July 19, for Mrs. E. M. Bailey, wife of Dr. A. B. Bailey of Portland. Mrs. Bailey died Monday at her home, 170 Vista avenue. She is survived, besides her husband, by her son, Bruce, a sister, Mrs. Helen Moreton of New York; three brothers, Harold Merriman and Dr. George Merriman of Klamath Falls, and Adrian Merriman of Tacoma, Wash.

Mrs. Bailey was a graduate of Pacific University and of Snell Seminary, Oakland, Cal. She was an accomplished musician. She was married to Dr. Bailey in Hillsboro, her birthplace, 25 years ago. For the past ten years she made her home in Portland where she took an active part in social affairs.

She was a member of the McDowell club and the Thursday morning Art class. The body was taken to Hillsboro where the concluding services were held.

DEATH TAKES MOTHER OF DR. A. P. NOYES

Mrs. E. A. Noyes, widow of Edward Allen Noyes, died in St. Vincent's hospital today. Her death was the culmination of several years of illness.

Mrs. Noyes was the mother of Dr. Allen Noyes of Portland, Major Edward A. Noyes of Camp Lewis, and Mrs. Lee S. Bennett of Hood River.

She and her husband came to Portland more than thirty years ago and for years thereafter Mr. Noyes was active in lumber and shipping circles. She was 67. Her home was at 155 North Twenty-second street.

The funeral will be held Thursday at 2:30 p. m. from Finley's with burial in Riverview cemetery.

John Hobson Dead

Funeral Took Place This Afternoon From the Family Residence.

Dec 6, 1896. 2 P.M.

John Hobson, aged 72, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Clatsop county, died at his home in this city last Sunday morning about quarter past 2 o'clock. He had been very ill for about five months, and his death was expected at any time. He was informed months ago by his physician that he could not live long, and this decision was corroborated by Dr. Kenneth McKenzie, who examined him in Portland three months ago. He died of cancer in the rectum. The last time he was out of his house was on November 3d, when he was taken in a carriage to the polls to vote. He was then very pale, and low in strength.

John Hobson was born in England, December 4, 1824, and was a son of William and Margaret (Hutchinson) Hobson, also natives of England. The mother died when her children were small, and in 1843 the father set sail for the United States.

After arriving at New Orleans he took the steamer for St. Louis, with the intention of locating in Wisconsin. While in that city, detained by ice, he met some men from Oregon, and was induced by them to seek his fortune in the far west, immediately fitting out wagons for the overland trip. He with Miles Eysers, and their families, traveled through Missouri to Independence, the place of rendezvous, as soon as the snow was off, with mule teams, arriving the 12th day of May, 1843, and finding about 100 wagons and about 300 persons preparing to cross the mountains. Leaving there about May 15, they arrived at Fort Vancouver the last of November, and the mouth of the Columbia the 25th of December, 1845. Of this trip across the plains the deceased could talk for hours in an interesting and intelligent manner, giving incidents and reminiscences which few pioneers were able to remember; also of the early days in Astoria. He remembers trials and hardships which none else recollect, and if all he saw and experienced could be written it would make a large and highly interesting volume. To such men as Mr. Hobson the grand possibilities and material prosperity of the great Pacific Northwest is greatly due. They braved hardships, faced dangers and overcame difficulties which none but men of iron will and iron constitutions would ever dare to face, thus paving the way for prosperity to make homes and dwell in safety. They, in the pioneer days, had to battle with the elements, fight with savage tribes, cut roads through thick brush, ford dangerous streams, and where proud ships sail today they, in 1843, rowed their frail canoes on the still, smooth waters of the great Columbia. Too much praise cannot be given these hardy, whole-souled pioneers for the grand work they have done in opening the way to the shores of the great Pacific. Only one American was in Astoria when Mr. Hobson arrived here, and that was the father of C. W. Shivley, who died a few years ago.

For several years Mr. Hobson labored on his father's farm on Clatsop plains, driving cattle from place to place and trading for flour. In 1846 he started out in life for himself, bringing a band of cattle from the Willamette valley and engaging in the dairy business in company with Solomon H. Smith. From 1848 until 1850 he was engaged in mining in California, but in the latter year returned to this state. Mr. Hobson then bought forty head of cattle from a Mr. Riley, which he drove from the Willamette to Clatsop plains, bought the old Perry claim, now owned by George Wingate, and was engaged in agricultural pursuits there till 1863. The following year he purchased property in this city. He engaged in the butcher business with John Gearhart, and subsequently with D. K. Warren. He retired from the butchering business, and in company with John Badollet, H. Aiken, George Warren and C. Leinenweber he built and operated one of the first canneries in this city. Mr. Hobson subsequently went to Tillamook and established a cannery at what is known as Hobsonville, which was named in his honor. In 1885 he was appointed collector of customs at Astoria under President Cleveland, and in 1890 was made vice-president of the Astoria National bank of this city. He was at one time a county commissioner. Socially he affiliated with the I. O. O. F., Beaver Lodge.

Mr. Hobson was married in 1851 to Miss Diana Owens, a native of Kentucky, and a daughter of Thomas Owens, who crossed the plains with Mr. Hobson and his father. To this union were born four children: Frank P.; Ada, wife of Hon. O. W. Fulton; Harry B., and Maud, wife of G. C. Fulton. The mother died in 1874, and in 1875 Mr. Hobson married Mrs. Anna K. Reeves, and they had three children, Edwin, Reba and Bertha.

Mr. Hobson has not been engaged in active business pursuits since he was appointed collector of the port under President Cleveland's first administration. He was one of the organizers of the Astoria National bank, and at the time of his death held a position as director.

As a man, father, neighbor and friend he is spoken of in the highest terms.

The funeral occurred at the residence today at noon, and was attended by Beaver Lodge, I. O. O. F., and members of the Pioneer and Historical Society, with which latter body the deceased had been connected as member and officer since its organization in 1871. Capt. Gray was selected to pay the last tribute of respect at the grave in behalf of the Pioneers. The pall-bearers were:

Honorary (members of the Pioneer and Historical society)—Chas. S. Wright, A. Montgomery, George Davidson, William Chance, Robt. Carruthers and B. Van Dusen.

Active (members of Beaver Lodge, I. O. O. F.)—A. F. Krager, William Bock, D. P. Williams, C. F. Gramms, F. C. Reed and William Dench.

The religious services at the house were rendered by Revs. Garner and Marcotte. The latter went to the grave and closed.

At the residence during the services were many of the city, county, and federal officials, a large delegation of business men, and several members of Beaver lodge and the Pioneer society. They all followed the remains to the train. Mrs. John Hobson was unable to attend the funeral, being very low. All the sons and daughters of the deceased who could get here attended and went to Clatsop cemetery. The public generally paid its respects by passing the uncovered coffin and taking a last look at the deceased.

After the body was lowered in the grave, Captain J. H. D. Gray, president of the Pioneer and Historical Society, addressing those present, said:

"Pioneers and friends: We are assembled here today to perform the last sad rites that the living can pay to the dead.

"The unerring hand of time has called our worthy member, John Hobson, to that home from whence no traveler returns.

"His life has been that of a typical pioneer, who did his part always—and well. Patriotic in his devotion to his adopted country; faithful and honest in the discharge of his public duties; self-sacrificing, watchful and diligent in the management of the widow and orphan trusts confided to his care; a kind and loving husband, father and friend.

Let us hope that when our time shall come to walk through the valley of death, the journey may be ended as satisfactorily as his.

The mortal remains of our Honored Pioneer will now be committed to the silent grave.

Earth to earth. Dust to dust. Ashes to ashes.

His cheerful voice is heard no more,
His duty call unheeded,
His sentry beat is silent,
His watch on guard is o'er.

His highest aim to be at last
Honored and loved, he's won,
His storm in life is past,
His faithful work is done.

WESTDAHL—In this city, October 25, 1913, Captain Ferdinand W., beloved husband of Florence Westdahl, father of Mrs. Anna Heilborn and Lawrence H. Westdahl and the late Ferdinand and Robert Westdahl, step-father of Dr. W. M. Wadleigh, a native of Wisby, Sweden, aged 77 years, 9 months and 5 days.

Ferdinand Fisher Astoria Pioneer Called By Death

Death came early last evening to Ferdinand Albert Fisher, pioneer resident of Astoria and prominent early day merchant of the city. He died at his home 341 12th street following an illness of several months incident to his advancing years.

The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 1:30 at the Masonic temple with Rev. E. W. Hughes of the Episcopal church officiating. Interment will be made in Oceanview cemetery.

Mr. Fisher was 76 years old at his death and came to Astoria with his parents when 11 years old. He had lived here continuously since.

He entered the active business life of the community in the early 80s as a member of the hardware firm of Fisher and Wilson. Later with his brother, the late A. C. Fisher, he organized the firm of Fisher Bros. Hardware Co. which they conducted for years and which, under a different ownership but the same firm name, is still one of the prominent mercantile institutions of the city. Mr. Fisher acquired large property holdings in the business and residential districts during his life here.

For a long period of years he served on the old city water commission which was abolished with the adoption of the city manager form of government.

The deceased was a member of Harbor lodge, A. F. & A. M. He is survived by his widow and one son, Earl Fisher of this city.

The body is at the Hughes mortuary.

Circle of Friends.

ST. HELENS, Or., April 19.—(Special.)—Olga D. Heilborn, a resident of St. Helens for more than twenty years, died in a Portland sanitarium Friday morning after a brief illness.

She was born at Mankato, Minn., in 1870, and, with her parents, Charles and Alma Heilborn, came to Astoria in 1875. She resided there until 1909, when she came to St. Helens to live with her sister, Mrs. S. C. Morton. Mrs. Heilborn had a wide circle of friends in Astoria, where she lived for 30 years, and also in St. Helens. She is survived by a brother, Charles Heilborn, of Hollywood, Cal., ex-resident of Portland, and two sisters, Mrs. S. C. Morton of St. Helens, and Mrs. O. A. Bierbach of Honolulu. Funeral services will be held at the Portland crematorium Monday at 10:30 A. M.

Written for The Journal
by Fred Lockley.

RECENTLY I spent a very pleasant afternoon with Mrs. Jacob Kamm at her home in Portland. Mrs. Kamm is one of the pioneers. When I asked her to tell me something about the early days she brought an old-fashioned, much-worn, leather bound Bible. "This is my mother's Bible," she said. "It was given to her when she was a young girl, before she came to Oregon, and in it are our family records." Turning the yellowed leaves she came to the records of the births and deaths and said: "My father, W. H. Gray, was born on September 8, 1810. He came from Utica, New York. While he was still a young man he was appointed secular agent for the A. B. C. F. M. I suppose you don't know what that means. In fact, I doubt nowadays, if very many would know what those initials stand for. In those early days, Oregon was a part of the foreign mission field and those letters stand for the 'American Board of Commissions of Foreign Missions.' As you know, the Methodists sent out Jason Lee and his party in 1834. In 1836 the Presbyterians decided to establish missions in the Oregon field. My father came out with Marcus Whitman on horseback in 1836. He was made secular agent for Dr. Whitman and Rev. H. H. Spalding. He joined them at Liberty Landing on the Missouri river in 1837.

"Mrs. Whitman and Mrs. Spalding were the first two white women to cross the plains, the wives of the Methodist missionaries having come to the Pacific coast by ship around the Horn. Dr. Whitman was stationed among the Cayuse Indians at Wallatpu in the Walla Walla valley, while Mr. Spalding and my father were stationed among the Nezperce Indians at Lapwai, not far from the present city of Lewiston. In the latter part of December, 1836, my father left Mr. Spalding's station for Walla Walla. The snow was nearly two feet deep on the ground and he traveled on horseback to the river, and thence by canoe down the snake and Columbia rivers to Walla Walla, where he arrived the day after Christmas. Early in January, Mr. F. Ermentinger, who was a traveling trader for the Hudson Bay company, trading principally among the Flatheads, and my father started for Vancouver. From Vancouver, from Vancouver they proceeded to Mr. Ermentinger's trading post near the Couer d'Alene lake. From there, they followed the main branch of Clarke's fork of the Columbia to the Bitter Root valley and then on into the Big Hole country. You can imagine something of what a trip of this kind was in the middle of the winter through a wild country. They had one or two fights with the Indians in which some of the Indians with my father, as well as the attacking Indians were killed.

Makes Long Trip East.

During that winter following a tedious trip east of '37 and '38, my father traveled through New York state and other eastern states talking about Oregon country and the need for more missionaries. On the twenty-fifth of February, 1838, he married Mary Augusta Dix.

That spring my father and mother accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Walker, and Mr. and Mrs. Cushing Eells, and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Smith, started across the plains on horseback for the mission settlements in the northwest. All four of these couples were newly married and they had before them a honeymoon trip of several thousand miles across a country whose only trails were the game trails of the buffalo or the Indian war trails. They reached Whitman station in September, 1838. On their way out they met Jason Lee on the north fork of the Yellowstone river. When they had gotten as far as Fort Hall they received news of the death of Mrs. Jason Lee in Salem. My father hired a guide named Richardson, to take the news on to Mr. Lee, agreeing for Mr. Lee, that he would be paid $150 for the trip. The letter was handed to Mr. Lee at Westport, Missouri. The trip from the Willamette valley to to Westport by various couriers and different relays, took only 60 days and of this there had been a two days' delay at Whitman's mission and two days' delay at Fort Hall.

"My mother and father located at Spaulding's Mission, among the Nez Perces, and I was born there in 1840. In 1842 my father gave up the mission work, and being intensely American, he came to the Willamette valley and energetically took up the work of promoting American settlement and the provisional government for Oregon.

"He attended school only one term in his life, yet while apprentice to a cabinetmaker, he had read and studied a good deal, and while with Dr. Whitman he continued the study of medicine and in assisting Dr. Whitman he became quite proficient not only with drugs, but in surgical operations. In fact, he was the first one in the northwest so far as I know ever to perform a trephining operation. The sons of two of the Nez Perce chiefs were playing, one threw a rock and knocked the other senseless. The chief whose boy had been hurt came to my father and asked him if he could do anything for his boy. My father realized that if he operated on the boy and the boy did not live he would incur the enmity of the Indians. He explained to them the seriousness of the operation, and the chief told him that he would assume all risk and for my father to do whatever he thought was best. The operation was successful and the boy recovered. After that the Indians would do anything for my father.

"When my father came to the Willamette valley he did considerable building. He built the Oregon Institute at Salem, which afterwards became the Willamette University. While living at Oregon City he built a house for Dr.

McLaughlin. The Nez Perce Indians, among whom we had lived always, called Dr. McLaughlin Husus-Hai-Hai, which means 'White Head,' because he had long snow-white hair.

"While we were at Oregon City or Willamette Falls, as it was usually called, a great many new people were coming in. In 1842 Captain John H. Couch came there with a vessel with some trading goods. My father and mother were always glad to hear news from the east, so we usually invited the newcomers to our house, and in that way met practically all of the people coming to Oregon. My father was the author of 'Grays History of Oregon,' which you have probably read. Politics was very active in those days. The Hudson Bay company had scattered throughout the valley a large number of retired employees, mostly French-Canadians, who with their Indian wives and their children were engaged in farming. There were also a good many men from the Orkney Islands and the Sandwich Islands. The question as to whether Oregon should be American or British territory was a very live one. In March, 1843, my father and some other men met to discuss the situation, and my father was appointed one of a committee to call what was termed a 'wolf meeting,' to have all the residents of the Willamette valley combine in an effort to exterminate wild animals. They decided to meet at Champoe on May 2, 1843, and it was at this historic meeting that Joe Meek turned the tide for the Americans and by a vote of 52 to 50 the settlers decided for the American government in place of the Hudson Bay or English government. At this meeting a legislative committee of nine was elected, my father being one of the nine.

"When I was a girl I went to school in Forest Grove, later coming to Portland, going to the Portland Academy. Professor Kingsley was the principal. Lizze Couch, afterward Mrs. Gilson, Fanny Holman, H. L. Pittock, Miss Burton and many others were schoolmates of mine.

"My father and mother went up to Fort Hope during the Frazer river gold mining excitement, my father running a schooner on the Frazer river. They were up there in 1858 and '59 when I was at school.

"My father was very strict with my sisters and myself. He did not allow us to keep company with any young men until he had given his permission. He said when we were 18 years of age it was time enough for us to think of young men. Several of the young men who proposed to me I referred to my father, who discouraged them very effectively. While visiting one of my girl friends I met Jacob Kamm. He was building the Carrie Ladd at the time and had just returned from the east, where he had secured the machinery. He had it all installed a day or two before St. Valentine's day. My girl friend, Miss Anna Pentland, and I were invited by Mr. Kamm to go on the trial trip of the Carrie Ladd, which occurred on Valentine's day. It was not very long before Mr. Kamm proposed, and I decided not to risk sending him to my father, but instead I went myself to Fort Hope to break the news to my father and mother.

Married at Sea.

"Mr. Kamm came up on the boat a month later than I. We were to be married as soon as he came, but we found that the laws of British Columbia were different from those of the United States. A license had to be secured from the governor of British Columbia, who resided at Victoria. The banns had to be announced for two Sundays. Mrs. Wells, the wife of Captain Wells of the steamer Eliza Anderson, was at Fort Hope awaiting us. We knew her well, of course, as the Eliza Anderson had been built and launched in Portland. I remember this boat made her trial trip on the day after New Year's in 1859, and was the first vessel to be inspected in the Victoria district. Captain Wells suggested that we go to Queensboro, as Vancouver was then called, where we could take his boat, the Eliza Anderson, and be married in neutral waters. The chief justice of British Columbia was stopping overnight at the home of the Rev. E. Robinson at Fort Hope and we consulted him. He explained the marriage laws of British Columbia to us and so we decided rather than to submit to the delay, to ask the Rev. Robinson to go with us on board the boat and marry us. We went from Fort Hope to Queensboro on a British boat. At Queensboro we changed to the Eliza Anderson, and so, in the neutral waters of the Gulf of Georgia. On September 13, 1859, we were married under the stars and stripes. A lot of miners who were going home from the northern mines cheered us heartily. Captain Wells and John Couch, the purser of the boat, were two of our witnesses. Mr. and Mrs. William Köhl were also witnesses for us. We had made a fine wedding cake, but in the hurry of the departure it had been left behind so at our wedding feast we had to do without our wedding cake.

"Just at this time the United States and England were at outs over the dispute as to the boundary line. England claimed San Juan islands, so did the United States. The amended treaty said that the boundary line should go along the forty-ninth parallel to the middle of the channel, which should be the dividing line between the two countries. Unfortunately there were two channels. England claimed the lower channel, called the Rosario channel, while the United States claimed the other channel which went west of San Juan island. The island was occupied by an American and some employees of the Hudson Bay company, who were running sheep there. The Americans and the Hudson Bay men quarreled and it became a national issue. We met some officers of the American war boats who were very anxious for us to get married aboard one of the war vessels. Among the United States vessels there, I remember were the Fauntleroy, Jeff Davis and two more, while there were four British gunboats also there. There were some American troops under General Harney on one end of the island, while the British were holding the other end of the island. In coming up to Fort Hope we had stopped there to land some supplies for the Americans and it was there that I got acquainted with some of the young officers.

"We celebrated our golden wedding several years ago. It seems strange to think of the men and women grey-haired and many of them grandfathers and grandmothers, whom I knew as children, when I was at school. I remember when we were living at Astoria, Mrs. W. S. Ladd came down to visit us. We all fell in love with her baby, Willie. He had his first birthday at our house. I believe, next to my mother, I loved Mrs. Ladd better than any other woman I ever knew. She was a grand character and I, as well as thousands of other women, lost a good friend when she died.

"I suppose the young people of the present generation think of the days when I was a girl as times of hardship and hard work. While it is true that almost everybody in those days worked, it is also true that we managed to have mighty pleasant times together and while we could not travel in Pullmans and have all the comforts that we have today, nevertheless, we enjoyed our trips by canoe or on horseback or in those early boats just as much and probably more than the people of today, with all of their comforts and conveniences."

HON. CHRISTIAN LEINWEBER, deceased, for many years a leading business man of Astoria; was born near Pirna-sens, Bavaria, in 1839. At the age of fifteen years he came to the United States, where he followed the tanners' trade, but later emigrated to California. In 1866 he came to Oregon, establishing a tannery at Astoria, but after a few years formed a partnership with John Hobson, in the cannery business, and next was associated with Hiram Brown. Mr. Leinweber served one term in the Legislature, was an intelligent supporter of the Democratic party, and was a Mason in his social relations. At the time of his death he was possessed of large real-estate interests in this city.

He was married in 1867, to Miss Mary H. Powers, a daughter of the late Truman Powers, well known in Astoria. He was a native of Vermont, and crossed the plains to Oregon in 1846, taught school one year in Oregon City, in 1847 came to Astoria, the following year prospected in the gold fields of California, but afterward returned to Astoria, where he spent the residue of his days. He was always interested in every enterprise for the city's prosperity, gave liberally to the churches, and the First Presbyterian Church of Upper Astoria, was donated by him.
He served as Deputy Collector of Customs, as Postmaster several years, and also represented
Clatsop county in the Legislature. His wife was Mary Beale, a native of Virginia. Mr.
Power's death occurred in July, 1883, aged eighty years. Mary, now, Mrs. Leinweber, was their only child. Our subject and wife had five children: Truman, who died April 11, 1892, aged twenty-three years; Mary, deceased at the age of fourteen years; Fred, attending school at Wiesbaden, Germany; Hiram Brown and Ida. Mr. Leinweber died March 15, 1889, aged fifty years; Fred, attending school at Wiesbaden, Germany; Hiram Brown and Ida.

Mr. Leinweber died March 15, 1889, aged fifty years. He was a prominent Mason, an Odd Fellow, a Knight Templar, and a member of the A. O. U. W. His residence, a fine two-story building, is located on Fifth and Aber-nethe avenue, in Upper Astoria. The estate consists of valuable residence and business blocks in this city, and farm property in Tillamook county.

Brenham Van Dusen

March 19, 1920-Feb. 5, 1986

Brenham A. Van Dusen, 65, who had been a partner in Van Dusen Beverages of Astoria from 1948 to 1960, died Wednesday at his home in Portland.

Mr. Van Dusen was born in Astoria March 19, 1920. He is survived by his wife, Patricia, of Portland; his son, Scott Van Dusen, of Portland; and two daughters, Debra Van Dusen of Lake Oswego and Kim Upson of Washougal, Wash. He also is survived by a brother, Bill Van Dusen, Astoria, and three grandchildren.

After leaving Astoria, Mr. Van Dusen taught school in Portland School District No. 1. He retired from the district in 1980.

He was a member of the Retired Teachers Association and the Milwaukie Elks Club. He also belonged to the Astoria American Legion Club and the Astoria Kiwanis Club.

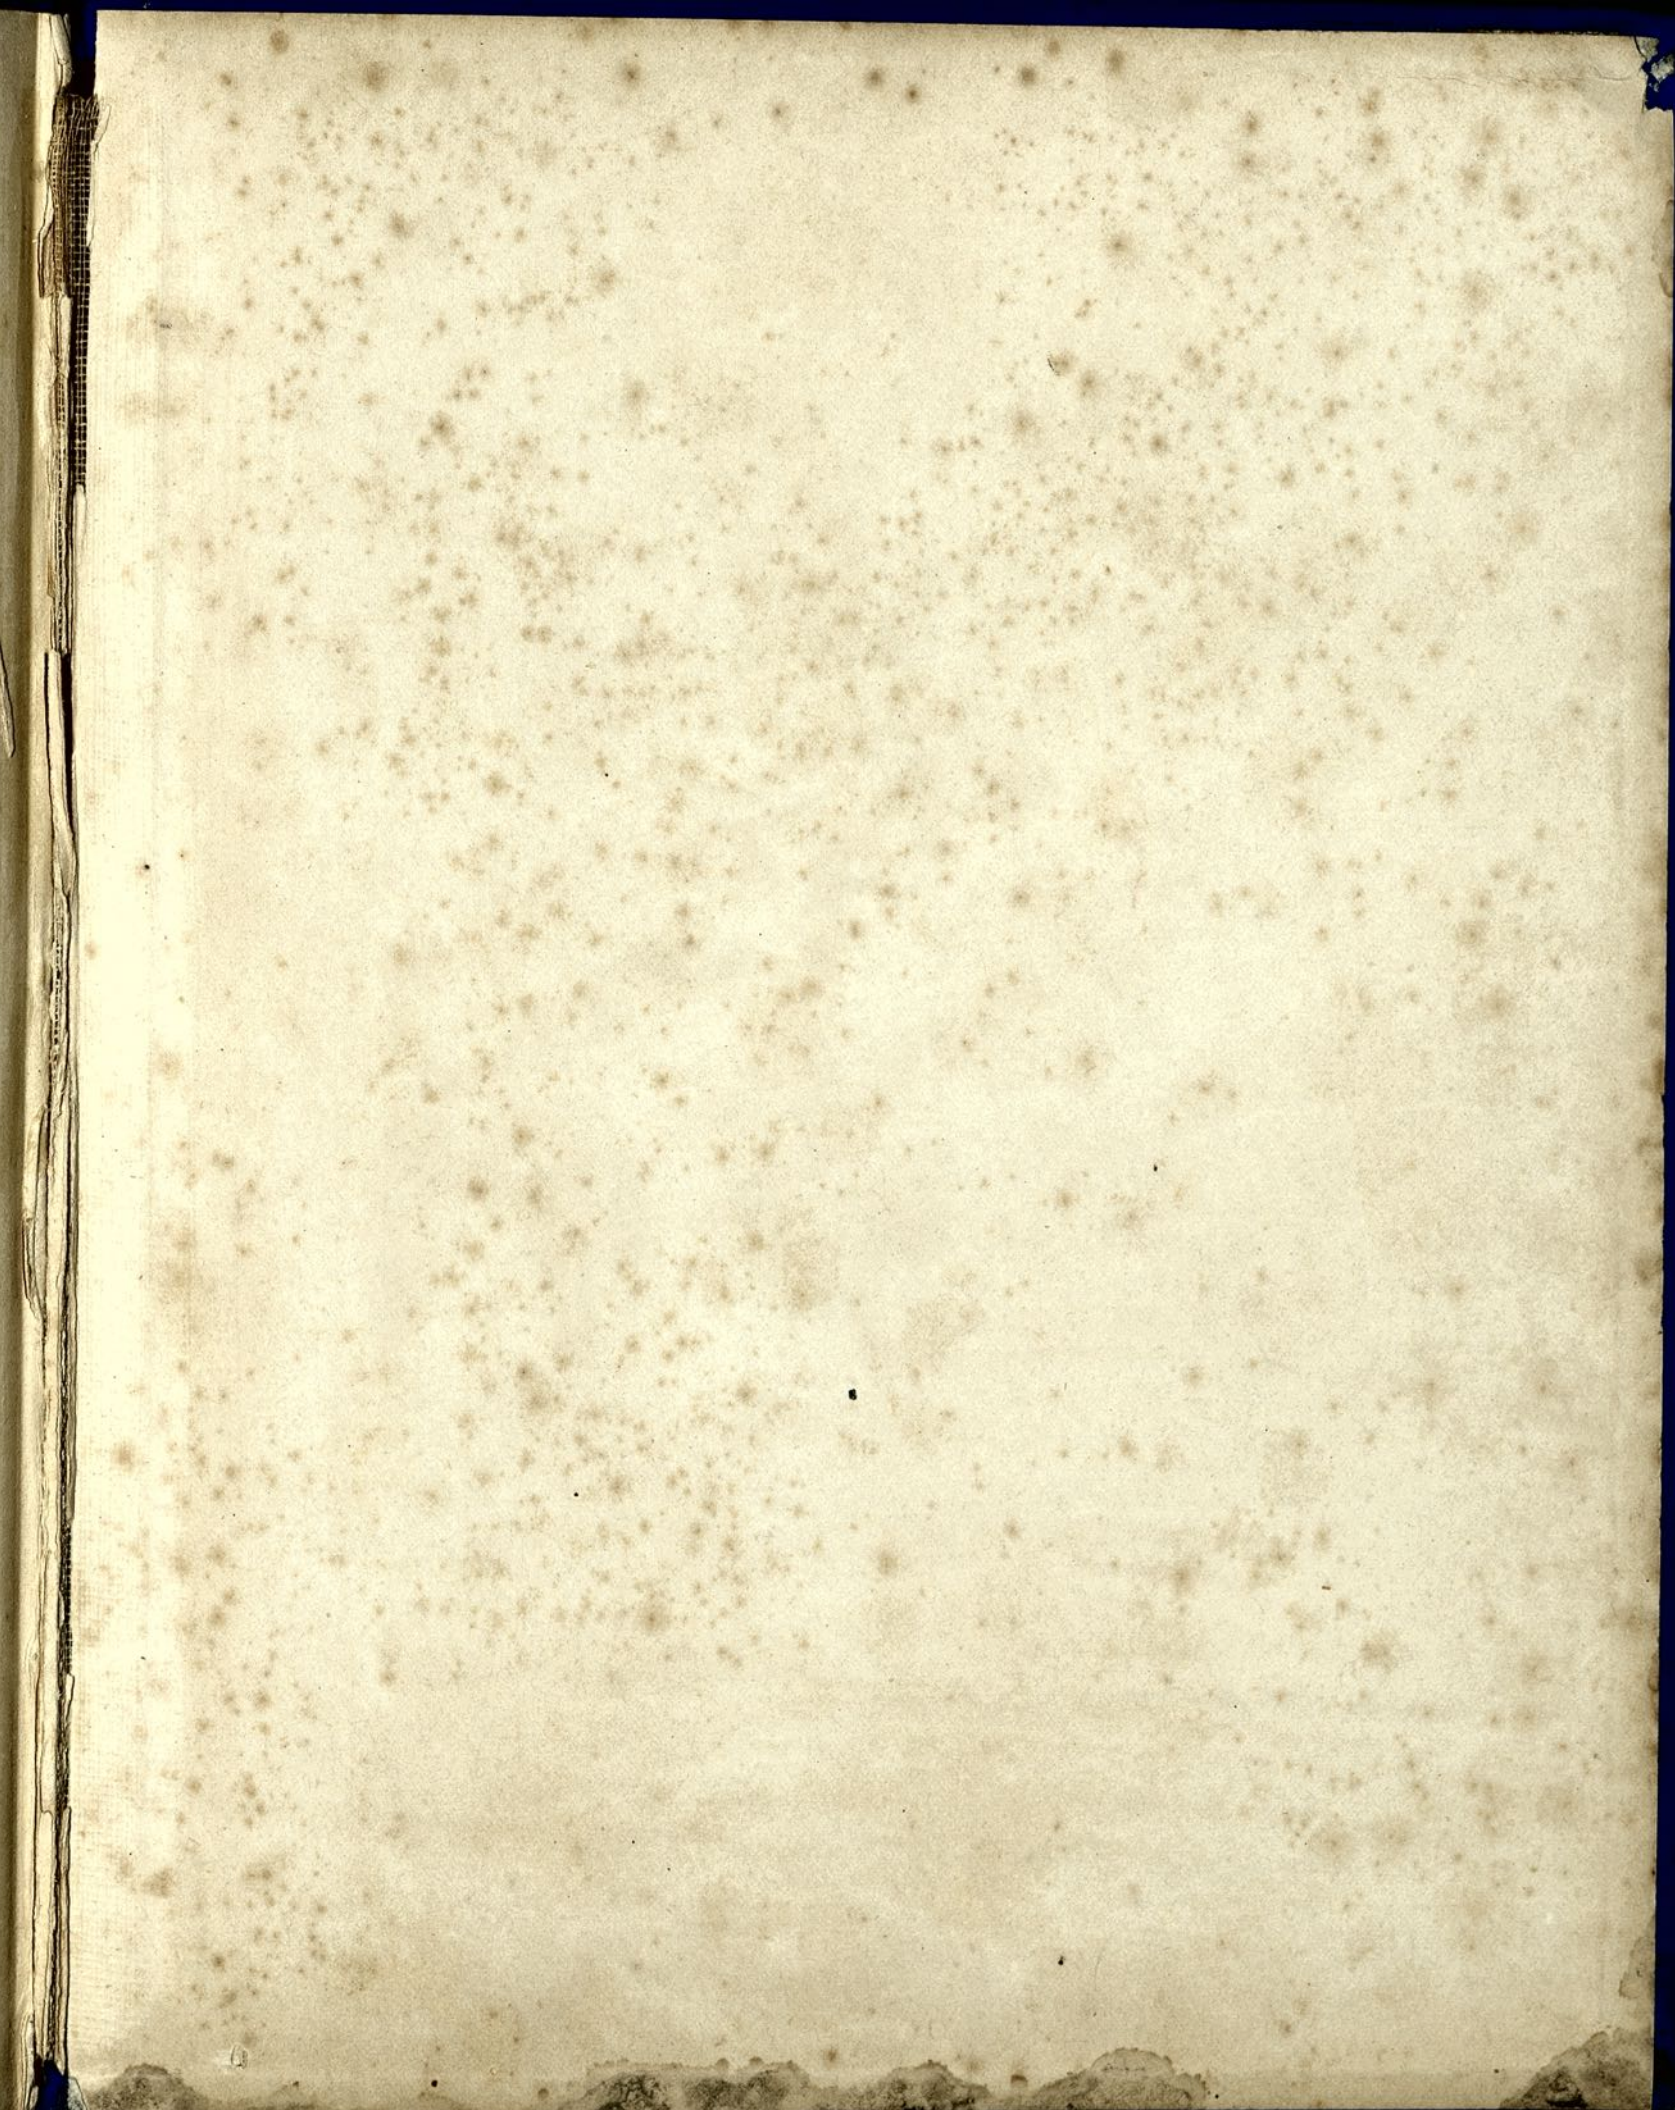

Mr. Van Dusen was a World War II veteran of the U.S. Army Air Force.

After cremation, burial will be at Ocean View Cemetery in Astoria. A memorial service will be 11 a.m. Saturday at Pearson-Allen Funeral Home, Portland.

Contributions in Mr. Van Dusen's name may be made to the Kaiser Hospice Program, Portland.
